The Committee on Committees shall conduct said hearing in accordance with its own rules.

(d) Enrollment and Review.

(i) The Chairperson of Enrollment and Review shall report bills which have been engrossed for Final Reading and passage. In the absence of the Chairperson, the Vice Chairperson of the Judiciary Committee shall assume the duties of the Chairperson of the Enrollment and Review Committee.

(ii) The bill drafting service shall have supervision of and provide legal services for Enrollment and Review Committee.

(iii) The Chairperson of Enrollment and Review shall have authority, without being required to include the same specifically in his or her reports and recommendations to the Legislature, in accord with accepted usage:

(A) To correct the spelling of words, to correct erroneous division and hyphenation of words, to capitalize or decapitalize words, to convert masculine or feminine referents to neutral gender when appropriate, and to change numbers from words to figures or from figures to words, in new and independent acts, in the new matter of amendatory acts, in standing committee reports, and in General File, Select File, and specific amendments.

(B) To underscore or remove underscoring, as the case requires, in standing committee reports and in General File, Select File, and specific amendments.

(C) When an amendment to add the emergency clause, the severability clause, or provide an operative date is adopted on Select File which does not spell out the standard clause or section and make the necessary change in the title, the Chairperson of Enrollment and Review shall also have the authority to add to the engrossed bill the standard clause or section, assigning to it the appropriate section number, and make the necessary change in the title as a matter of course without including such action in his or her reports and recommendations to the Legislature or making any special record thereof.

(D) To add and/or delete names of introducers to reflect action on the bill while the bill remains in the possession of the Legislature at any stage of consideration.

(E) To reflect votes on Final Reading as they may occur pursuant to Rule 6, Section 10 and Rule 6, Section 15.

(e) Reference Committee.

(i) The Executive Board shall constitute the Reference Committee. The Reference Committee shall review each bill and resolution and either refer the matter to the appropriate committee or to General File. The appropriate committee is that committee which has subject-matter jurisdiction over the issue or which has traditionally handled the issue.

(ii) All nominations made to the Legislature by the Governor, requiring confirmation by the Legislature shall be referred to the appropriate standing committee and the same procedure shall be followed as governs the handling of other matters before standing committees, unless the Legislature shall otherwise direct by unanimous vote.

(iii) The Clerk of the Legislature's office shall be responsible for the collection of pertinent information on gubernatorial appointments. That information will be distributed to the appropriate standing committee prior to the time of the confirmation hearing. The Clerk's office shall be the "depository" for background information on the individual, a statement of financial interests if applicable, and other biographical information that the committee chair feels is appropriate for the committee to have before it during the confirmation process.

(iv) The committees to which a gubernatorial appointee has been referred for confirmation shall conduct a confirmation hearing. Each appointee shall be required to appear in person before the committee conducting the confirmation hearing. The appearance of the appointee may be waived for good cause shown by a majority vote of the members assigned to the committee conducting the hearing.

The committee shall prepare a report either approving or rejecting the appointment. Said report shall be filed with the Clerk of the Legislature. The Legislature shall then have the opportunity to accept or reject the report of the committee.

(v) Any appointment letter received by the Clerk of the Legislature during the last eight calendar days of any regular legislative session shall not be acted upon. Acknowledgement of receipt of the appointment shall be deferred until the next regular or special session of the Legislature.

(f) Rules Committee.

All proposed rules changes shall be set for public hearing within five legislative days after their referral to the committee. The hearing shall take place within fifteen legislative days after the referral, and the committee shall take final action on the proposal within ten legislative days after the hearing.

(g) Investigating Committees.

The Committee on Committees may appoint other select committees when authorized by the Legislature. No investigating committee of the Legislature shall be created except by resolution which shall set forth, with supporting statements, the reasons for and the purposes of the investigation, and no committee thus established shall function except during the interim between legislative sessions.

Sec. 5. Special Committees. (a) Special committees shall include all authorized committees other than standing and select committees. Unless otherwise specifically provided, special committees shall not have jurisdiction over legislative bills, but shall be subject to the same procedural rules as standing committees, insofar as they are applicable.

(b) The special committees authorized by statute as of January 1, 1980 are as follows:

Building Maintenance. RRS 81-185	6 members
Education Commission of the States. RRS 79-2504	3 members
Executive Board of the Legislative Council. RRS 50-401.01	9 members
Intergovernmental Cooperation. RRS 81-816	5 members
Legislative Program Evaluation. RRS 50-1204	5 members

(c) The following special provisions shall be in force with regard to the following special committees:

(i) Intergovernmental Cooperation Committee.

In addition to the members of the Intergovernmental Cooperation Committee chosen in accordance with Section 81-816, the Executive Board may appoint temporary members to serve on such assignments as the chairperson shall direct.

Sec. 6. Meeting Times. (a) After consultation with the Speaker, the Committee on Committees shall publish a schedule of standing committee meetings, in such manner as to avoid, as far as possible, conflicts in the assignment of members to committees. Standing committees shall meet at 1:30 p.m. on weekdays, unless otherwise approved by the Legislature, except for the Nebraska Retirement Systems Committee, which shall meet as called by the chairperson.

(b) A standing committee deciding not to hold meetings on the appointed day must receive permission from the Reference Committee.

(c) Any legislative committee shall be subject to the call of its chairperson or to the call of a majority of its members, in accordance with the notice and procedural requirements set forth in its committee rules.

Sec. 7. Chairperson, Vice Chairperson. (a) The chairperson of each standing and select committee shall be selected by secret ballot on the floor of the Legislature.

(b) The chairperson of a special committee shall be selected in the manner provided by the act authorizing the committee, or if not specified, by the Executive Board.

(c) Each committee shall elect from its membership a vice chairperson to serve in the absence of the chairperson.

Sec. 8. Committee Quorum. A majority of the members of a committee shall constitute a quorum. A quorum must be present for the transaction of any committee business except a public hearing.

Sec. 9. Quorum at Committee Hearings. A quorum of committee members should be maintained throughout all committee hearings.

Sec. 10. Conduct During Committee Hearing. No member, staff, media representative, or individual shall smoke or otherwise consume tobacco products during a committee hearing or while the committee conducts an executive session within the hearing room assigned to that committee for such purpose, unless the committee by a vote of the majority, with all the members present, taken at least once a session, decides otherwise.

Sec. 11. Temporary Appointments. (a) When a member is unable to serve, the chairperson of the committee, after a majority vote of the remaining members, shall request that such vacancy be filled by the Committee on Committees unless such vacancy is on the Appropriations Committee in which case the vacancy shall be filled by the Executive Board pursuant to Rule 3, Section 2(c).

(b) A temporary appointment may be made by the Chairperson of the Committee on Committees, or in the case of the Appropriations Committee, the Executive Board, for only one day when requested by a chairperson of a standing committee which lacks a quorum. When a member is appointed from an eight-member committee, the consent of the member to be appointed shall first be obtained. The temporary appointee shall have the right to vote only on the bill or bills that actually have been heard by the appointee and provided that the vote is taken on such bills on the day the bill or bills are heard. When such appointment is made in case of an incapacitated member, such appointee shall cease to be a member of such committee upon the return of the incapacitated member for whom he or she was appointed.

Sec. 12. Consideration and Correlation of Bills and Resolutions. (a) Committees shall consider and report without unnecessary delay all bills and resolutions referred to them. Committees shall be authorized to combine and to correlate the provisions of different bills and resolutions referred to them and related to the same subject under the number of one of the correlated bills or resolutions, and when reported out under one bill or resolution number, the remaining bills or resolutions will be reported out as indefinitely postponed. Committees may, before taking final action on any bill or resolution, adopt amendments thereto, for the consideration of the Legislature.

(b) The chairperson of each committee shall set for hearing all bills and resolutions referred to the committee.

Sec. 13. Public Hearing, Notice. Before taking final action on a bill, resolution, or gubernatorial appointment, a committee shall hold a public hearing thereon and shall give at least seven calendar days' notice, after the bill or pronouncement of the appointee shall have been printed, by publication in the Legislative Journal. No bill or resolution having been set for public hearing shall be withdrawn nor the hearing cancelled within seven calendar days of the date set for said public hearing.

Sec. 14. State Officials Appearing Before Committees. State officials and department heads or their designees and state employees are encouraged to appear before any legislative committee to comment upon bills having an impact on the operations of the administrative agency or department for which they work.

Sec. 15. Executive Sessions and Closed Meetings. (a) Executive session shall mean any meeting or portion of a meeting which is closed to the general public, and the proceedings of which are not electronically recorded and transcribed, unless the committee so provides, but the records of which shall be available for public inspection. Executive sessions shall be open to members of the news media who may report on action taken and on all discussions in executive session.

(b) All other meetings of a committee shall be public unless the committee, by a majority vote of all of its members, determines that a meeting should not be open to the public, including members of the news media, in a particular instance, due to rare and extraordinary circumstances. The meeting shall be reconvened in open session before any formal action may be taken.

Sec. 16. Report of Bill to Legislature. (a) In reporting a bill to the Legislature, whether with or without amendments, a committee shall by vote of a majority of its members, recommend that the bill be placed on General File or that the bill be indefinitely postponed. Such action shall be taken at regularly scheduled meetings only.

(b) A report on a bill or resolution must be made to the Legislature within eight calendar days after the committee has taken final action upon the particular measure. Final action shall mean an affirmative vote of a majority of the committee members to advance a bill to General File with or without committee amendments or an affirmative vote of a majority of the committee members to indefinitely postpone the bill. A committee may reconsider any final action prior to the committee making a report on the bill or resolution to the Legislature, provided the reconsideration takes place within eight calendar days of the final action.

(c) No bill shall be reported by the committee to be placed on General File unless the amendments, if any, are approved as to form and draftsmanship by the Bill Drafter.

Sec. 17. Indefinitely Postponed Bills. If the committee action on a bill be to postpone indefinitely, the bill shall stand indefinitely postponed; except that such bill may be placed on General File or referred back to the committee by a three-fifths vote of the elected members upon motion made within three legislative days after the committee makes its report to the Legislature, or by a two-thirds vote of the elected members upon motion made more than three legislative days after such committee report. Not more than one bill shall be raised from committee on any one motion. A motion to raise cannot be amended to include any other bill or subject matter. A motion to raise must be disposed of by the Legislature within five legislative days after the motion is available for consideration or it shall be deemed defeated.

Sec. 18. Committee Statement. (a) The chairperson of each committee with the assistance of the legislative staff shall, when reporting a bill, submit with such bill a committee statement which shall contain, but need not be limited to, the following information:

(1) the one-line title and number of the bill;
(2) a roll call vote of final committee action taken on the bill;
(3) the date of the public hearing on the bill;

(4) a list of all individuals testifying for and against the bill and any organization they represent;
(5) a summary of the bill's purpose and a description of all major provisions for change in the bill as written and as amended by the committee;
(6) if committee amendments are to be introduced, a copy of the amendments and an explanation thereof.

(b) A copy of the proposed statement shall be distributed to each committee member within five days after final action on the bill has been taken by the committee. A minority or concurring statement bearing the signature or signatures of its proponents and setting forth objections to the bill, to proposed amendments, or to the majority statement may be filed by its author(s) with the Clerk of the Legislature at any time prior to the first hearing of the bill on General File.

(c) A copy of the committee statement and any minority statements submitted shall be distributed to each senator after filing with the Clerk of the Legislature. Copies of such statements shall be made available to the public.

Sec. 19. Request From Committee, Bills Held. (a) Except for the general appropriation bills necessary for the support of the state government for the biennium, the Legislature may, by vote of a majority of the elected members, request a status report from any committee at any time after said committee shall have been in possession of a bill or resolution for twenty legislative days.

(b) Any senator may move that a bill be placed on General File twenty calendar days or more after the committee hearing, if the committee has not taken final action on the bill, and by a vote of a majority of the elected members, said bill shall be placed on General File. If, at the expiration of eight calendar days from the date final action was taken, the chairperson has not reported the bill, any senator may file with the Speaker a motion that the chairperson be compelled to submit a report. After determining that final action on the bill has been taken at least eight calendar days prior to the date the motion was submitted, the Speaker shall accept the motion and compel the chairperson to file the committee's report on the matter.

(c) Any time any member attempts to take a bill from committee to be placed on General File, the bill shall stand indefinitely postponed and shall not be subject to reconsideration if the motion fails to receive a majority vote of the members elected to the Legislature. The introducer of the bill must concur with any motion offered under this rule.

Sec. 20. Subpoena Procedure. It is within the inherent power of any legislative committee to gather information pursuant to its regular functions, and to conduct investigations of matters within its subject-matter jurisdiction.

A committee's power of subpoena should not be exercised unless the committee has determined that no other method of securing the desired information would be successful or practicable, and that the matter is of primary importance to the welfare of the State of Nebraska.

A committee of the Legislature conducting an investigation and gathering information, whether pursuant to legislative direction or pursuant to its regular functions of oversight and bill preparation, shall observe the following procedures in addition to regular committee procedures whenever subpoenas are issued:

(A) Issuance of Subpoenas.

(i) A committee may, by a majority vote of all of its members taken at a meeting properly called, issue a subpoena requiring a person to appear before the committee and be examined in reference to any matter within the scope of the inquiry or investigation being conducted by the committee, but only when the committee has received prior approval by a majority vote of the Executive Board to issue subpoenas in connection with the specific inquiry or investigation in question.

(ii) The committee may, in the same manner, issue a subpoena or subpoena duces tecum requiring any person to appear before the committee and bring with him or her any books, papers, or other documents pertinent thereto.

(iii) While the Legislature is in session, a committee deciding to issue subpoenas must promptly report each issuance to the Legislature. A record shall be made in the Journal reflecting the date the subpoena was issued, to whom it was issued, for what purpose it was issued, and the date on which testimony or production of documents is to take place. Under extraordinary circumstances, the identity of the person subpoenaed may be withheld from publication if necessary to protect the safety of an individual or the confidentiality of the matters to be heard.

(iv) A person subpoenaed to attend a hearing of a committee shall receive the same fees and allowances as a person subpoenaed to give testimony in an action pending in a court of record.

(B) Notice to Witnesses.

(i) Service of a subpoena requiring the attendance of a person at a hearing of a committee shall be made in the manner provided by law for the service of subpoenas in civil actions at least seven days prior to the date of the hearing unless a shorter period of time is authorized by a majority vote of all of the members of the committee in a particular instance when, in their opinion, the giving of seven days' notice is not practicable; but if a shorter period of time is authorized, the person subpoenaed shall be given reasonable notice of the hearing, consistent with the particular circumstances involved.

(ii) Any person who is served with a subpoena to attend a hearing of a committee shall also be served with a copy of the act defining the purpose of the committee, a copy of the rules under which the committee functions, a general statement informing him or her of the subject matter of the committee's investigation or inquiry, and a notice that he or she may be accompanied at the hearing by counsel of his or her own choosing.

(C) Conduct of the Hearing.

(i) No committee which has issued a subpoena directing a witness to appear at a hearing shall question the witness unless a quorum is present throughout the questioning.

(ii) The hearing shall be public unless the committee, by a majority vote of all of its members, determines that a hearing should not be open to the public in a particular instance, due to rare and extraordinary circumstances consistent with Legislative Rule 3, Section 15(b) regarding closed meetings.

(iii) The chairperson of the committee shall preside at all hearings and shall conduct the examination of witnesses himself or herself or supervise the examination by other members of the committee. The committee may, by a majority vote of all its members, authorize the questioning of a witness by the committee's counsel or by special counsel.

(D) Right to Counsel and Submission of Questions.

(i) Every witness at the hearing may be accompanied by counsel of his or her own choosing, who may advise the witness of his or her rights, subject to reasonable limitations which the committee may prescribe to prevent obstruction of or interference with the orderly conduct of the hearing.

(ii) Any witness at the hearing, or a witness' counsel, may submit to the committee proposed questions to be asked of the witness or any other witness relevant to the matters upon which there has been any questioning or submission of evidence, and the committee shall ask such of the questions as it deems appropriate and relevant to the subject matter of the hearing.

(E) Testimony.

(i) The committee shall cause a verbatim record to be made of all proceedings in which testimony or other evidence is demanded or offered, which record shall include rulings of the chair, questions of the committee and its counsel, the testimony or responses of witnesses, sworn written statements submitted to the committee and read into the record, and such other matters as the committee or its chair may direct.

(ii) All testimony given or offered at the hearing shall be under oath or affirmation if the witness has been subpoenaed, and in other cases if a majority of the committee members present at the hearing so decide.

(iii) The presiding member at the hearing may direct a witness to answer any relevant question or furnish any relevant book, paper, or other document, the production of which has been required by subpoena duces tecum. Unless the direction is overruled by a majority vote of the committee members present, disobedience shall constitute a contempt.

(iv) A witness at the hearing or his or her counsel, with the consent of a majority of the committee's members present at the hearing, may file with the committee for incorporation into the record of the hearing sworn written statements relevant to the purpose, subject matter, and scope of the committee's investigation or inquiry.

(v) Testimony and other evidence given or offered at a hearing closed to the public shall not be made public unless authorized by a majority vote of all of the members of the committee, which authorization shall also specify the form and manner in which the testimony or other evidence may be released.

(vi) A witness at a closed hearing, upon request and at his or her own expense, shall be furnished a transcript of his or her testimony at the hearing.

(F) Interested Persons.

(i) Any person whose name is mentioned or who is otherwise identified during the hearing and who, in the opinion of the committee, may be adversely affected thereby, may, upon his or her request or upon the request of any member of the committee, appear personally before the committee and testify in his or her own behalf, or, with the committee's consent, may file a sworn written statement of facts or other documentary evidence for incorporation into the record thereof.

(ii) Upon the consent of a majority of its members, a committee may invite any other person to appear at a hearing or submit a sworn written statement of facts or other documentary evidence for incorporation into the record thereof. No invitation to appear, and no request to appear, appearance, or submission of evidence shall limit in any way the committee's power of subpoena.

(iii) Any person who appears before a committee pursuant to this section shall have all the rights, privileges, and responsibilities of a witness provided to all other witnesses.

(G) Contempt.

A person shall be in contempt if he or she:

(i) Fails or refuses to appear in compliance with a subpoena or, having appeared, fails or refuses to testify under oath or affirmation;

(ii) Fails or refuses to answer any relevant question or fails or refuses to furnish any relevant book, paper, or other document subpoenaed by or on behalf of a committee; or

(iii) Commits any other act or offense against a committee which, if committed against the Legislature, would constitute a contempt.

The chairperson of a committee may apply to the Legislature or, during the interim, to the district court of any county to compel obedience by proceedings for contempt.

(H) Penalties.

(i) A person guilty of contempt under the provision of these rules shall be subject to punishment pursuant to RRS 50-105 and 50-106 during the session, or to RRS 50-407 when the Legislature is not in session.

(ii) If a committee fails in any material respect to comply with the requirements of these rules, any person subject to a subpoena or a subpoena duces tecum who is injured by such failure shall be relieved of any requirement to attend the hearing for which the subpoena was issued or, if present, to testify or produce evidence therein; and such failure shall be a complete defense in any proceeding against such person for contempt or other punishment.

(iii) Any member or employee of the Legislature, other than the witness concerned or his or her counsel who knowingly violates subsections of these rules concerning the publication of testimony taken at a closed hearing, shall be in contempt of the Legislature or, if a member of the Legislature, shall be subject to sanction or suspension according to the statutes governing the Legislature. The Speaker on his or her own motion or on the application of any person claiming to have been injured or prejudiced by an unauthorized disclosure may institute proceedings for the determination of the issue and for the imposition of penalties provided herein. Nothing in this subsection shall limit any power which the Legislature may have to discipline a member or employee or to impose a penalty in the absence of action by a prosecuting officer or court.

(I) Limitation of Rules.

Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to limit or prohibit the acquisition of evidence or information by any committee by any lawful means not provided for herein.

RULE 4–RESOLUTIONS

Section 1. Identification. A resolution shall be designated as Legislative Resolution _____. All resolutions shall be numbered consecutively for each Legislature. All resolutions shall be introduced and read by the Clerk upon introduction and shall be printed in the Legislative Journal.

73-74 Attorney General Opinion No. 13--Resolutions must be printed and read before a vote is taken.

Sec. 2. When Considered as a Bill. Resolutions which propose amendments to the state constitution, propose the ratification or rejection of amendments to the federal Constitution, or memorialize the Congress with regard to amendments to the U.S. Constitution, shall be considered and adopted in the same manner as bills.

Const. Art. III, Secs. 13, 14; Art. IV, Sec. 15; Art. XVI, Sec. 1.
Cannot appropriate funds by resolution. Const. Art. III, Sec. 25.

Sec. 3. Study Resolutions: Introduction; Referral; Standing Committees; Select Committees; Results. (a) Any senator or committee may introduce resolutions proposing interim studies. The resolutions shall be submitted to the Clerk of the Legislature on a form prescribed by the Clerk, printed in the Journal, and referred to the Executive Board.

(b) Study resolutions may be introduced up to and including the 80th legislative day in odd number years and the 50th legislative day in even number years. However, each standing committee may introduce one additional study resolution prior to adjournment sine die. The Executive Board shall refer the study resolutions to the appropriate standing committees or to select interim committees created by it to conduct such studies.

(c) Study resolutions shall be prioritized by the chairperson of the committee to which they are referred, and a report on those priorities shall be filed with the Clerk, on a form prescribed by the Clerk, prior to adjournment sine die. Also, the chairperson of each committee shall file with the Clerk, on a form prescribed by the Clerk, his or her committee's study plan for the highest prioritized interim studies referenced to such committee. This study plan shall be filed no later than thirty days after adjournment sine die. Unless otherwise agreed to, staff to interim studies conducted by standing committees shall be headed by the respective committee counsels. Legislative aides whose senators serve on such standing committees and legislative aides of other interested senators may be invited by the respective committee counsels to participate as staff in the conduct of the interim studies. The provisions of this section shall in no way limit the standing committees in their traditional prerogatives to conduct hearings and oversee matters and agencies that are within their subject matter jurisdiction.

(d) The Executive Board may, on its own behalf, conduct interim studies or create select interim committees to do so. Before creating a select interim committee, the Board shall consider whether the subject matter proposed for study by such a committee lies within the jurisdiction of one or more standing committee. To the extent possible, the jurisdiction of a select interim committee created by the Board shall be limited to subject matters that do not lie wholly within the jurisdiction of one or another standing committee. Membership on a select interim committee shall, to the extent possible, include senators who are both interested in serving on such a committee and are from the standing committees that have the most direct concern with the subject matter proposed for study. Select interim committees shall meet no later than five legislative days prior to adjournment sine die to organize and to review study plans. Staff to select interim committees shall be drawn from the Legislature's division staffs (e.g., fiscal, research, bill drafting), be based upon a joint plan submitted to the Executive Board by the division directors, may include other interested legislative staff, and shall be coordinated by the Legislative Research Division, and the chairpersons of the standing committees involved with the select interim committee.

(e) The Executive Board shall retain its traditional prerogatives to consider and refer study proposals arising from extraordinary circumstances after the deadlines established in this section.

(f) The chief sponsor of a study resolution, if not otherwise a member of the committee to which the resolution is referred, shall be an ex officio member of the committee during and only for the conduct of the study.

(g) On or before December 1 of each year, each standing and select interim committee shall file a report, on a form prescribed by the Clerk, with the Executive Board on the disposition of the study resolutions referred to them. These reports shall be printed in the Journal at the beginning of the next session of the Legislature.

(h) The results or final reports of studies conducted by standing committees may be prepared in a format of their choosing. Seven copies of each completed standing committee report shall be filed with the Legislative Reference Library. The results or final reports of studies conducted by select interim committees shall be prepared and published in a format prescribed by the Legislative Research Division, and copies of such studies will be indexed and filed with the Legislative Reference Library.

Sec. 5. Vote Required for Adoption. All resolutions shall be adopted, individually or in groups as determined by the Speaker, by an affirmative vote of a majority of the members present and voting except for those specified in Section 2; Provided, upon the request by any member prior to the commencement of the vote, a resolution shall require an affirmative vote of a majority of the elected members. Resolutions specified in Section 2 shall be considered and adopted in the same manner as bills.

Sec. 6. Resolutions, Lay Over Requirement. Resolutions shall lay over for consideration at least one legislative day after introduction.

Sec. 7. Engrossed Resolutions. Only those resolutions specified in Sections 2 and 3 of this rule shall be engrossed unless otherwise ordered by the Legislature or unless the Clerk determines the nature of the resolution is such that upon its adoption it must be engrossed to properly achieve the purpose for which it was presented. All resolutions which are engrossed shall be enrolled and signed by the Lieutenant Governor or Speaker and certified to by the Clerk as to the date of final passage.

Const. Art. III, Sec. 14.

Sec. 8. Reference to Committee. Resolutions other than those covered by Sections 2 and 3 of this rule shall upon the recommendation of the Speaker of the Legislature be referred to the Reference Committee for referencing to the appropriate committee.

Sec. 9. Reviving Resolution Killed by Committee. If the standing committee report on a resolution be to postpone indefinitely, the resolution shall stand indefinitely postponed; Provided, that such resolution may be considered by the members of the Legislature if a majority vote of the elected members so direct, provided the motion is made within three legislative days after the committee makes its report to the Legislature. A motion to raise cannot be amended to include any other resolution or subject matter. The provisions of this section shall not apply to resolutions considered as bills pursuant to Rule 4, Section 2.

Sec. 10. Committee Statement. A committee, when reporting out a resolution, shall attach thereto a statement setting forth what is sought to be accomplished and the committee vote. The statement shall be set out in full in the Journal.

RULE 5--BILLS--GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 1. Drafting of Bills. The Bill Drafter shall prepare all bills and amendments in proper form when requested by members of the Legislature, newly elected members of the Legislature, or heads of executive departments. No bills or major amendments shall be introduced or considered unless the same has been approved as to form and draftsmanship by the Bill Drafter. In order to shorten the length of sections, the Bill Drafter shall, in the drafting of new sections, make each paragraph a separate section except when to do so would be contrary to sound bill drafting practice. The Bill Drafter shall make available a continuing compilation of sections to which amendments are proposed so as to reduce unnecessary duplication of bills. This section index of bills drafted shall be available to all senators, newly elected senators, and other persons entitled to have bills drafted. After January 1 of each year no bill shall be drafted by the Bill Drafter unless requested or authorized by a member of the Legislature.

Sec. 2. Content and Form of Bills. (a) A bill shall be designated as Legislative Bill _____.

Style of bill. Const. Art. III, Sec. 13.

(b) No bill shall contain more than one subject and the same shall be clearly expressed in the title. No law shall be amended, unless the new act contains the section or sections as amended, and the section or sections so amended shall be repealed.

Const. Art. III, Sec. 13.

(c) An amendatory bill or constitutional provision shall be so prepared and printed as to show the new matter proposed, old matter to be retained, and old matter to be omitted from the statutes or constitution.

(d) Appropriations bills and "A" bills shall contain the following elements:
(1) the phrase "there is hereby appropriated";
(2) a specific fund type shall be identified and the fund shall be appropriated;
(3) the amount to be appropriated from such fund shall be identified;
(4) a specific budget program or a specific statement reflecting the purpose for expending such funds shall be identified; and
(5) the time period during which such funds shall be expended shall be identified.

RRS 49-804.

Sec. 3. Revisor Correctional Bills, Preprinting. (a) Preceding each legislative session, the Chairperson or any member of the Executive Board of the Legislative Council, or if the Executive Board so requests, the senator who, in the preceding session served as Chairperson of the Judiciary Committee, shall sign as introducer the Revisor of Statutes' correctional bills. The Clerk of the Legislature shall number these bills consecutively beginning with number 1 and shall show the committee reference to be General File. The Clerk of the Legislature shall have these bills printed before the convening of the next regular session.

(b) In addition to causing to be printed the revisor bills, the Clerk shall number and cause to be printed all bills delivered to him or her by the Executive Board, provided said Board has referred said bills to a standing committee. No bill so printed shall be withdrawn until after the Legislature convenes.

Sec. 4. Introducers Signing Bills. (a) Members shall introduce only such bills as they are willing to endorse and support personally. The last name and district shall be used, unless an initial or name is necessary to identify the introducer. Any member may request to have his or her name added as cointroducer of a bill but only if the principal introducer has concurred, in writing, to that request.

(b) A standing committee or special committee may introduce a bill for any purpose, including at the request of another senator, provided said bill receives the endorsement of a majority of the committee members whose names shall be on the bill.

(c) No bill shall be introduced after the tenth legislative day of any session, except:

1. "A" bills, appropriation bills, and bills introduced at the request of the Governor may be introduced at any time;
2. A standing committee or special committee may request that the Legislature consider introduction of a bill. A vote of three-fifths of the elected members of the Legislature shall be required for such bill to be introduced, and a copy of the statement of intent for such bill must be placed on each member's desk before introduction of the bill is voted upon.

(d) Individual members shall not be limited as to bill introduction. Each committee shall be limited to 8 bills each session. Bills introduced as a result of an interim study of the Legislative Council shall be included within the limitations prescribed by this section. Special committees created as a result of an interim study resolution and as authorized by the Executive Board shall be considered as separate committees for purposes of the limitations prescribed by this section. Bills introduced under Rule 5, Section 3(a) and bills introduced at the request of the Governor will not be included in the limitation.

(e) The introducers of all bills must submit a statement of intent for each bill to the appropriate committee chairperson at least 24 hours prior to the bill's hearing. The statement of intent should discuss clearly and completely the purposes and effects of the bill.

Sec. 5. Scheduling of Bills, Priority Bills. (a) Each senator may designate one bill as a priority bill. Such priority bill need not be the designator's bill, but the principal introducer must concur with the designation as a priority bill and with the withdrawal of the designation once made.

(b) Each chairperson of those committees which are authorized to hold public hearings on bills may designate as priority bills two of the bills referenced to that committee and on which the committee has held a public hearing.

(c) The Speaker may designate up to 25 additional priority bills.

(d) Priority bill designations may be made at any time prior to the annual designation deadline which shall be set each year by the Speaker. The designation deadline shall be prior to the 45th legislative day in the ninety day session and prior to the 30th legislative day in the sixty day session.

(e) A senator or committee may withdraw a priority designation at any time, but will not be allowed to designate another bill as a priority bill in its place. The Speaker may withdraw a priority designation made by the Speaker.

(f) All committees shall schedule priority bills for public hearing ahead of all unscheduled, nonpriority bills unless the person or committee making the priority designation shall otherwise agree.

(g) All bills not designated as priority bills shall be heard on General File in the order in which they are reported to the floor by the committees, unless the introducer of the bill and the Speaker agree to delay the hearing of a particular bill. This provision shall not be construed to prevent the Speaker from placing bills reported out of committee with two or less dissenting votes on a consent calendar. Any bill placed on consent calendar shall be removed at the written request of three or more senators.

(h) Priority bills shall generally be considered ahead of all other bills at each stage of debate, except that priority bills requiring the expenditure of appropriated funds shall be held on Final Reading until such time as the annual appropriations bills have been passed. A priority bill which fails to advance after two votes on General File, or after one vote on Select File, shall return to nonpriority status.

(i) No priority bill designated under this rule shall have priority over appropriations bills.

Sec. 6. Fiscal Analyst. (a) A copy of every bill introduced shall be transmitted by the Clerk to the Legislative Fiscal Analyst. The Legislative Fiscal Analyst shall review each bill and make an estimate of the anticipated change in state, county, or municipal expenditures or revenue under the provisions of the bill. The Legislative Fiscal Analyst shall prepare a statement to be known as a fiscal note to be attached to each bill prior to its public hearing by a committee, or its first consideration on General File if the bill is referred directly to General File. The fiscal note shall set forth the fiscal impact of the bill and the governmental subdivision affected by the fiscal impact as determined by the Legislative Fiscal Analyst. No bill which has a fiscal impact shall be heard by a committee or considered on General File unless the fiscal note is attached.

(b) In determining the fiscal impact of any bill, the Legislative Fiscal Analyst shall request the appropriate department or other entity of state government or subdivision thereof, or appropriate association which will be affected by the bill, to prepare the fiscal note within five calendar days.

(c) The Legislative Fiscal Analyst shall review the fiscal note so prepared and shall also request a review of such fiscal note by the Budget Division of the Department of Administrative Services. The statement by the Budget Division of the Department of Administrative Services shall be attached to and become a part of the fiscal note. The Legislative Fiscal Analyst shall include in the fiscal note any exceptions to the conclusions of the department or other entity and of the Budget Division of the Department of Administrative Services.

(d) The fiscal note shall be delivered by the Legislative Fiscal Analyst to the Clerk at least twenty-four hours prior to the public hearing on the bill or, in the event the bill is referred directly to General File, twenty-four hours prior to the first consideration of the bill on General File. The Clerk shall present the fiscal note to the principal introducer. If extenuating circumstances prevent the Legislative Fiscal Analyst from meeting this deadline, he or she shall present to the principal introducer an unofficial summary of all available fiscal information on the bill by this deadline and deliver to the Clerk the fiscal note when it is available. The Clerk shall attach the fiscal note to the bill and to all copies prepared for members.

(e) When amendments to a bill are adopted by the Legislature and such amendments would change the fiscal impact of the bill, the appropriate changes shall be made in the fiscal note each time the bill is advanced to Enrollment and Review or upon the written request of a member of the Legislature.

(f) When any bill proposes adoption of a new program or change of an existing program either of which would require an appropriation to implement in the ensuing fiscal year, an appropriation bill for the purposes of funding the provisions of such bill shall be prepared from the information contained in the fiscal note. Such appropriation bill shall be prepared at the direction of the Chairperson of the Appropriations Committee. Such bill shall be placed on General File and considered as introduced by the introducer of the original bill or by the committee which offered the amendments creating the expenditure, and shall bear the number of the original bill with the letter "A" added, and shall accompany the original bill through all stages of the legislative process. All bills for which an "A" bill is prepared shall be bracketed on Final Reading until the "A" bill is advanced to Final Reading.

(g) The authorization bill shall first be considered and if it should be passed on Final Reading then the "A" bill shall be read and voted on for final passage.

(h) The fiscal note shall be factual in nature, as brief and concise as may be, and shall, if possible, provide a reliable estimate in dollars and, in addition, it shall include both the immediate effect and, if determinable or reasonably foreseeable, the long range effect of the measure. If, after investigation, it is determined that no dollar estimate is possible, the fiscal note shall contain a statement to that effect, setting forth the reasons why no dollar estimate can be given.

(i) No comment or opinion shall be included in the fiscal note with regard to the merits of the measure for which the note is prepared, however, technical or mechanical defects may be noted.

(j) The subject matter of bills submitted to boards, commissions, departments, agencies, or other entities of the state by the Fiscal Analyst shall be kept in strict confidence by said agencies and by the office of Fiscal Analyst together with the content of the fiscal note itself and no information relating thereto shall be divulged by any official or employee prior to its introduction in the Legislature.

(k) To implement the provisions of and assure compliance with Art. III, Sec. 22 of the Nebraska Constitution (deficiency appropriations), and Art. IV, Sec. 7 of the Nebraska Constitution (appropriations in excess of Governor's request), the Appropriations Committee shall advise the Legislature of the number of votes required to assure passage of the same.

Sec. 9. Engrossment of Bills. All bills, before being advanced to Final Reading and passage, shall be engrossed, and copies thereof showing new and stricken matter shall be made available to members.

Sec. 10. Expenditure of Legislative Funds. Those expenditures on which the Legislature votes shall require the approval of the majority of the elected members.

Sec. 11. Withdrawal of Bills. No bill, having been introduced, may be withdrawn except upon motion of the first introducer with the consent of his or her cointroducers. Such motion, when made, shall not be considered prior to the next succeeding legislative day, and, for its adoption, shall require the affirmative vote of a majority of those voting upon the question.

Withdrawal of bills set for hearing. Rule 3, Section 13.

Sec. 12. Division of Bills, Prohibited. No bill shall be divided into two or more bills.

Sec. 13. Holding of Bills. Unless otherwise disposed of, all bills on which no final action has been taken by the time of adjournment of the regular session in odd-numbered years shall be held over for consideration at the regular session convening in even-numbered years.

RULE 6--BILLS--STAGES OF CONSIDERATION

Section 1. Introduction of Bills. Starting with regular sessions in odd-numbered years, bills shall be numbered consecutively starting with the number 1. Bills introduced in regular sessions in even-numbered years shall start with the number following the number of the last bill introduced in the preceding regular session of an odd-numbered year, (bills introduced in any special session shall start with the number 1) and shall be numbered consecutively as read by the Clerk. After introduction, bills requiring reference shall be delivered to the Reference Committee.

Sec. 2. Objection to Reference of Bills. (a) Any member may object to the reference of any bill or other proposition, and correction in case of error in reference may be made by the Legislature by unanimous consent, or by the vote of a majority of the elected members.

(b) Those bills and resolutions placed on General File by the Reference Committee will be bracketed for five calendar days, and if one senator requests a public hearing on one or more of these matters, they will then be referred to a committee. Bills on General File for which public hearings have not been requested will be handled as all bills on General File.

Sec. 3. General File. (a) The Clerk of the Legislature shall read the number and the title of the bill and the name of the principal introducer as it comes up for consideration on General File. A bill will not be read section by section unless requested by a member of the Legislature.

(b) Each section shall be open to amendment. The amendments, if any, recommended by standing committees, shall first be considered. The introducer's amendments, if any, shall next be considered, after which he or she may move to advance and explain the bill. Other amendments and motions permitted by these rules may then be offered and shall be considered after the introducer has explained the bill in the order in which they are filed with the Clerk, subject to the provisions of Rule 7, Section 3.

(c) Bills shall be listed and considered on General File in the order in which they shall be reported from the standing committees, except as modified by the Speaker; Provided, that any bill that comes up for debate for a second time, with the introducer present, shall be placed by the Clerk at the bottom of General File if said introducer asked for further time, unless otherwise directed by the Speaker.

(d) During consideration of bills on either General or Select File, any member may move that the bill be passed over once and if the motion is carried by a majority of those voting, the bill shall be passed over and shall retain its place on the file.

(e) At any stage of consideration of a bill, a motion to bracket or to bracket to a day certain or to unbracket shall, if made by the primary introducer of the bill, require a majority of those voting. If made by other than the primary introducer, there shall then be required a majority vote of the elected membership. In any event, such motions shall alternatively be passed by unanimous consent of the body.

(f) In the event a motion to indefinitely postpone a bill is made before the bill is read on General File, such motion shall require the affirmative vote of a majority of the elected members.

(g) In the event a bill has become substantially a new and different bill by reason of amendments having been adopted, the Speaker may refer said bill to the Reference Committee who must refer the said bill to a proper committee for a public hearing; Provided, that a majority of the elected members may overrule the decision of the Speaker.

(h) If, in the opinion of the Speaker, the bill is in such form that it should properly be referred back to committee for further action, he or she may by order direct the same; Provided, that a majority of the elected members may overrule the decision of the Speaker. Any motion to amend a bill or any motion to amend an amendment shall require a majority vote of the elected members.

Introduction of bills. Rule 6, Section 1.

(B) Voting Machine

Sec. 2. Voting, Electric Roll Call. (a) All votes shall be taken viva voca unless otherwise provided for herein. Questions shall be distinctly put in this form, to wit: "Those who are in favor of the question say 'aye'; those who are opposed to the question say 'nay.' "

(b) If a machine vote is called for or if the presiding officer is in doubt, he or she shall cause the result to be obtained by means of the electric roll call system, and in such event shall accept only machine tallied votes except that voice votes shall be accepted on a motion before the house while the house is under call. The presiding officer may vote by voice. Only the totals shall be printed in the Journal. Once having voted aye or nay, senators may call in a change to not voting prior to the locking of the voting board.

(c) Upon the final passage of a bill, or of a resolution if the same required the same consideration as a bill, the vote shall be by yeas and nays, and the electric roll call system shall be used. Voice votes shall be accepted on Final Reading.

(d) Whenever the "ayes" and "nays" are taken by machine vote, no member shall be permitted to vote after the decision is announced by the presiding officer or the Clerk. Votes not registered on the electric roll call system shall not be counted for or against a proposition. In announcing such vote, the Clerk shall announce the ayes, the nays, those present and not voting, those absent and not voting, and those excused and not voting, and on any action to advance or amend bills, these totals shall be set forth in the Journal. Voice votes shall be accepted on roll call or record votes.

(e) Only senators physically in the legislative chamber may vote.

(C) Motions

Sec. 3. Motion, in Writing, Withdrawal. (a) A motion shall be either stated by the presiding officer or read by the Clerk before a vote is taken. All motions shall be submitted in writing if requested by the presiding officer or any senator.

Once motions are stated they may be withdrawn or modified by the mover before a decision, amendment, or ordering of a vote has been made. A motion to reconsider may be withdrawn only with unanimous consent or a majority vote of the elected members.

When a question is under debate, no motion shall be considered except one of the following, which motions shall take precedence in the order stated.

a. To recess
b. To adjourn
c. For cloture
d. To reconsider
e. For the previous question
f. To postpone to a time certain
g. To recommit to a committee
h. To amend
i. To postpone indefinitely

Such motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are arranged, except that motions to postpone indefinitely and amend do not yield to each other.

When any of the following motions shall be made, any action on such motion shall be delayed at least one legislative day and the motion shall be printed in the Legislative Journal:

a. Motion to postpone indefinitely on General File or Select File, unless the introducer(s) of the bill, or the committee chairperson in the case of committee bills, request(s) that the motion to postpone indefinitely be considered immediately without the one day delay.
b. Motion to place on General File pursuant to Rule 3, Section 19(b).
c. Motion to place bills on General File, notwithstanding the action of a standing committee.

(b) When a motion or other proposition is under consideration, a motion to amend and a motion to amend that amendment shall be in order.

(c) Amendments to the title shall be made by the Enrollment and Review Committee.

(d) No motion, proposition, or subject, different from that under consideration, shall be admitted under color of amendment. Any amendment that is not germane is out of order. Germane amendments relate only to details of the specific subject of the bill and must be in a natural and logical sequence to the subject matter of the original proposal. A nongermane amendment includes one that relates to a substantially different subject.

(e) Any member may call for the division of a question, which shall be divided if it comprehends propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the Legislature. Once a division is ordered by the presiding officer, each component shall be treated as a separate and distinct proposition. Once a vote or change has occurred on any of the divisible questions, the remaining divided sections may not be withdrawn without a majority of those voting or without unanimous consent. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible, but a motion to strike out being lost, shall not preclude an amendment or a motion to strike out or insert. Such call for division shall not be allowed when considering motions under Rule 6, Section 6.

(f) When motions are made for reference of the same subject to a select committee and to a standing committee, the question on reference to the standing committee shall be considered first.

Sec. 4. Shall the Debate Cease. The previous question shall be in this form, "Shall the debate now close?"

The previous question shall be made only in the normal course of speaking order and shall be in order when demanded by five or more members, and must be sustained by the vote of a majority of the elected members, and until decided shall, except as provided in this section of this rule, preclude further debate and all amendments and motions, except one motion to adjourn. The presiding officer may rule the previous question out of order if in the presiding officer's opinion a full and fair debate has not been afforded, due to the complexity of the subject matter. The ruling of the presiding officer shall be subject to overrule in accordance with Rule 1, Section 12 of these rules.

On a previous question there shall be no debate. All incidental questions of order, arising after a motion is made for a previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

When the previous question shall have been ordered on a proposition under debate, the mover, proponent, or introducer of such proposition shall be given the right to close the debate thereon.

After a motion to indefinitely postpone a bill has been offered, and the introducer of the motion has made his or her opening remarks on the motion, the principal introducer of the bill shall immediately be permitted to speak for five minutes on such motion.

Sec. 5. Call of the House. (a) A call of the house may be made by any member in the manner following: "I move for a call of the house." The presiding officer shall direct that the board be cleared and the members shall then vote on placing themselves under call. If a majority of the senators present and voting, vote in favor of such a motion, then the Legislature shall be deemed to be under call. Each member present shall indicate his or her presence upon the electric roll call system and shall remain in his or her seat during the call. After the Clerk shall note the names of the absentees, proceedings under the call may be suspended at any time by a majority vote of the members then present, and when so suspended shall not again be ordered on the proposition pending, except by a majority vote of the members elected.

(b) When a member is recognized to close on a motion and requests a call of the house, the time spent waiting for the members to record their presence shall be counted against the member's closing time.

> Lieutenant Governor votes only when Legislature equally divided. Rule 1, Section 14.
> Voice vote while house under call. Rule 7, Section 2b.

Sec. 6. Postpone to Time Certain. No motion to postpone to a time certain, to commit, or to postpone indefinitely being decided, shall again be allowed on the same day at the same stage of the bill or proposition.

Sec. 7. Reconsideration. (a) When a question has been decided, it shall be in order for any member voting with the prevailing side, or not voting, to move for a reconsideration thereof. A motion to reconsider must be made on the same day the original question was decided or on the next legislative day, except when it be to reconsider the vote on a bill which lacked the constitutional majority on a Final Reading. In such case, it must be made on the same day the original question was decided or on one of the next three legislative days. A motion to reconsider must be disposed of by the Legislature within five legislative days after making the same or it shall be deemed defeated. If the Legislature shall refuse to reconsider, or upon reconsideration shall affirm its first decision, no further motion to reconsider shall be in order unless by unanimous consent.

> Motion to reconsider cannot be withdrawn without leave. Rule 7, Section 3.

(b) Every motion to reconsider shall take preference over all other questions, except a motion to recess, to adjourn, or for cloture.

(c) For its adoption, a motion to reconsider shall require the vote of a majority of the elected members, except:

i Where such motion be to reconsider the vote on a bill which lacked the constitutional majority on a Final Reading, then a three-fifths vote shall be required for adoption.

ii Where such motion be to reconsider the vote on a bill which lacked the constitutional majority on a Final Reading with the emergency clause attached, but which received the constitutional majority with the emergency clause stricken and the purpose of the motion is to again add the emergency clause, then a two-thirds vote of the elected members shall be required for adoption.

iii Where such motion be to reconsider the vote on a motion to pass a bill notwithstanding the objections of the Governor or for override of a line-item veto, then a three-fifths vote shall be required for adoption.

iv Where such motion be to reconsider the vote on a motion to suspend the rules, then a three-fifths vote shall be required for adoption.

(d) For a bill on General File, no motion to reconsider shall be in order until the bill has failed to advance three times; for a bill on Select File, no motion to reconsider shall be in order until the bill has failed to advance two times; for a bill passed on Final Reading, no motion to reconsider shall be in order except by the introducer of the bill, for technical or clarifying amendments.

(e) Whenever a bill is returned from the Governor for further action pursuant to the Legislature's request for such return, motions for reconsideration necessarily incident to opening a bill for further action shall be admitted regardless of the time limitation otherwise imposed by this rule.

Sec. 8. Strike the Enacting Clause. A motion to strike the enacting clause, if adopted, is equivalent to rejection of the bill. It shall not have precedence over a motion to amend nor a motion to indefinitely postpone.

Sec. 9. Motions to Adjourn or Recess. A motion to adjourn shall be in order, except:

a. While a member is speaking.
b. When a motion to adjourn has just been defeated.
c. After the Final Reading of a bill and during roll call thereon.

A motion to adjourn to a time certain shall have precedence over a motion to adjourn. A motion to recess shall take precedence over either of such motions.

When a motion to adjourn or recess has been made, the Speaker shall be privileged to speak to the motion prior to any vote on such motion. A motion to adjourn or recess is not debatable.

A motion to adjourn or recess shall be adopted if approved by a majority of members voting.

Sec. 10. Cloture. At any stage of consideration the principal introducer of the bill under consideration, a cointroducer with the consent of the principal introducer, or the chairperson of the committee, if the bill is introduced by that committee, may move for a cloture to the presiding officer after eight hours of debate on the bill at that stage of consideration, except that the appropriation bills introduced by the Appropriations Committee shall be subject to a cloture motion after twelve hours of debate at that stage of consideration. The presiding officer shall immediately recognize such introducer or chairperson and shall then order debate on the pending amendment or motion to cease. A vote on the pending amendment or motion shall be taken immediately. If the pending matter is an amendment to an amendment, following a vote on the amendment to the amendment, a vote shall then be taken on the original amendment. Following the vote on such pending matter, a vote on the cloture motion shall be taken. A two-thirds majority of the elected members shall be required for the cloture motion to be successful. A motion for cloture shall be in order except while a member is speaking, and a motion for cloture is not debatable. If the motion for cloture is successful, a vote on the advancement of the bill shall be taken, without debate, immediately following the vote on cloture.

A motion for cloture shall have precedence over all other motions except a motion to recess or adjourn.

An unsuccessful motion for cloture shall result in the debate on the bill ending for the day. When the Speaker chooses to resume debate on the bill, successive motions for cloture shall not be in order until two additional hours of debate on the bill has occurred.

RULE 8--APPROPRIATIONS PROCESS

Section 1. Purpose. The purpose of this rule is to provide a procedure for the Legislature to develop appropriations for all state agencies, boards, and commissions. Such procedure shall consider the need to (1) continue the services and financial assistance provided by state agencies and programs, (2) restrict the growth in state appropriations, and (3) provide for the efficient and effective use of state revenue by utilizing standing committee subject matter expertise in the review of agency, board, and commission budget requests.

Sec. 2. Appropriations Committee Report. The Legislature's Appropriations Committee, by majority vote of its members, shall annually prepare a report summarizing the recommended total General Fund appropriation for each year of the following biennium. Such report shall include information based upon the committee's initial review of (1) state agency, board, and commission budget requests, (2) the Governor's budget, (3) the estimated revenue receipts for each year of the following biennium, (4) General Fund reserve requirements, (5) express obligations, and (6) economic conditions affecting the State of Nebraska.

Sec. 3. Report, When Required. The report required in Section 2 of this rule shall be printed in the Legislative Journal and presented to each member of the Legislature by the Chairperson of the Appropriations Committee between twenty and thirty legislative days after the Governor presents his or her budget during sessions in odd-numbered years and between fifteen and twenty legislative days after the Governor's budget presentation during session in even-numbered years.

Sec. 4. Standing Committee Appropriations Review. (a) Each standing committee may hold a budget request review hearing on the agency, board, and commission budgets reasonably encompassed in its subject matter jurisdiction. Any such review hearing shall not be held until the Appropriations Committee has held its public hearing on that agency, board, or commission. The chairperson of the standing committee shall coordinate the scheduling of such hearings with the Chairperson of the Appropriations Committee. The standing committee shall obtain a determination from the Executive Board that the budget to be reviewed is within its subject matter jurisdiction. The standing committee may recommend to the Legislature amendments to proposed appropriations.

(b) Standing committee amendments, if any, must be filed by the sixth legislative day following the placement of appropriations bills on General File. Standing committee amendments shall be printed in the Journal and shall be considered by the Legislature no sooner than the eighth legislative day following the placement of the appropriations bills on General File. Standing committee amendments shall be considered by the Legislature after Appropriations Committee amendments but before all other amendments. Standing committee amendments shall be considered in the order of filing.

(c) The Appropriations Committee shall make available to the appropriate standing committee all currently available information at its disposal.

Sec. 5. Bills, Held on Final Reading. The report of the Appropriations Committee shall include a recommended dollar amount of the General Fund biennium appropriation which shall be allocated for the funding of "A" bills, bills that result in the net reduction of revenue to the General Fund, tax expenditure bills, and amendments to the appropriations bills as reported to General File by the Appropriations Committee. During a 90 day session, all "A" bills which, when considered with their companion bill, appropriate general funds resulting in a net loss; all bills resulting in the reduction of revenue to the General Fund; and all tax expenditure bills shall not be read on Final Reading until the appropriations bills are passed by the Legislature. Provided the Appropriations Committee shall place appropriations bills on General File no later than the 70th legislative day in a 90 day session and the 40th legislative day in a 60 day session. If this deadline is not met, the Legislature shall consider the appropriations bills as introduced by the Governor. During a 60 day session, all "A" bills which, when considered with their companion bill, appropriate general funds resulting in a net loss; all bills resulting in the reduction of revenue to the General Fund; all tax expenditure bills; and all appropriations bills shall not be read on Final Reading prior to the 45th legislative day. The appropriations bills shall be passed no later than the 80th legislative day in a 90 day session and the 50th legislative day in a 60 day session. The appropriations provided for in an "A" bill shall be for not less than two fiscal years.

Sec. 6. Bill, Setting Tax Rates. The Legislature's tax rate bill shall be passed no later than the 85th legislative day in a 90 day session and the 55th legislative day in a 60 day session.

RULE 9--SPECIAL SESSIONS

Section 1. Purpose. The purpose of this rule is to establish special procedures for the Legislature to utilize during a special session. This rule recognizes the necessity of the Legislature to address the business for which it is called together in an expeditious and fair fashion and provides that certain legislative procedures established for regular sessions shall not unduly burden the activities of the Legislature during a special session.

Sec. 2. Convening of the Legislature. Pursuant to the directive contained in the proclamation issued by the Governor, either upon the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the Legislature according to the procedure established by section 50-125 or upon the call of the Governor under the authority of Article IV, section 8, of the Nebraska Constitution, the Legislature shall convene in special session. The first item of business shall be the introduction of bills and resolutions, both of which shall be numbered consecutively beginning with the number one. Bills and resolutions offered by the Speaker at the request of the Governor or offered pursuant to the statement filed with the Secretary of State and agreed to by two-thirds of the members of the Legislature shall be introduced ahead of all other proposals. After introduction, all bills and resolutions shall be handled in the manner provided in this rule. Bills shall be introduced only during the first three days of the session. Resolutions which are not considered and adopted in the same manner as bills may be introduced at any time during the session.

Sec. 3. Resolution Considered as a Bill. Resolutions which propose amendments to the state constitution, propose the ratification or rejection of amendments to the federal Constitution, or memorialize the Congress with regard to amendments to the U.S. Constitution, shall be considered and adopted in the same manner as bills.

Sec. 4. Committee Hearings. Within one legislative day following the introduction of bills and resolutions, or pronouncement of a gubernatorial appointment, the Reference Committee shall review each bill, resolution, and gubernatorial appointment and refer the matter to the appropriate standing committee. The committee to which the bill, resolution, or gubernatorial appointment is referred shall provide as much public notice of the time and place of the hearing on the matter as is reasonable under the circumstances by publication in the Legislative Journal, but in no case shall the hearing be more than five calendar days after the date the bill, resolution, or gubernatorial appointment has been referred to the committee.

Sec. 5. Report of Bill or Resolution to Legislature. The committee to which a bill or resolution has been referred shall make a report on the bill or resolution to the Legislature within twenty-four hours after the committee has taken final action on the matter. If, at the expiration of twenty-four hours from the time final action was taken, the chairperson has not reported the bill or resolution, any senator may file with the Speaker a motion that the chairperson be compelled to submit a report. After determining that final action on the bill or resolution has been taken at least twenty-four hours prior to the time the motion was submitted, the Speaker shall accept the motion and compel the chairperson to file the committee's report on the matter.

Sec. 6. Indefinitely Postponed Bills and Resolutions. If the committee action on a bill or resolution is to postpone indefinitely, the bill shall stand indefinitely postponed, except that such bill or resolution may be placed on General File or referred back to the committee by a majority vote of the elected members. Not more than one bill or resolution shall be raised from committee on any one motion. A motion to raise shall not be amended to include any other bill, resolution, or subject matter. A motion to raise shall take precedence in order over all other motions, except a motion to adjourn.

Sec. 7. Bills and Resolutions Held by Committee. If the committee has not taken final action on a bill or resolution within two days after the committee hearing, any senator may move that the bill or resolution be placed on General File. If a majority of the elected members vote in favor of the motion, the bill shall be placed on General File.

Sec. 8. Pending Proposals Indefinitely Postponed. At the conclusion of a special session, all bills and resolutions which have not been enacted shall stand indefinitely postponed and shall not carry over to the next legislative session.

Sec. 9. Rules Controlling When Conflict Exists. When a conflict exists between the provisions of this rule and other provisions of the Rules of the Nebraska Legislature, the provisions of this rule shall apply.

RULE 10–ELECTION CONTESTS AND QUALIFICATIONS CHALLENGES

Section 1. Election Contests and Qualifications Challenges. (a) An election contest shall place in issue only the validity of the results of an election of a member to the Unicameral Legislature. An election contest shall only determine which candidate was properly elected to the Legislature and shall be seated.

(b) A qualifications challenge shall place in issue only the qualifications of a person elected as a member of the Legislature under the Constitution. A qualifications challenge shall only determine whether a person elected to the Legislature is qualified to hold or retain the seat.

(c) Election contests and qualifications challenges shall be brought and conducted as provided in these rules.

(d) Each election contest and qualifications challenge filed with the Clerk shall be referred by the Clerk to the Reference Committee, who in turn shall refer the matter to a specially created committee to consider such contest or challenge. The committee shall consist of an odd number of members, shall have a minimum of five members and shall consist of members appointed by the Executive Board. The chairperson of such committee shall be appointed by the Executive Board.

(e) The special committee may adopt rules to govern election contests and qualifications challenges, provided that such committee rules must be consistent with these rules, must be filed with the Clerk within twenty-four hours of adoption, and must be made available to all parties and to the public.

Sec. 2. Initiating Election Contests. (a) Election contests may be brought only by an unsuccessful candidate.

(b) Election contests may be brought only by the procedures and within the time limits established by the Nebraska statutes. Notice of intention to contest shall be served on the person certified as elected to the Legislature from the representative district within the time limits established by law.

(c) Within forty days following the general election contested, each contestant shall file with the Clerk of the Legislature a petition of election contest and shall serve such petition on the purported winner. A petition of election contest shall allege the contestant's qualifications to bring the contest and to serve as a member of the Legislature, that he/she alleges that a mistake, violation of election laws, or fraud was committed in specified precincts in the counting, return or canvass of the votes or that some other specified irregularity occurred in the conduct of the election in specified precincts. A petition of election contest shall contain a prayer specifying the relief requested and the precincts in which a recount or other inquiry is desired. A petition of election contest shall be verified by affidavit swearing to the belief that the allegations are true, and shall be accompanied by proof of service on all respondents.

(d) A petition of contest may not be amended to cure a defect under the statutory requirements. A petition of election contest, if filed and served subsequent to the notice of intention to contest, may not raise points not expressed in the notice.

Sec. 3. Initiating Qualifications Challenges. (a) Qualifications challenges may be brought only by an unsuccessful candidate.

(b) Qualifications challenges must be brought within forty days following the general election contested.

(c) A qualifications challenge shall be brought by filing a petition of qualifications challenge with the Clerk, and by serving a copy of the petition on the purported winner. The petition must be accompanied by proof of personal service upon the respondent member and must be verified by affidavit swearing to the truth of the allegations or based upon information and belief. A petition of qualifications challenge shall set forth the grounds on which the respondent member is alleged to be constitutionally unqualified, the qualifications of the petitioner to bring the challenge, and a prayer for relief.

Sec. 4. Contests and Challenges - Due Process. (a) Election contests and qualifications challenges shall be heard and determined as expeditiously as possible under adversary procedures wherein each party to the proceedings has a reasonable opportunity to present his claim, any defense and arguments, and to respond to those of his opponents. All parties may be represented by counsel.

(b) Election contests and qualifications challenges shall be heard and determined in accordance with the applicable provisions of the Nebraska statutes, the Nebraska Constitution, and the United States Constitution. Judicial decisions which bear on a point of law in a contest or challenge shall be admissible in the arguments of the parties and the deliberations and decisions of the committee. Judicial decisions applicable to a point of law or to a fact situation to the committee shall be given weight as precedent.

(c) The committee shall give notice of all rules, timetables or deadlines adopted by the committee. Notice under this subsection shall be in writing and shall be given either personally with receipt, or by certified mail (return receipt requested) addressed to the party at his or her place of residence and to his or her attorney of record at his or her office if so requested by the party.

Sec. 5. Committee Proceedings and Powers in Contests and Challenges. (a) All proceedings of the committee concerning election contests and qualifications challenges may be recorded and transcribed. Copies of the transcript shall be made available to the members of the committee and to the parties.

(b) The committee may dismiss an election contest or qualifications challenge, or may determine to proceed to a recount or other inquiry. The committee may limit the issues to be determined in a contest or challenge, except that where a recount is conducted in an election contest, any precinct timely requested by any party to be recounted shall be recounted by the committee.

(c) In conducting inquiries, investigations and recounts in election contests and qualifications challenges, the committee shall have the power to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, ballots, documents and records, by subpoena signed by the chairperson of the committee as provided by Rule 3, Section 20. In conducting proceedings in election contests and qualifications challenges, the committee may utilize the legislative powers to gather information as provided by Rule 3, Section 20.

(d) The committee may allow any person authorized to take depositions of any necessary witnesses, as may be permitted by law. In recounting the ballots in any election contest, however, no person other than a member of the committee or officer of the Legislature shall handle any ballots, tally sheets, or other election materials without the consent of the committee. The responsibility for the actual recounting of ballots may not be delegated.

(e) The committee shall maintain a record of proceedings in every election contest and qualifications challenge. Such record shall include all notices and pleadings, roll call votes, all reports and dissents, and all documents which were admitted into the proceeding. The committee shall file the record with the Clerk of the Legislature upon the adoption of its final report. The record shall then be available for examination in the Clerk's office.

(f) With the approval of the Executive Board, the committee may employ staff assistants to include clerks, court reporters, professional staff and other personnel as deemed necessary.

Sec. 6. Adoption of Reports in Contests and Challenges. (a) All final decisions of the committee regarding an election contest or qualification challenge shall be reported in writing to the Legislature, and approved by a majority of the members of the committee. Reports shall include a specific recommendation to the Legislature as to the disposition of the contest or challenge.

(b) Any member of the committee may file a dissent from a report of the committee, a minority report, or a special concurrence with the majority report or with any minority report.

(c) Reports of the committee shall be filed with the Clerk of the Legislature, printed and placed on the members' desks, along with any dissents, minority reports or special concurrences. The report shall be listed on the agenda under the heading "Report of Election Contest" or "Report of Qualifications Challenge." The report as filed with the Clerk, shall not be considered for two legislative days prior to any consideration by the Legislature.

(d) The Legislature shall adopt the majority report or a minority report in an election contest or qualifications challenge or shall refuse to adopt any report filed and re-refer the contest or challenge to the committee for further proceedings or for a modified report. Reports as filed by the committee are non-amendable. If the Legislature fails to adopt a report, the matter shall automatically be rereferred to committee for further consideration.

(e) Each party to a contest or challenge may file with the Clerk of the Legislature within 15 days of the filing of the final report a detailed statement of attorney's fees and expenses incurred by said party in connection with the case. The committee shall make recommendations to the Legislature concerning reimbursement of attorney's fees and the expenses of the parties. Such recommendation shall not exceed a sum that is reasonable, just and proper.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINIONS

Opinion No. 94046

DATE:	June 21, 1994
SUBJECT:	Constitutionality of Statutory "Term Limits" on State Elected Officials and Nebraska's Members of the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate.
REQUESTED BY:	Senator Chris Beutler Nebraska State Legislature
WRITTEN BY:	Don Stenberg, Attorney General L. Jay Bartel, Assistant Attorney General

In the wake of the Nebraska Supreme Court's decision in Duggan v. Beermann, 245 Neb. 907, ___ N.W.2d ___ (1994), declaring invalid on procedural grounds the electorate's approval of a constitutional amendment imposing term limits on various state elected officials and ballot access restrictions on Nebraska's members in the U.S. House of Representatives and the Senate, you ask whether the Nebraska Legislature may, by statute, constitutionally enact term limit and ballot access restrictions similar to those contained in the initiative measure invalidated by the Court's decision. For the reasons outlined below, we conclude that the Legislature may, as to certain state officials such as Secretary of State, State Auditor and Attorney General, constitutionally enact statutory term limits. The Legislature may also enact legislation placing ballot access restrictions on incumbents, including members of the Legislature, seeking reelection to state elected offices. In addition, we believe that the Legislature at least arguably is not precluded from enacting legislation imposing ballot access restrictions on incumbents seeking reelection to the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate. The U. S. Supreme Court has agreed to decide this issue in a case involving ballot access restrictions imposed by the State of Arkansas.

1. Term Limits on State Elected Officials.

"It is quite generally considered that where the constitution lays down specific eligibility requirements for a particular constitutional office the constitutional specification in that regard is exclusive, and the legislature (except where expressly authorized to do so) has no power to require additional or different qualifications for such constitutional office." Labor's Educational and Political Club - Independent v. Danforth, 561 S.W.2d 339, 343 (Mo. 1977). Accord Oklahoma State Election Bd. v. Coats, 610 P.2d 776 (Okla. 1980); Whitney v. Bolin, 85 Ariz 44, 330 P.2d 1003 (1958). See generally Annot., Legislative Power to Prescribe Qualifications for or Conditions of Eligibility to Constitutional Office, 34 A.L.R.2d 155, 171 (1954). See also Annot., Construction and Effect of Constitutional or Statutory Provisions Disqualifying One for Public Office Because of Previous Tenure of Office, 59 A.L.R.2d 716, 720 (1958) ("{W}here the qualifications for office are stated by the constitution, the legislature cannot add to them or change them by statute."); 63A Am. Jur. 2d Public Officers and Employees § 37 (1984) ("The general rule is that where the constitution establishes specific eligibility requirements for a particular constitutional office, the constitutional criteria are exclusive."). The Nebraska Supreme Court has recognized, albeit in dicta, its adherence to this general rule. State ex rel. Quinn v. Marsh, 141 Neb. 436, 439, 3 N.W.2d 892, 894 (1942) ("{I}t appears to be conceded, and it cannot be denied, that where the Constitution creates an office and enumerates the qualifications for eligibility to the office the legislature is without power to impose other conditions of eligibility."); State ex rel. Brazda v. Marsh, 141 Neb. 817, 830-31, 5 N.W.2d 206, 214 (1942) (noting the "rule almost universally recognized" that "when a state Constitution creates an office and names the qualifications of the incumbent, the legislature has no authority to prescribe additional qualifications or to remove any of the requirements provided for by the Constitution,. . . .").

We believe that, in accord with the general rule noted above, the Legislature may not constitutionally impose statutory term limits which would bar incumbent state elected officials from being reelected when the Constitution establishes the eligibility requirements for those offices. In this regard, we note that Neb. Const. art. III, § 8, which establishes the qualifications for persons to serve as legislators, provides, in part, that "{N}o person shall be eligible to the office of member of the Legislature unless on the date of the general election at which he is elected or on the date of his appointment he is a registered voter, has attained the age of twenty-one years and has resided within the district from which he is elected for the term of one year next before his election,. . . ." In addition, Neb. Const. art. IV, § 2, provides that "{n}o person shall be eligible to the office of Governor, or Lieutenant Governor, who shall not have attained the age of thirty years, and who shall not have been for five years next preceding his election a resident and citizen of this state and a citizen of the United States."[1] As to these offices, or other constitutional offices for which specific eligibility requirements are provided in the Constitution, we do not believe that the Legislature may statutorily enact term limitations which alter the eligibility requirements in the Constitution by creating an absolute bar against election to such offices.

As to those state offices which the Constitution does not establish eligibility requirements for election, however, a different rule applies. "{W}here the constitution creates an office but does not prescribe any specific qualifications for eligibility to it, the legislature has power to prescribe qualifications for such constitutional office, at least where such qualifications are reasonable and do not conflict with those prescribed by the constitution for holding office generally." Annot., 34 A.L.R.2d, supra, at 174. The Nebraska Supreme Court applied this rule in State ex rel. Quinn v. Marsh, in which it held that, because the Constitution contained no provisions establishing eligibility for members of the State Railway Commission, the Legislature was not precluded from enacting a statute establishing a citizenship and minimum age requirement for eligibility to serve on the Commission, as such were found to be reasonable qualifications for service as a Commissioner. 141 Neb. at 443-48, 3 N.W.2d at 895-98. In State ex rel. Brazda v. Marsh, the Court concluded that, because there was "no constitutional or statutory provision requiring a stated period of residence in this state as a prerequisite to lawful candidacy for the office of secretary of state, none existe{d}. . . ." 141 Neb. at 832, 5 N.W.2d at 214. (emphasis added).

Thus, as to those constitutional offices for which no eligibility requirements are contained in the Constitution, there appears to be no impediment to the Legislature's enactment of reasonable statutory criteria establishing eligibility requirements for election and service. State courts have upheld the validity of state constitutional amendments limiting the terms of state executive and legislative officials against challenges that such violate the First and Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. U.S. Term Limits, Inc. v. Hill, 316 Ark. 251, 872 S.W.2d 349 (1994), cert. granted, June 20, 1994 (No. 94-1456); Legislature of the State of California v. Eu, 54 Cal. 3d 492, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 (1991), cert. denied, ___ U.S. ___, 112 S.Ct. 1292, 117 L.Ed.2d 516 (1992). As noted by the Arkansas Supreme Court in Hill, "{i}ndividual states have limited the terms of their officeholders for decades,. . . ." 316 Ark. at ___, 872 S.W.2d at 359. Addressing the validity of a state constitutional restriction on the ability of an incumbent governor to serve beyond two consecutive terms, the Supreme Court of Appeals of West Virginia stated:

> The universal authority is that restriction upon the succession of incumbents serves a rational public policy and that, while restrictions may deny qualified men an opportunity to serve, as a general rule the over-all health of the body politic is enhanced by limitations on continuous tenure.

State ex rel. Maloney v. McCartney, 223 S.E.2d 607, 611 (W. Va.), appeal dismissed 425 U.S. 946 (1976) (citing Maddox v. Fortson, 226 Ga. 71, 172 S.E.2d 595, cert. denied, 397 U.S. 149 (1970).

The constitutionality of term limits on state elected officials is firmly established. Further, it is evident that the Legislature may establish eligibility requirements for state constitutional offices when the Constitution is silent as to such requirements, provided the requirements are not unreasonable. Therefore, we conclude that as to those constitutional offices for which the Constitution does not establish eligibility requirements, the Legislature may enact statutory term limitations on incumbents as a criteria for eligibility to election.[2]

2. Ballot Access Restrictions on Federal Officeholders.

Your question also requires us to consider whether the Legislature, by statute, may enact the "term limitations" proposed under the failed Initiative with respect to Nebraska's incumbent members of the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate. It is important to note, however, that the Initiative approved by the voters did not impose a limit on the number of terms that incumbents holding these federal offices could serve; rather, the Initiative provided that, after having served a specified number of years in these offices, incumbents could not be listed on the official ballot for reelection.

Two recent decisions have declared unconstitutional state restrictions on ballot access imposed on incumbent U.S. Senators and Representatives in Congress. Thorsted v. Gregoire, 841 F. Supp. 1068 (W.D. Wash. 1994), appeal pending (Washington statute prohibiting ballot listing of incumbent members of U.S. House of Representatives or Senate after serving specified number of years in office); U.S. Term Limits v. Hill, 316 Ark. 251, 872 S.W.2d 349, cert. granted, June 20, 1994 (Arkansas constitutional amendment prohibiting ballot listing of persons elected to specified number of terms in the U.S. House of Representatives or Senate). In each instance, the courts held that the ballot access restrictions on incumbent U.S. Senators and Representatives in Congress imposed additional qualifications for these offices in violation of U.S. Const. art. I, §§ 2 and 3. Thorsted v. Gregoire, 841 F. Supp. at 1081; U.S. Term Limits, Inc. v. Hill, 316 Ark. at ___, 872 S.W.2d at 357 (plurality opinion). The conclusion reached by the plurality opinion in Hill was concurred in by two Justices in separate opinions. Id. at ___, 872 S.W.2d at 361, 363 (Brown, J., and Dudley, J., concurring in part and dissenting in part). Two Justices, writing separately, dissented from the holding that the ballot access requirements imposed on United States Senators and Representatives were unconstitutional. Id. at 367, 368 (Hays, J., and Cracraft, C.J., concurring in part and dissenting in part). Justice Hays was of the opinion that "the United States Constitution does not prohibit additional qualifications for senators and representatives", concluding that the language of the Qualifications Clauses of Article I "indicates the qualifications are to be the minimum requirements rather than the exclusive requirements." Id. at 367. Special Chief Justice Cracraft disagreed with the majority's holding, stating that, in his opinion, the ballot access limitations did not impose additional qualifications on incumbent congressional officeholders, as they did "not impose an absolute bar on incumbent succession." Id. at 368. He further concluded that the ballot access restrictions did not violate the First and Fourteenth Amendment. Id. Review of the Arkansas Supreme Court's decision has been sought and has been granted in the United States Supreme Court.[3]

In spite of these decisions, we believe that a substantial argument may be made that state ballot access restrictions imposed on incumbent members of Congress do not create impermissible additional qualifications for the offices of U.S. Representative and Senator in contravention of U.S. Const. art. I, §§ 2 and 3. Rather, the argument can be made that ballot access restrictions of this nature are permissible under U.S. Const. art. I, § 4, which allows states to prescribe "{t}he Times, Places and Manner of holding Elections for Senators and Representatives,. . . ." See Storer v. Brown, 415 U.S. 724 (1974) (upholding California statute which provided that candidates could not file for office as independents if they had been registered as a member of a political party within one year preceding the primary election); Joyner v. Moffard, 706 F.2d 1523 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 464 U.S. 1002 (1983) (upholding Arizona constitutional provision which limited incumbents, except in their final year in office, from filing for another office, state or federal).

In Hopfmann v. Connolly, 746 F.2d 97 (1st Cir. 1984), vacated in part on other grounds, 471 U.S. 459 (1985), the court considered whether a party rule that a candidate's name could not appear on the Democratic primary ballot for U.S. Senator unless the candidate received at least fifteen percent of the vote at the party's convention unlawfully added a qualification to the office of U.S. Senator beyond the citizenship, age, and residency requirements of U.S. Const. art. I, § 3. Rejecting this contention, the court stated:

> {T}he 15 percent rule does not add a qualification that precludes Hopfmann from obtaining the office of United States Senator. The rule merely adds a restriction on who may run in the Democratic party primary for statewide political office and potentially become a party nominee. The cases cited by plaintiffs to the effect that neither Congress nor the states can add to the constitutional qualifications for office are inapposite. Cf. Powell v. McCormack, 395 U.S. 486, 547, 89 S.Ct. 1944, 1977, 23 L.Ed.2d 491 (1969).
> Unlike the additional requirements involved in the cases cited by plaintiffs, failure to comply with the 15 percent rule does not render a candidate ineligible for the office of United States Senator. An individual is free to run as the candidate of another party, as an independent, or as a write-in candidate. If he is elected and meets the requirements of Article I, Section 3, he will be qualified to take office. As the Wyoming Supreme Court stated in State v. Crane, {65 Wyo. 189} 197 P.2d 864, 871 (Wyo. 1948), the test to determine whether or not the "restriction" amounts to a "qualification" within the meaning of Article I, Section 3, is whether the candidate "could be elected if his name were written in by a sufficient number of electors."

746 F.2d at 102-03 (emphasis added).

In addition to the foregoing authority, the Nebraska Supreme Court's decision in State ex rel. O'Sullivan v. Swanson, 127 Neb. 806, 257 N.W. 255 (1934), supports the argument that ballot access provisions on incumbent federal officeholders do not impose impermissible additional qualifications for such offices. In Swanson, the relator filed under the primary laws as a candidate for Governor and the Secretary of State caused his name to be printed on the ballot as a candidate for that office at the statewide primary. The relator was defeated in the primary, and then sought to have his name placed on the ballot as a candidate nominated by petition for the office of United States Senator. The Secretary of State refused to do so, relying on a state statute providing that "{n}o candidate defeated at the primary election shall be permitted to file by petition in the general election next following." Id. at 807-08, 257 N.W. at 255. Relator challenged the validity of the statute as violative of U.S. Const. art. I, §§ 3 and 4. Rejecting this contention, the court stated: "Relator has all the qualifications for the office of senator. The state statute in no manner seeks to add other qualifications. It does not prevent him from being a candidate. It is not unconstitutional, as clearly appears from the decisions of the supreme court of the United States." Id. at 810, 257 N.W. at 256.

The constitutionality of state ballot access restrictions or actual "term limits" on incumbent members of the House of Representatives or Senate has not been definitively decided to date. Only the United States Supreme Court can provide a final answer to the question of the validity of such measures, and the Court, on June 20, 1994 agreed to consider the issue. While recognizing that some courts from other jurisdictions have found such provisions unconstitutional, we do not believe that the question is so clear that we would decline to defend a legislative enactment placing into statute ballot access restrictions similar to those contained in the Initiative Measure struck by the court in Duggan v. Beermann. We defended the constitutionality of these provisions in that case, and would defend the validity of any similar legislative enactment.

3. Conclusion.

In sum, we conclude that, with respect to state constitutional offices for which the Constitution does not establish specific eligibility requirements, the Legislature may enact statutes providing term limitations, provided such are construed as reasonable. As to those state offices for which the Constitution establishes specific eligibility requirements, the Legislature may not by statute enact term limit requirements. Such requirements would require a state constitutional amendment. The Legislature may also enact legislation placing ballot access restrictions on incumbents seeking reelection to state offices. Finally, while the power of the Legislature to impose ballot access restrictions on incumbent members of the U.S. House of Representatives and the Senate is not completely clear, we would defend any legislative enactment imposing such restrictions against constitutional challenge.

[1] A specific limitation on the eligibility of an incumbent Governor to serve after having been elected to two terms is, of course, provided by Neb. Const. art. IV, § 1 ("The Governor shall be ineligible to the office of Governor for four years next after the expiration of two consecutive terms for which he was elected."). No similar restriction, however, is placed on the office of Lieutenant Governor. The Constitution also provides that the State Treasurer "shall be ineligible to the office of treasurer, for two years next after the expiration of two consecutive terms for which he was elected." Neb. Const. art. IV, § 3.

[2] As discussed in part 2. of this opinion, infra, this does not necessarily mean that the Legislature may not enact legislation limiting ballot access to incumbent state officials seeking reelection after serving a specified number of terms. As noted below, a substantial argument can be made that ballot access restrictions imposed on incumbent officeholders do not add to or impose additional qualifications for office, but, rather, may be viewed as a legitimate regulation of the manner of conducting elections. The relevant distinction is between a statute making a person ineligible to be elected to an office, as opposed to legislation establishing the ability of a person seeking election to be listed on the official ballot as a candidate for the office. While the Legislature cannot constitutionally enact laws which absolutely bar certain incumbent state officials from reelection, it may be able to impose statutory ballot access restrictions on incumbents seeking reelection to state offices that have served a specified number of years or terms.

[3] In addition, the Nevada Supreme Court issued a writ of mandamus ordering the Nevada Secretary of State to remove from the ballot a proposed term limitation on Congressional members, relying, in part, on the unconstitutionality of such limits as violative of U.S. Const. art. I, §§ 2 and 3. Stumpf v. Lau, 839 P.2d 120 (Nev. 1992).

SUBJECT: School Physical Examinations and Immunizations

REQUESTED BY: Mark B. Horton, M.D., M.S.P.H.
Director of Health

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Lynn A. Melson, Assistant Attorney General

You have requested our opinion on three questions concerning the school physical examinations and immunizations required by Neb. Rev. Stat. §§ 79-444 through 79-444.07 (1987, Supp. 1993 and 1994 Neb. Laws LB 1223). Those questions are as follows:

1. Is a physician assistant, nurse practitioner, or a chiropractor a "qualified physician" for purposes of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-444?
2. If the physician assistant or nurse practitioner is not a "qualified physician" can he or she do the physical examination as the agent of the physician and sign the report to the board as an agent of the physician? If not, can the physician assistant or nurse practitioner perform the physical examination if the physician signs the report?

3. May a physician assistant, nurse practitioner, or a chiropractor sign a statement that in his or her opinion the immunizations required before a student can be admitted to school would be injurious to the student or to a member of the student's family or household for purposes of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-444.06? May a physician assistant or nurse practitioner make the diagnosis and sign the statement as the agent of the physician? If not, can the physician assistant or nurse practitioner perform the diagnosis if the physician signs the statement?

We conclude that the term "qualified physician" as it appears in Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-444 does not include a physician assistant, nurse practitioner, or chiropractor. We also conclude that the statement regarding immunizations referred to in § 79-44.06 must be signed by a physician rather than another health care provider. A physician assistant or nurse practitioner may be authorized to perform medical services which comprise a school physical examination and may be authorized to make an initial diagnosis regarding immunizations under the supervision of a physician. Their roles also depend on the written practice agreement or application for supervision of a physician assistant which has been filed with the Department. However, the final determinations are statutorily required to be made by a physician.

I. Qualified Physician

Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-444 provides that the board of education of any school district "shall require evidence of a physical examination by a qualified physician within six months prior to the entrance of a child into the beginner grade and the seventh grade or, in the case of a transfer from out of state, to any other grade of the local school, except that no such physical examination shall be required of any child whose parent or guardian objects in writing." (Supp. 1993). We find that the answer to your first question depends not on the scope of practice defined for a physician assistant, nurse practitioner or chiropractor, but rather on the specific language of § 79-444 which requires that this particular physical examination be performed by a qualified physician.

The term physician is not defined within Chapter 79 of the Nebraska Revised Statutes. However, the term physician is defined or described throughout other Nebraska statutes as an individual licensed to practice medicine and surgery. You are referred to, for example, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 20-403 (Supp. 1993) which separately defines "physician" and "health care provider"; § 44-2804 (1988) which defines physician as a person licensed to engage in the unlimited practice of medicine and surgery or licensed to practice osteopathic medicine and surgery; § 71-5502 (Supp. 1993) which separately defines "physician" and "approved physician surrogate"; and § 71-6813 (1990) which defines physician as a person licensed to practice medicine and surgery.

The legislature has not used the term physician so as to encompass these three health care providers. Instead, the legislature has distinguished between physicians and chiropractors in Neb. Rev. Stat. §§ 71-177 and 71-178 (1990). The legislature has chosen to define a physician assistant as a person who is approved to perform medical services under the supervision of a physician. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 71-1,107.16(4) (Supp. 1993). A nurse practitioner may perform medical functions only under the supervision of the physician or other licensed practitioner with whom he or she is associated. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 71-1721.03 (1990).

We also note a prior opinion of this office which stated that the term "qualified physician" did not include a physician assistant for purposes of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-8,133.01 (1976). 1979-1980 Rep. Att'y Gen. 265 (Opinion No. 184, dated December 26, 1979).

Under Nebraska law, where the words of a statute are plain and unambiguous, no interpretation is needed to ascertain their meaning. In the absence of anything to indicate the contrary, words will be given their ordinary meaning. Kellogg Co. v. Herrington, 216 Neb. 138, 343 N.W.2d 326 (1984). As stated by the Nebraska Supreme Court, "{R}ecognition that legislators typically vote on the language of a bill generally requires this court to assume that the legislative purpose is expressed by the ordinary meaning of the words used." Lawson v. Ford Motor Co., 225 Neb. 725, 727, 408 N.W.2d 256, 258 (1987). We believe the legislature intended, as indicated by the plain language of § 79-444, that only physical examinations by duly licensed physicians may be accepted by a board of education.

II. Role of Physician Assistants and Nurse Practitioners

Your next question is whether a physician assistant or nurse practitioner may perform the required physical examination as an agent of a physician. We conclude that the role of the physician assistant or nurse practitioner in the performance of the "school physical" is governed both by statute and by the written application for approval or written practice agreement in each case.

The laws governing physician assistants are found at Neb. Rev. Stat. §§ 71-1,107.15 through 71-1,107.30. Section 71-1,107.17 provides that a physician assistant may perform medical services under the supervision of a licensed physician in the specialty areas for which the physician assistant is trained or experienced. Thus, by statute, a physician assistant may not engage in an independent practice, but may perform medical services under the supervision and direction of a physician.

A physician who wishes to supervise a physician assistant must file an application with the Department of Health which describes the physician's practice and the way in which the physician assistant will be utilized. § 71-1,107.20. Therefore, in our opinion, the role of the physician assistant in the performance of a "school physical" will also depend upon the language of the application approved by the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Surgery. Within those limits, a physician assistant is authorized to perform medical services which comprise the "school physical." Because § 79-444 requires a physical examination by a physician, it is our opinion that the physician should make any final determinations and should sign the report which will be presented as evidence to the school.

Similarly, a nurse practitioner's authorization to perform the medical services encompassed by a "school physical" depends in part upon the written practice agreement authored and signed by the nurse practitioner and associated physician and approved by the appropriate boards. That agreement is required to describe the agreed-upon medical functions which the nurse practitioner may perform. Neb. Rev. Stat. §§ 71-1716.03 and 71-1721.01 (1990).

The medical services described in the practice agreement must, of course, fall within the scope of practice of a nurse practitioner which is defined in Neb. Rev. Stat. § 71-1721 (1990) and must be performed under the supervision of the physician named in the practice agreement. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 71-1721.03 (1990). Again, as § 79-444 requires a physical examination by a physician, the supervising physician should make the final determinations and sign the report.

III. Reports Regarding Immunizations

Your third question is whether a chiropractor, physician assistant, or nurse practitioner may make the diagnosis that certain immunizations may be injurious to a student and may sign a statement to that effect to be submitted to the school's admitting official in compliance with Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-444.06 (Supp. 1993). We first note that § 79-444.06 has an operative date of July 1, 1994. Prior to that date, it has been sufficient for the student's parent or guardian to present a written statement that he or she does not wish to have the student immunized. We conclude that the new statute requires a statement signed by a physician which reports that physician's opinion (or an affidavit stating that immunization would conflict with religious beliefs).

As in our answer to question one, we are not providing an opinion as to whether these three health care providers are competent to make such a diagnosis or whether making such a diagnosis falls within the scope of practice of these health care providers. Rather, in our opinion, the answer to your question is found within § 79-444.06. The legislature has provided certain alternatives to the general requirement of student immunization, but those alternatives must meet statutory requirements. Here, the legislature has specifically required a statement signed by a physician which states that physician's opinion.

You also ask whether a physician assistant or nurse practitioner may make the diagnosis that certain immunizations would be injurious to the health of the student or any member of the student's household. As previously discussed, both a physician assistant and nurse practitioner may perform medical services under the supervision and direction of a physician. It appears to us that physician assistants and nurse practitioners would be authorized to convey their findings and impressions to a supervising physician. However, although the physician's opinion may very well be based upon the services performed by a physician assistant or nurse practitioner, the statute in question requires a statement of the physician's opinion and we believe that it is the physician who must make the final diagnosis and sign the required statement.

Sincerely,
DON STENBERG

SUBJECT: Enforcement of Nebraska Criminal Laws Restricting Gambling Against Activities on Riverboats Conducting Casino Gambling on the Missouri River Under Iowa Law.

REQUESTED BY: The Honorable E. Benjamin Nelson, Governor

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
L. Jay Bartel, Assistant Attorney General

Recently, voters in Pottawattamie County, Iowa, approved, pursuant to Iowa law, the operation of riverboats conducting casino gambling on the Missouri River. In light of this approval, you have asked our opinion regarding what authority the State of Nebraska has to enforce its criminal laws restricting gambling activities against the conduct of riverboat gambling authorized under Iowa law "on those portions of the Missouri River which are under Nebraska jurisdiction." You also ask "what federal or state departments or agencies have been vested with the authority to enforce Nebraska jurisdiction and laws on the Missouri River?"

I. The Nebraska-Iowa Boundary Line.

The Congressional Act admitting Nebraska to statehood in 1864 established the eastern boundary of Nebraska as "the middle of the channel" of the Missouri River. 13 Stat. c. 59, § 2. An earlier act of Congress established the western boundary of the State of Iowa as "the middle of the main channel" of the Missouri River. 9 Stat. c. 82. The original congressional act admitting Iowa to statehood provided that Iowa "shall have concurrent jurisdiction on the river Mississippi, and every other river bordering" the State of Iowa, if the rivers "shall form a common boundary" with Iowa "and any other state or states now or hereafter to be formed or bounded by the same; such rivers to be common to both." 5 Stat. c. 48, § 3. In 1892, the United States Supreme Court, in an action brought by Nebraska against Iowa, held that the boundary line in the Missouri River at Carter Lake, Iowa, was to be located based on application of the principle that the boundary "is a varying line" so far as affected by "changes of diminution and accretion in the mere washing of the waters of the stream," but not where the river is shifted by avulsion. In the case of avulsion, the Court stated that "{b}y this selection of a new channel the boundary was not changed, and it remained as it was prior to the avulsion, the center line of the old channel;. . . . unless the waters of the river returned to their former bed, {such center line} became a fixed and unvarying boundary, no matter what might be the changes of the river in its new channel." Nebraska v. Iowa, 143 U.S. 359, 370 (1892). The Court, referring to the change of course of the channel of the river, leaving the Iowa community of Carter Lake on the western side of the Missouri, stated "that in 1877, the river above Omaha, which had pursued a course in the nature of an ox-bow, suddenly cut through the neck of the bow and made for itself a new channel." Id. Finding that this change in course of the Missouri came within the "law of avulsion", the Court found that the boundary between the states remained the center line of the old channel.

In 1943, the State of Nebraska and Iowa agreed by compact to a permanent location of the boundary line "by adopt{ing} {the} line at Carter Lake, and for the rest of the boundary line fix{ing} the line 'in the middle of the main channel of the Missouri River', defined as the 'center line of the proposed stabilized channel of the Missouri River as established by the United States engineers' office, Omaha, Nebraska,. . . ." Nebraska v. Iowa, 406 U.S. 117, 119-20 (1972); Iowa-Nebraska Boundary Compact of 1943; 57 Stat. 494. Thus, with respect to your particular question concerning the Nebraska-Iowa boundary in relation to Pottawattamie County, Iowa, the boundary line is generally the middle of the main channel of the Missouri River, except the boundary line does extend west of the current river channel into Carter Lake, Iowa.[1]

II. Nebraska's Authority to Enforce its Criminal Laws Against Offenses Committed Within Its Boundaries.

The general rule regarding the authority of a state to enforce its criminal laws against offenses on rivers forming state boundaries is stated in 22 C.J.S. Criminal Law § 163 (1989) as follows:

> Unless the boundaries are otherwise legally fixed, the center of the navigable channel of a river separating two states determines the territorial jurisdiction of crimes committed on the river waters, except where by constitutional provision, by act of Congress, or by compact between both states are given concurrent jurisdiction over the waters.

In Miller v. McLaughlin, 118 Neb. 174, 224 N.W. 18 (1929), aff'd 281 U.S. 261 (1930), the Nebraska Supreme Court considered whether Nebraska could be enjoined from enforcing a statute making it unlawful to take fish from waters of the State of Nebraska with nets, traps, or seines. Miller, a Nebraska resident, asserted that Nebraska could not prevent him from possessing and using such equipment on the west side of the Missouri river, within Nebraska's boundary, because Iowa permitted the ownership and use of such fishing equipment. Miller contended that, as Congress had granted Nebraska and Iowa "concurrent jurisdiction" over the river, Nebraska could not enforce its law on Missouri River waters in Nebraska between the middle of the main channel to the Nebraska bank. 118 Neb. at 176-77, 224 N.W. at 19-20. Rejecting this contention, the Nebraska Supreme Court stated:

> The jurisdiction of Nebraska is not limited to the western bank of the river, unless the restriction is imposed by the words 'shall have concurrent jurisdiction' as they appear in {5 Stat. c. 48, § 3}. The meaning of the expression has been the subject of judicial discussion and some diversity of opinion. The better view seems to be that those words do not prevent one state from exercising generally civil and criminal jurisdiction over that part of the river within her own boundaries. The power to make treaties has been committed to the federal government and not to individual states. One state cannot require another to unite in treaties, laws, contracts, or compacts. If Iowa and Nebraska, with a common boundary in the Missouri river, do not agree on public policy or on methods of exercising concurrent jurisdiction granted by Congress, the river is not for that reason a zone without police protection, where offenses known to criminal law may be committed with impunity. The exigency of preserving order along the border does not necessarily await the concurrent action of two states. Their interests may conflict and they may never agree. The concurrent jurisdiction authorized by Congress is not 'over' or 'in' the river, but 'on' the river. Each state, as to river waters within her own boundaries, has rights and powers not committed to the adjoining state.

118 Neb. at 177-78, 224 N.W. at 20.

The United States Supreme Court affirmed the decision of the Nebraska Supreme Court. 281 U.S. at 264. The Court noted that "{t}he grant of concurrent jurisdiction {did} not deprive Nebraska of power to legislate with respect to its own residents within its own territorial limits." Id. at 263. It further stated:

> While the two states have not concurred in this legislation, there is no conflict between them. Each has legislated only as to that part of the river which is within its own territorial limits. It is unnecessary to consider questions which might arise if Nebraska undertook to prohibit the fishing on Iowa's part of the river, or if Miller were a citizen of Iowa and fished under an Iowa license.

Id.

The decision in Miller v. McLaughlin confirms that Nebraska may enforce its laws as to activities conducted within its boundaries. The states retain exclusive authority and control up to their respective boundaries, free from interference by the other. Smith v. State, 64 Wash. 2d 323, 391 P.2d 718 (1964); Smoot v. Fischer, 248 S.W.2d 38 (Mo. Ct. App. 1952). Nebraska does not, of course, have jurisdiction to enforce its laws against acts done by express license of Iowa within the boundaries of the State of Iowa. Nielsen v. Oregon, 212 U.S. 383 (1909). While it could be argued that Miller is distinguishable to the extent Nebraska may seek to enforce its laws against non-Nebraska citizens or residents, we do not believe this distinction is significant.

Nebraska can certainly enforce its criminal laws against non-citizens or non-residents who commit crimes within its borders. Thus, we conclude that Nebraska has jurisdiction to enforce its criminal laws restricting gambling activities within its boundaries.

III. Authorities Responsible for Enforcement of Nebraska Law,

While your question is not specific, we assume your principal concern is the enforcement of Nebraska criminal statutes prohibiting certain gambling activities. See Neb. Rev. Stat. §§ 28-1101 to 1117 (1989, Cum. Supp. 1992, and Supp. 1993). Enforcement of these criminal statutes would be undertaken in the same manner as Nebraska criminal laws are generally enforced, primarily through the respective county sheriffs, and, if criminal prosecutions are instituted, through the appropriate county attorney. The boundaries of Nebraska counties bordering the Missouri river extend "to the eastern boundary line of the State of Nebraska as established by the Iowa-Nebraska Boundary Compact of 1943;. . . ." See Neb. Rev. Stat. § 22-128 (1991) (Douglas County); § 22-177 (Sarpy County); § 22-189 (Washington County). Neb. Rev. Stat. § 29-1301 (1989) generally provides that criminal actions must be brought in the county in which the offense is committed. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 29-1301.02 (1989) provides that venue for criminal offenses "committed in this state, on board a vessel navigating a river. . . may be tried in any county through, on, or over which the vessel. . . passes in the course of its voyage or trip, or in which the voyage or trip terminates." Thus, enforcement of Nebraska criminal statutes involving illegal gambling within the state's borders would be the responsibility of those persons generally responsible for the enforcement of Nebraska's criminal laws.

[1] It is our understanding that the boundary line established by the 1943 compact, referencing the "middle of the main channel", does not equate, at all points on the river, to the actual stabilized channel. Nebraska nevertheless recognizes the line established by the location of the proposed main channel set forth by the 1943 boundary as the boundary line between the states, to the extent this line differs from the actual course of the river following efforts to stabilize the channel.

Very truly yours,

SUBJECT: Constitutionality of Open Burning Ban As Applied to Ceremonial Sweat Lodge Fires

REQUESTED BY:	Michael R. Durst State Fire Marshal
WRITTEN BY:	Don Stenberg, Attorney General Steve Grasz, Deputy Attorney General

You have requested an Attorney General's Opinion concerning the applicability of Nebraska's statewide open burning ban to "an open fire which heats stones for an Indian ceremonial sweat lodge."

Question Presented

Whether Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 may be applied, under the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment or other applicable law, to prohibit open fires used to heat stones for Native American sweat lodges.

Discussion

Nebraska law provides for a "statewide open burning ban on all bonfires, outdoor rubbish fires and fires for the purpose of clearing land." Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 (1994 Neb. Laws LB 408, § 1). The statute provides that the "fire chief of a local fire department or his or her designee may waive an open burning ban . . . for an area under his or her jurisdiction by issuing an open burning permit to a person requesting permission to conduct open burning." § 81-520.01(2). The statute further provides that the "fire chief of a local fire department or his or her designee may waive the open burning ban in his or her jurisdiction when conditions are acceptable to the chief or his or her designee." §81-520.01(3).

Since Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 provides that "{t}here shall be a statewide open burning ban on all bonfires, outdoor rubbish fires, and fires for the purpose of clearing land." (emphasis added), a sweat lodge fire must, therefore, be a "bonfire" in order to come under the open burning ban.

Definition of Bonfire

The open burning ban statute contains no definition of the word "bonfire." Webster's Encyclopedic Unabridged Dictionary of the English Language (1989 ed.) defines "bonfire" as "1. a large fire in the open air, for warmth, entertainment, or celebration, to burn leaves, garbage, etc., or as a signal. 2. any fire built in the open." (Emphasis added). Webster's Third New International Dictionary (1981 ed.) defines "bonfire" as "1. a large public fire in which bones or bones and wood were traditionally burned," "a funeral pyre," "a fire in which heretics or officially proscribed articles . . . were publicly burned," "2. a great open-air fire kindled to mark a religious anniversary . . . or to highlight some public event," "3. an open-air fire in which waste paper, leaves, brush, or other rubbish is burned." (Emphasis added).

Two legislative bills formed what was codified as Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 prior to its amendment in 1994. On January 31, 1980, Senator Hefner introduced LB 810, which gave the State Fire Marshall the authority to prohibit bonfires, outdoor rubbish fires, and fire for clearing land by issuing a statewide or regional ban when atmospheric or local conditions made such fires dangerous. In his testimony before the committee, Fire Marshall Barnett was asked by Senator Merz for an explanation of "open burning," to which Mr. Barnett replied,

> Well, I don't know if I have a definition, I know what it is, but I wouldn't know how to define it. Open burning is where it's not involved with an incinerator containment. Open burning could be a bonfire, it could be classified as trash fire, ditches. . . .

Committee Records on LB 810, 86th Neb. Leg., 2nd Sess. p.5 (January 30, 1980).

On February 11, 1982, LB 790 was introduced to create a statewide ban on opening burning and leave it to local fire districts to waive the ban at their discretion. It was seen as a needed modification of the system enacted with the passage of LB 810. During questioning before the Government, Military and Veteran's Affairs Committee, the following exchange took place between Senator Goll and Fire Marshall Wally Barnett:

> SENATOR GOLL: For my information, would you tell me what an outdoor rubbish fire, what makes that up?
> WALLY BARNETT: It could be stump clearing. It could be land clearing. It could be any type of burning, you clean out maybe three or four barns and you clean up some land around the house and stuff like that.
> SENATOR GOLL: What about burning leaves in the fall?
> WALLY BARNETT: It would be the same thing, be the same thing. But usually a leaf burning situation is nothing as serious as your open land or your rubbish burning that they have.

Committee Records on LB 790, 87th Neb. Leg., 2nd Sess. p.9, (Feb. 11, 1982).

With the above testimony and definitions in mind, it is necessary to examine the nature of sweat lodge fires. The Handbook of American Indians North of Mexico, Part 2, Frederick Webb Hodge ed. (1912) at 660-661, describes the traditional sweat lodge fire in this way:

> Few practices were so nearly universal among the Indians as the sweat-bath, probably known to every tribe N. of Mexico, although along the N.W. coast of S. of the Eskimo territory it seems to have been superseded by bathing in the sea. The sweat-lodge is to this day common in most Indian villages and camps.
> The type of the ordinary sweat-house seems to have been everywhere the same. Willow rods or other pliant stems were stuck into the ground and bent and fastened with withes into a hemispherical or oblong framework, which generally was large enough to accommodate several persons. A hole was dug conveniently near the door into which stones, usually heated outside, were dropped by means of forked sticks. These were sprinkled with water to generate steam. A temporary covering of blankets or skins made the inclosure tight. This was the sweat-house in its simplest form. The Delawares of Pennsylvania, according to Loskiel (Hist. Miss. United Breth,, pt. 1, 108-9, 1794) in the 18th century had "in > every town an oven, situated at some distance from the dwellings, built either of stakes and boards covered with sods, or dug in the side of a hill and heated with some red-hot stones."

See also Handbook of North American Indians, Volume 11, Warran D'Azevedo ed. (1986) at 350 ("A sweat house was heated with rocks carried from a fire outside.").

Based on the above definitions and descriptions, we conclude that a Native American sweat lodge fire is a "bonfire" for purposes of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01. Consequently, it is necessary to examine whether § 81-520.01 may be applied to prohibit sweat lodge fires.

The Free Exercise Clause

The refusal of local fire authorities to allow open sweat lodge fires, pursuant to Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01, would clearly implicate the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment. The First Amendment prohibits government from making any law "prohibiting the free exercise" of religion. U.S. Const. Amend. I. The Free Exercise Clause, like the Establishment Clause, applies not only to the federal government but also to the states and their political subdivisions via the Fourteenth Amendment.

Free Exercise Clause analysis was performed, until recently, under a test derived from Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205 (1972). The test which emerged from Yoder includes the following elements: (1) the nature of the belief or conduct motivated by the belief, (2) the nature of the burden imposed by the state regulation on the exercise of such belief or conduct, (3) the nature of the interest that is promoted by the regulation, and (4) the nature of the harm to the state's interest if the asserted free exercise claim is allowed. Id. at 215-21.

Under the Yoder test, if a state statute or regulation is to survive a challenge that it interferes with the exercise of a legitimate religious belief, the state must show either (1) that the statute or regulation does not deny the free exercise of religious belief, or (2) that the state's interest is sufficiently compelling to override the claimed religious interest. Id. at 214.

In Employment Division v. Smith, 494 U.S. 872 (1990), the U.S. Supreme Court drastically altered the landscape of free exercise jurisprudence. In Smith, two members of the Native American Church were denied unemployment benefits after being fired from their jobs as drug counselors because they used the illegal drug peyote during a church ceremony. The church members claimed that the denial of unemployment benefits was an unconstitutional burden on the free exercise of their religion. Smith, 494 U.S. at 874-76. The Oregon Supreme Court said it could not, under the first amendment, prohibit the use of peyote during a religious ceremony or withhold unemployment benefits from those who were fired for doing so. See Smith v. Employment Division, 763 P.2d 146 (Ore. 1988); Michael v. McConnell, Free Exercise Revisionism and the Smith Decision, 57 U. Chi. L. Rev. 1109, 1110 (1990). The United States Supreme Court, however, reversed the Oregon court and thereby rejected the application of the compelling interest test for most first amendment free exercise challenges.

The critical language in Smith is found in the Court's reference to laws that are "neutral" and "generally applicable."

> {I}f prohibiting the exercise of religion . . . is not the object of the {law} but merely the incidental effect of a generally applicable and otherwise valid provision, the First Amendment has not been offended. . . . We have never held that an individual's religious beliefs excuse him from compliance with an otherwise valid law prohibiting conduct that the state is free to regulate.

Smith, 494 U.S. at 878-79.

The Court, in Smith, found that the Oregon statute was not specifically directed at religious practice (i.e. the law was "neutral") and was deemed constitutional as generally applied to others who used peyote for nonreligious purposes (i.e. the law was "generally applicable"). Id. at 878. The plaintiffs contended that it was impermissible to require an individual to observe a generally applicable law that requires or forbids him to perform an act that his religion forbids or compels. Id. The Court, however, disagreed, citing decisions that "have consistently held that the right of free exercise does not relieve an individual of the obligation to comply with a 'valid and neutral law of general applicability on the ground that the law proscribes (or prescribes) conduct that his religion prescribes (or proscribes)' ". Id. at 879, citing U.S. v. Lee, 455 U.S. 252, 263 n.3 (1982) (Stevens, J., concurring).

The Smith Court said it would not apply the compelling interest test announced in Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398 (1963), to require exemption from a generally applicable criminal law, and declared that the compelling interest test for infringement on religiously motivated conduct had "nothing to do" with "across-the-board criminal prohibition on a particular form of conduct." Smith, 494 U.S. at 884.

The court's decision in Smith was recently revisited in Church of the Lukumi Babalu Aye v. City of Hialeah, 113 S.Ct. 2217 (1993). In Hialeah, certain city ordinances directed to prohibit the religious sacrifice of animals by members of the Santeria religion were declared to be invalid on free exercise grounds. Following its earlier decision in Smith, the court declared that "a law that is neutral and of general applicability need not be justified by a compelling government interest even if the law has the incidental effect of burdening a particular religious practice. Id. at 2226. The court found that the Hialeah ordinances failed to satisfy the Smith requirements, were therefore subject to strict scrutiny, and held to be unconstitutional. Id. A law that fails to satisfy the Smith requirements of neutrality and general applicability, said the Court, may only be "justified by a compelling government interest and must be narrowly tailored to advance that interest. Id. Under Hialeah, a law must be both neutral and generally applicable to escape free exercise strict scrutiny analysis, because "{n}eutrality and general applicability are interrelated, and . . . failure to satisfy one requirement is a likely indication that the other has not been satisfied. Id. Hialeah seems to define a law as "neutral" if it does not specifically target a religious belief or practice for distinctive treatment, officially disapprove of a particular religion or religion in general, or discriminate against some or all religious beliefs, regulate or prohibit conduct, solely because of belief or conduct is religiously motivated. Id. at 2226-27.

"General applicability" seems to be violated if society appears by law to impose restrictions on some which it is unwilling to require on all. Id. at 2233. In other words, a law cannot be "selective", by imposing burdens on religiously motivated conduct, but not on the same conduct which is not religiously motivated. See, id. at 2232. A law burdening religious practice that is not neutral or not of general application must undergo the "most rigorous of scrutiny", and will survive such scrutiny only rarely. Id. at 2233. Strict scrutiny in that instance "really means what it says." Id.

Under Smith and Hialeah, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 appears to be a neutral and generally applicable law, to which criminal penalties are attached. (Violation of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 is a Class IV misdemeanor). Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.02 (1994 Neb. Laws LB 408, § 2). Under Smith and Hialeah, if a law burdens the free exercise of religion, it may be subject to a strict scrutiny or compelling interest analysis in only three instances: (1) if the law is not "neutral", (2) if the law is not "generally applicable," or (3) if the free exercise interest involved is also contained with another constitutional interest such as freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the right of parents to direct the upbringing of their children or freedom of association. Smith, 494 U.S. at 881-82.

In Alabama and Coushatta Tribes of Texas v. Big Sandy School District, 817 F.Supp. 1319 (E.D.Tex. 1993), the free exercise challenge of Native American students to a public school hair code was combined with both a free speech claim and a parental rights claim. The Court in Big Sandy concluded that since the Native American students had established a substantial likelihood of success on the merits of their case, they were entitled to a preliminary injunction against enforcement of the hair regulation. Id. at 1336. As applied to Indian sweat lodge fires, it is arguable that free speech and association claims are also implicated, which would remove the open burning ban from Smith and trigger a strict scrutiny analysis of the statute under the Smith "hybrid" exception. See also, Richard F. Duncan, Who Wants to Stop the Church: Homosexual Rights Legislation, Public Policy, and Religious Freedom, 69 Notre Dame L. Rev. 393, 431 (1994).

The Religious Freedom Restoration Act

In light of the virtual emasculation of the Free Exercise Clause by the Supreme Court, the most important consideration in determining whether Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 may be used to prohibit sweat lodge fires is a new federal statute. On November 16, 1993, President Clinton signed the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993 (RFRA). 42 U.S.C. § 2000bb to 2000bb-4 (Supp. 1994). It was enacted in direct response to the Court's decision in Smith, and it seeks to "restore the compelling interest test set forth in Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398 (1963) and Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205 (1972) and to guarantee its application in all cases where the free exercise of religion is substantially burdened. RFRA, 42 U.S.C. § 2000bb(b) (Supp. 1994).

Specifically, the statute requires that government "shall not substantially burden a person's exercise of religion even if the burden results from a rule of general applicability, and the government may only do so "if it demonstrates that the application of the burden to the person (1) is in furtherance of a compelling government interest; and (2) is the least restrictive means of furthering that compelling government interest." RFRA, 42 U.S.C. § 2000bb-1(a),(b).

RFRA is expressly intended to legislatively "overrule" the Smith decision. Professor Douglas Laycock notes that RFRA was "an effort {on the part of Congress} to enact the theory that free exercise of religion is a substantive civil liberty", and "an attempt to create a statutory right to the free exercise of religion, pursuant to Congress' power under Section 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment to enforce the Fourteenth Amendment and therefore presumably to enforce all the rights incorporated in the Fourteenth Amendment. Douglas Laycock, Free Exercise and the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, 62 Fordham L. Rev. 883, 895 (1994). In contrast, the Court in Smith has adopted a "non-discrimination, formal-equal-treatment view of religious liberty. Id. at 896.

It remains to be seen how the U.S. Supreme Court will respond to free exercise challenges under RFRA. It also remains to be seen under RFRA how the Court will interpret what kind of burden on the free exercise of religion will be "substantial" enough to require a compelling interest justification.

A handful of lower courts have addressed free exercise challenges under RFRA, and none have overruled the Act or challenged its validity. See Rust v. Clarke, ___ F.Supp. ___, 1994 WL 157662 (D.Neb. 1994) (prison inmate at Nebraska State Penitentiary); Lawson v. Dugger, 844 F.Supp. 1538 (S.D.Fla. 1994) (prison inmate); Allah v. Menei, 844 F.Supp. 1056 (E.D.Pa. 1994) (prison inmate); Western Presbyterian Church v. Board of Zoning Adjustment, ___ F.Supp. ___, 1994 WL 145033 (D.D.C. 1994) (Zoning); Campos v. Coughlin, ___ F.Supp. ___, No. 94 Civ. 1057(SS) (S.D.N.Y. 1994) (prison inmate); In Re Faulkner, 165 B.R. 644 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 1994) (bankruptcy); Rodriguez v. Couglin, 1994 WL 174298 (S.D.N.Y. 1994) (prison inmate); Scarpino v. Grosshiem, ___ F.Supp. ___, 1994 WL 200781 (S.D. Iowa 1994).

In Canedy v. Boardman, 16 F.3d 183 (7th Cir. 1994), the court stated in a footnote,

> While a religion-based allegation does not appear in his complaint, in Canedy's brief he asserts that having his naked body exposed to female guards particularly burdens him because he is a Muslim, and Islam has a very strong nudity taboo. He therefore indicates that he may seek to amend his complaint to assert a violation of his rights under the free exercise clause of the First > Amendment. We note that until recently, such a complaint would appear to challenge a religiously "neutral, generally applicable" practice, and therefore be doomed to fail under Employment Division v. Smith, 494 U.S. 872, 110 S.Ct. 1595, 108 L.Ed.2d 876 (1990). But the President recently signed into law the Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA), Pub.L. No. 103-141, 107 Stat. 1488 (1993). That legislation purports to reverse Smith, declaring that "Government shall not substantially burden a person's exercise of religion even if the burden results from a rule of general applicability," unless it "is in the furtherance of a compelling government interest" and "is the least restrictive means of furthering that compelling interest." {42 U.S.C. § 2000bb-1(a), (b) (Supp. 1994). The constitutionality of this legislation-surely not before us here-raises a number of questions involving the extent of Congress's powers under Section 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment.

Canedy, 16 F.3d at 187 n.2.

Conclusion

We conclude the application of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 to Native American sweat lodge fires must be analyzed under the compelling interest standard announced in the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993. One court, for example, stated in Lawson v. Dugger, 844 F.Supp. 1538, 1542 (S.D. Fla. 1994): "In the absence of a constitutional challenge to the Act, this Court finds no legitimate reason to not apply RFRA to this case." RFRA, by its very terms, "applies to all Federal and State law, and the implementation of that law, whether statutory or otherwise, and whether adopted before or after the enactment of this Act." RFRA, 42 U.S.C. § 2000bb-3 (Supp. 1994) (emphasis added).

The compelling interest inquiry under RFRA consists of two parts: (1) whether Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 as applied to prohibit Indian sweat lodge fires, even under adverse atmospheric conditions, is in furtherance of a compelling government interest, and (2) whether it is the least restrictive means of furthering that compelling government interest. RFRA, 42 U.S.C. § 2000bb-1(b) (Supp. 1994). RFRA should also be read in conjunction with Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205 (1972), and the four-part balancing test announced there, and approved in RFRA.

The Indian sweat lodge ceremony is obviously motivated by a sincerely held religious belief. The sweat lodge ceremony is central to the religion of the plains Indians, and it has been observed for many years. In Indian Inmates of Nebraska Penitentiary v. Gunter, 660 F.Supp. 394 (1987), aff'd by Sapa Najin v. Gunter, 857 F.2d 463 (1988), the Court, per Urbom, J., gave the following description of the sweat lodge ceremony, as it is celebrated by the plains Indians.

> The Sioux people are divided linguistically into the Dakota, Nakota and Lakota, and politically into the seven tribal fires. The sun dance, vision quest, and sweat lodge are among the seven sacred rites common to the Dakota, Nakota, and Lakota. Sapa-Najin is a sincere follower of the Nakota ways, and believes that God is > the "great mystery" who gave the sacred pipe and the sacred rites. He seeks to follow the "good red road" or sacred way, viewing life as a purification ceremony for the after-life.

> The sweat lodge ceremony was the first rite given to the Nakota; it is preparation for all other rites as well as a rite in itself. During sweat lodge ceremonies, participants experience physical and spiritual purification and are "reborn" into harmony through the use of gifts from the helpers and powers that aid in prayer to the great mystery.

660 F.Supp. at 395 (emphasis added).

By denying permission to burn the fire which is essential to its observance, the State would be effectively prohibiting its Native American adherents from observing the ceremony at all. This burden on the free exercise of religion would appear to be clearly "substantial" under RFRA and under the balancing test in Yoder.

The nature of the State's asserted interest in banning the sweat lodge fire, especially under certain atmospheric conditions, is arguably that of preventing serious and potentially catastrophic damage to persons or property from an open fire that escapes and spreads uncontrollably to its surrounding environs. This interest is surely significant, but in this case, it does not appear to be "compelling." The state's interest here is arguably not significantly harmed if the sweat lodge observance is allowed, because the fire used during the ceremony is carefully contained and closely watched. See Indian Inmates, 660 F.Supp. 394, 395 (D.Neb. 1987), aff'd by Sapa Najin v. Gunter, 857 F.2d 463 (8th Cir. 1988).

As the Court stated in Yoder, 406 U.S. at 214, "The essence of all that has been said and written on the subject is that only those interests of the highest order and those not otherwise served can overbalance legitimate claims to the free exercise of religion". This is the expression of the compelling interest test that RFRA seeks to affirm. RFRA, 42 U.S.C. § 2000bb(b) (Supp. 1994). See also Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398, 406 ("It is basic that no showing merely of a rational relationship to some colorable state interest would suffice; in this highly sensitive constitutional area, '{o}nly the greatest abuses endangering paramount interests, give occasion for permissible limitation; Thomes v. Collins, 323 U.S. 516, 530"). The Sherbert test is also cited with favor in RFRA. 42 U.S.C. § 2000bb(b) (Supp. 1994).

Even if the State interest is seen as compelling in this instance, there are still less restrictive means available to the State in furthering its interest in public safety and the environment. If the statute is to be applied at all, the local fire chief or his or her designee must adopt reasonable requirements, for use under dangerous weather conditions, that would not impair the free exercise rights of Native American religion adherents, while ensuring against the burning of an unreasonably dangerous fire. See 1994 Neb. Laws LB 408, § 1 (amending § 81-520.01 to authorize the local fire chief to adopt rules and regulations listing the conditions acceptable for issuing a permit to conduct open burning).

In summary, application of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-520.01 to prohibit Native American sweat lodge fires would violate the Religious Freedom Restoration Act. At most, local fire authorities could adopt reasonable requirements under the statute to ensure public safety during the use of such fires.[1]

Opinion No. 94050

DATE:	June 24, 1994
SUBJECT:	LB 1351 - Constitutionality of Sanctioning Parent for Crimes of Child
REQUESTED BY:	Senator Eric J. Will
WRITTEN BY:	Don Stenberg, Attorney General Barry Waid, Assistant Attorney General

The act embodied in LB 1351 appears to be an attempt to make parents take more responsibility for the activities of their minor children. The ultimate goal of the legislation would appear to be aimed at discouraging various forms of undesirable conduct on the part of children. The major portion of the proposed legislation seeks to do this by requiring parents of children who have gotten into trouble to avail themselves of public or private child service organizations.

The U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly held that the state and federal governments cannot deprive citizens of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. Meyer v. Nebraska, 262 U.S. 390 (1923). The due process clause provides both procedural and substantive due process protections. Pierce v. Society of Sisters, 268 U.S. 510 (1925). Both Meyer and Pierce involve state statutes that interfered with the ability of parents to choose how to best educate their children. In Meyer, the U.S. Supreme Court found that the Fifth and Fourteenth amendments' guarantee that citizens would not be deprived of liberty without due process and that liberty includes the right to raise one's children. Meyer v. Nebraska, supra at 399 (educating children in a foreign language). In Pierce, the Court found that the "liberty of parents and guardians to direct the upbringing and education of children under their control" denied the state the power to force children to attend public schools. Pierce v. Society of Sisters, supra.

On the other hand, the state is not without constitutional control over parental discretion in dealing with children when their physical or mental health is jeopardized. Parham v. J.R., 442 U.S. 584, 61 L.Ed.2d 101, 99 S.Ct. 2493 (1979). The family is not beyond regulation by the state in the public interest and the rights of parenthood are not beyond limitation. Prince v. Commonwealth of Massachusetts, 321 U.S. 158 at 166 (1944). The state as parens patriae and within the police powers of the state may restrict the parent's control Prince v. Commonwealth of Massachusetts, supra at 166; Meyer v. Nebraska, supra at 400; Sturges & Burn Mfg. Co. v. Beauchamp, 231 U.S. 320 (1913) (regulating or prohibiting child labor); Jacobsen v. Massachusetts, 197 U.S. 11 (1905) (compulsory vaccination of children); People v. Pierson, 176 N.Y. 201, 68 N.E. 243 (1903) (exposing the community or children to communicable diseases); State v. Baily, 157 Ind. 324, 61 N.E. 730 (1901) (requiring school attendance).

While earlier case law infrequently addresses the rights of children, more recent U.S. Supreme Court cases have recognized children's rights. In Re Gault, 387 U.S. 1, 87 S.Ct. 1428, 18 L.Ed.2d 527 (1967). In 1979, the U.S. Supreme Court recognized the liberty interest of children in not being subjected to unnecessary medical or psychological treatment. Parham v. J.R., 442 U.S. 601, 61 L.Ed.2d 101, 99 S.Ct. 2493 at 2503 (1979).

Sections 4 through 6

1. Sections 4 through 6 of the proposed legislation do not on their face violate the Due Process or Equal Protection Clauses of the U.S. Constitution or the Due Process Clause of the Nebraska Constitution as being an arbitrary or unreasonable infringement of the liberty interests of parents or their children. The legislation does not on its face unreasonably or arbitrarily subject children to remedial social service programs. It does not unreasonably and arbitrarily subject parents to criminal sanctions for failing to appear for the court appearances of their children and for failing to address their children's criminal behavior by availing themselves of public or private social service resources.

The established doctrine is that liberty may not be interfered with under the guise of protecting the public interest by legislative action which is arbitrary or without reasonable relation to some purpose within the competency of the state to effect. Meyer v. State of Nebraska, 262 U.S. 390, 43 S.Ct. 625 at 627 (1923). The proposed legislation is aimed at requiring parents to take responsible action in order to address the criminal behavior of their children. Case law does not suggest that the types of measures proposed would be arbitrary or without reasonable relation to some purpose within the competency of the state to effect. A number of courts have upheld the constitutionality of provisions likewise imposing criminal sanctions upon parents for failing to address the criminal behavior of their children. City of Eastlake v. Ruggerio, 7 Ohio App.2d 212, 220 N.E.2d 126 (1966) (criminal sanctions upon parent for allowing child to violate curfew); People v. Walton, 161 P.2d 498 (1945) (parents criminally responsible for allowing child to violate curfew); Commonwealth v. Slavski, 245 Mass. 405, 140 N.E. 465 (1923) (parents sanctioned for allowing children to sell alcohol). The critical requirement of these cases is that criminal liability may not be imposed upon parents unless there is a voluntary act or voluntary omission to perform an act of which the parents are physically capable of performing. State v. Akers, 400 A.2d 381 (1979) (holding parents criminally liable for the unlawful operation of off-road vehicles without reference to voluntary acts or omissions of parents violated due process); State v. Rackowski, 86 A. 606 (1913) (holding it impermissible to criminally sanction parent without evidence she knowingly consented to her children breaking quarantine law). Criminal sanctions may not be imposed upon parents merely, because of their "status" as parents. Robinson v. State of California, 370 U.S. 660, 82 S.Ct. 1417 (1962); Powell v. State of Texas, 392 U.S. 651, 88 S.Ct. 2145 (1968).

Sections 4 through 6 of the proposed legislation may be subject to constitutional challenge as applied depending on the type of "social service support" deemed "appropriate." There are two approaches to challenging the constitutionality of a criminal statute, a facial challenge and a challenge based on the statute's application to a particular defendant. State v. Valencia, 205 Neb. 719 at 727, 290 N.W.2d 181 (1980); State v. Saulsbury, 243 Neb. 227 at 230, 498 N.W.2d 338 (1993). The statute may be subject to constitutional challenge as applied to a particular subject. For example, if the type of "social service support" deemed "appropriate" was in-patient treatment in a psychiatric institution, the statute may be subject to due process attacks under both the Nebraska and U.S. constitutions as an arbitrary and unreasonable infringement upon either the rights of the child or the parents or both. Parham v. J.R., 442 U.S. 584 at 604-608 (1979). This determination would have to be made on a case by case basis and cannot be addressed further in this opinion.

2. Portions of Sections 4 through 6 are vague and overbroad and, consequently, violative of due process. Vagueness is a constitutional vice conceptually distinct from overbreadth. State v. Copple, 224 Neb. 672, 401 N.W.2d 141 (1987). A crime must be defined with sufficient definiteness and there must be ascertainable standards of guilt to inform those subject thereto as to what conduct will render them liable to punishment. State v. Valencia, 205 Neb. 719 at 723, 290 N.W.2d 181 at (1980). There is no question, but that to meet the due process requirements of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution, a penal statute must be sufficiently clear so that a person of ordinary intelligence has fair notice of exactly what conduct is forbidden. State v. Burke, 225 Neb. 625, 408 N.W.2d 239 (1987); Kolender v. Lawson, 461 U.S. 352 (1983).

A statute which is clear and precise, and therefore not vague, may nonetheless fail to pass constitutional muster by virtue of being overbroad in the sense that it prohibits the exercise of constitutionally protected conduct. State v. Copple, supra. A penal statute has to be given sensible construction in the context of the object sought to be accomplished, the evils and mischief sought to be remedied, and the purpose sought to be served. State v. Burke, supra at 634.

The word "involved" is both vague and overbroad as used in Section 4. The term "arrest" is overbroad. The term involved means "not easily understood, intricate, complicated; or implicated, affected, or committed." Webster's New World Dictionary, 2nd Ed. (1982). The fact that a child is "involved" in one of the enumerated offenses triggers the parent's or guardian's obligation to invoke the assistance of public or private social service organizations. Yet, the child's conduct in fact or the parent's or guardian's view of the conduct may be that the involvement was not culpable. Innocuous or even laudatory involvement in some incident on the part of the child would not put parents or guardians on notice of a need to contact social service organizations. The term "arrested" would allow for prosecution of parents or guardians whose children were not ultimately found guilty of criminal conduct. It is not clear from the statute that the parents or guardians of those children without culpable involvement are relieved from the statutory requirements. Consequently, the term does not give parents and guardians sufficient notice of what conduct will render them liable for punishment. It could also subject people innocent of culpable conduct to criminal prosecutions for having failed to take unnecessary action to involve others in the upbringing of their children. The statutory defect could be cured by removing the words "involved in, or arrested for, or" on p.1707, line 7.

The language in Section 4 providing that unaccounted absences or late night absences shall put parents on notice is also vague and overbroad. First, the statute does not set out a clear standard for determining the proscribed conduct. The statute presumes that "unaccounted late night absences away from home" put parents on notice their children are involved in the enumerated criminal acts. "A statutory presumption cannot be sustained if there be no rational connection between the fact proved and the ultimate fact presumed, if the inference of the one from proof of the other is arbitrary because of lack of connection between the two in common experience." Tot v. U.S., 319 U.S. 463 at 467, 468, 63 S.Ct. 1241 at 1245 (1943); Doe v. City of Trenton, 143 N.J.Super 128, 362 A.2d 1200 at 1202 (1976). See also, State v. Hruza, 223 Neb. 837, 394 N.W.2d 643 (1986) (statutory presumption language in statute created permissible inference). It does not necessarily follow that because a child is staying out late or away from home that a parent should be on actual notice that their child is involved in the criminal conduct enumerated in Section 4. The absence from home may be "unaccounted" in the eyes of the law, but the parents or guardians may be unaware that the absences are unaccounted. Second, Due Process requires that criminal liability not be imposed upon parents unless there is a voluntary act or omission to preform an act which they are physically capable of performing. State v. Akers, supra; State v. Rackowski, supra; People v.

Walton, supra; and Commonwealth v. Slavski, supra. See also State v. Simants, 182 Neb. 491 at 493-497. As written, the statute would allow parents to be prosecuted for failing to obtain assistance to address criminal conduct that may not have occurred or when the parent had no knowledge of its occurrence. This offends Due Process. The defect might be remedied by rewording p. 1707, lines 16-21 as follows: For purposes of this section, notice may be proven by evidence of direct notice. Direct notice shall include oral or written notice from a law enforcement agency or a juvenile court of the child's conviction for anyone or any combination of the crimes listed in this section.

Section 7 violates Due Process. This portion of the proposed legislation provides for the imposition of criminal sanctions upon parents without regard to whether there is a voluntary act or omission on the part of the parents or guardian that contributes to their child having a firearm of any kind and for any purpose. There is no sufficient reasonable relation between this provision and the end to be served (presumably the objective of keeping guns from children through the intentional or negligent mishandling of the guns by their parents). The provision would conceivably allow for prosecution of a parent whose 17 year old child possesses a long barrelled shotgun for purposes of hunting. The prosecution could be warranted without regard to whether there was any misuse on the part of the child and without regard to culpability on the part of the parent. Punishment of parents or guardians for innocent conduct offends due process. Numerous cases have held that even civil liability may not be imposed upon parents for the negligent use of guns by their children without a showing that the parents or guardian knew of the possession or use of the guns by their children. Pawluk v. Mayer, 266 Wis. 55, 62 N.W.2d 572 (1954); Ritter v. Thibodeaux, 41 S.W. 492 (1897, Tex.Civ.App.). As discussed above, attempts to impose criminal sanctions upon parents or guardians without regard to a voluntary act or omission have failed to pass constitutional muster, See, State v. Akers, supra; State v. Rackowski, supra; City of Eastlake v. Ruggerio, supra; People v. Walton, supra; Commonwealth v. Slavski, supra. Such provisions impermissably impose criminal sanctions upon people solely because of their parental status. State v. Akers, supra at 39; Doe v. City of Trenton, 143 N.J. Super 128, 362 A.2d 1200 (1976) (Statutory presumption that two or more public peace violations in one year was the result of active or passive parental fault violated due process).

The constitutional infirmities found in section 7 could be remedied by limiting prosecution to those instances where it is shown that the parent or custodian knew of the child's possession of the gun. This opinion does not address the issue of whether it is appropriate public policy to criminalize possession of long barrelled guns by minors.

DATE: July 7, 1994

SUBJECT: Signature Requirements for Initiative and Referendum Petitions

REQUESTED BY: Senator Kate Witek

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General

You have submitted to us proposed language for a legislative resolution to be introduced during either a special or regular session of the Legislature to return the required number of signatures on initiative and referendum petitions to that which existed prior to the Nebraska Supreme Court's decision in Duggan v. Beermann, 245 Neb. 907 (1994).

We have reviewed the proposed language. We do not generally draft legislation, since the Legislature already employs the bill drafter's office for this purpose. However, because of the fundamental importance of the initiative and referendum powers to the people of Nebraska, and because we find it simpler and perhaps more helpful to suggest language to accomplish your purpose rather than simply providing an analysis of your proposed language, we have set forth the following proposed constitutional amendments to carry out your stated purpose.

Article III, §2 would be amended as follows:

> Sec. 2. First power reserved; initiative. The first power reserved by the people is the initiative whereby laws may be enacted and constitutional amendments adopted by the people independently of the Legislature. This power may be invoked by petition wherein the proposed measure shall be set forth at length. If the petition be for the enactment of a law, it shall be signed by ~~seven percent of the~~ registered voters of the state equal in number to seven percent of the whole number of votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition, and if the petition be for the amendment of the Constitution, the petition therefor shall be signed by ~~ten percent of such~~ registered voters of the state equal in number to ten percent of the whole number of votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition. In all cases the registered voters signing such petition shall be so distributed as to include the signatures of ~~five percent of~~ the registered voters ~~of~~ from each of two-fifths of the counties of the state equal in number to five percent of the whole number of votes cast for Governor in each of said respective counties at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition, and when thus signed, the petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State who shall submit the measure thus proposed to the electors of the state at the first general election held not less than four months after such petition shall have been filed. The same measure, either in form or in essential substance, shall not be submitted to the people by initiative petition, either affirmatively or negatively, more often than once in three years. If conflicting measures submitted to the people at the same election be approved, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall thereby become law as to all conflicting provisions. The constitutional limitations as to the scope and subject matter of statutes enacted by the Legislature shall apply to those enacted by the initiative.

Article III, §3 would be amended as follows:

Sec. 3. Second power reserved; referendum. The second power reserved is the referendum which may be invoked, by petition, against any act or part of an act of the Legislature, except those making appropriations for the expense of the state government or a state institution existing at the time of the passage of such act. Petitions invoking the referendum shall be signed by ~~not less than five percent of the~~ registered voters of the state equal in number to not less than five percent of the whole number of votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition, distributed as required for initiative petitions, and filed in the office of the Secretary of State within ninety days after the Legislature at which the act sought to be referred was passed shall have adjourned sine die or for more than ninety days. Such petition shall set out the title of the act against which the referendum is invoked and, in addition thereto, when only a portion of the act is sought to be referred, the number of the section or sections or portion of sections of the act designating such portion. When the referendum is thus invoked, the Secretary of State shall refer the same to the electors for approval or rejection at the first general election to be held not less than thirty days after the filing of such petition.

When the referendum is invoked as to any act or part of act, other than emergency acts or those for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety, by petition signed by ~~not less than ten percent of the~~ registered voters of the state equal in number to not less than ten percent of the whole number of votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition distributed as aforesaid, it shall suspend the taking effect of such act or part of act until the same has been approved by the electors of the state.

We hasten to point out that the above language is by no means the only way to amend Article III, §§ 2 and 3 to achieve your purpose. It may well be that you or other members of the Legislature could develop alternative language that achieves the same objective, but for one reason or another, the Legislature finds preferable.

Opinion No. 94053

DATE: July 13, 1994.

SUBJECT: Authority of State Board of Equalization to Order Intercounty Equalization of Real Property at a Specified "Target Range of Value" Lower than "Actual Value."

REQUESTED BY: The Honorable E. Benjamin Nelson, Governor

L. Jay Bartel, Assistant Attorney General

By letter dated July 6, 1994, you note that the State Board of Equalization and Assessment {"State Board" or "Board"} is meeting to discuss possible adjustments to real property values for classes or subclasses of property for purposes of performing its duties relative to intercounty or "statewide" equalization. Stating that "{t}he standards of assessment practices in counties across the State seem to vary greatly in preliminary numbers", and that you "are aware of the constitutional requirement to equalize properties and treat each property owner uniformly and the statutory target of market value", you have asked us to address the following question: "While the statutes require that real property is to be valued at its actual value (with agricultural land at 80% of actual value), is it your opinion that the State Board would fulfill its constitutional duty if it requires that all real property is valued at or near a specified target range of value, even though the target range is less than actual value?" For the reasons set out below, we conclude that, while such action by the Board would not be consistent with the legislative requirement that real property be assessed at its "actual value", it may, based on language contained in decisions of the Nebraska Supreme Court, as well as authority from other jurisdictions, be possible to defend action o this nature by the Board as consistent with the overriding constitutional principle that uniformity of taxation must take precedence when deviations from the standard of "actual value" are necessary to assure uniform and proportionate assessment of property.

I. Nebraska Constitutional and Statutory Provisions.

The Nebraska Constitution provides that "{t}he necessary revenue of the state and its governmental subdivisions shall be raised by taxation in such manner as the Legislature may direct." Neb. Const. art. VIII, § 1. This provision further requires that "{t}axes shall be levied by valuation uniformly and proportionately upon all real property. . . ."[1] The Constitution further provides that the State Board "shall have power to review and equalize assessments of property for taxation within the state." Neb. Const. art. IV, § 28.

Except for agricultural and horticultural land, "all real property in this state, not expressly exempt therefrom, shall be subject to taxation and shall be valued at its actual value." Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-210(1) (Cum. Supp. 1992). The Legislature, pursuant to art. VIII, § 1, has provided the method of determining the taxable value of real property for tax purposes. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-112(1) (Cum. Supp. 1992) provides that "{a}ctual value of real property for purposes of taxation shall mean the market value of real property in the ordinary course of trade."[2]

The State Board "shall annually equalize the values of all real property as submitted by the county assessors on the abstracts of assessments. . . ." Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-505 (Cum. Supp. 1992). "Pursuant to section 77-505, the State Board of Equalization and Assessment shall have the power to increase or decrease the value of a class or subclass of real property of any county or tax district. . . . Such increase or decrease shall be made by a percent." Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-506 (Cum. Supp. 1992). "Pursuant to section 77-506, if the State Board of Equalization and Assessment finds that a just, equitable, and legal assessment of the property in the state cannot be made without increasing or decreasing by a percentage the value of a class or subclass of property as returned by any county, the board shall issue a notice to the counties which it deems either undervalued or overvalued and shall set a date for hearing {which it may be direct be conducted by the Tax Commissioner} at least five days following mailing of the notice." Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-508 (Supp. 1993). "The State Board of Equalization and Assessment shall, pursuant to section 77-508, raise or lower the valuation of any class or subclass of property in a county when it is necessary to achieve intercounty equalization." Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-508.01 (1990). "After a hearing conducted pursuant to section . . . 77-508, the State Board of Equalization and Assessment shall either (1) enter its order based on information presented to it at the hearing, or (2) meet to hear the recommendation of the Tax Commissioner based on information presented to him or her at the hearing." Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-509 (Supp. 1993). An order of the Board entered pursuant to this section must be sent to county officials by August 15, and "shall specify the percentage increase or decrease and the class or subclass of property affected or the corrections or adjustments to be made to the class or subclass of property affected." II. Nebraska Caselaw Discussing the Board's Authority and Judicial Review of Its Orders.

While the Nebraska Supreme Court has often discussed the authority of the Board and the scope of judicial review of Board orders, perhaps the most extensive discussion of these principles is contained in Carpenter v. State Bd. of Equal., 178 Neb. 611, 134 N.W.2d 272

(1965) {"Carpenter"}. Discussing the respective duties of the State Board and the various county boards of equalization, the Court in Carpenter stated:

> In our scheme of taxation, the Board acts upon the abstracts of tax assessments furnished by each of the counties. The original determination of actual value under the statutory standard is the function of the county board of equalization. The determination of each individual county as to actual value within the county is clothed with a presumption of validity and, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, may be accepted by the Board as conforming to the law. It is fundamental that the Board has no power to readjust individual valuations within the county. It can only act to equalize the assessments between different counties in order to achieve the constitutional objective of uniform and proportionate valuations over the whole state. As we see it, the primary duty of the Board is to establish uniformity between the various counties.

Id. at 616, 134 N.W.2d at 276 (emphasis added). See also AT&T Information Sys. v. State Bd. of Equal., 237 Neb. 591, 595, 467 N.W.2d 55, 58 (1991) (noting that, in reviewing abstracts of assessments submitted by the counties, Board "deals only with the values of taxable property of a county in the aggregate.").

The Court in Carpenter continued its discussion of "{t}he proper relationship and the distinction in powers between the county boards of equalization and the Board" by quoting at length the following passage from its decision in S.S. Kresge Co. v. Jensen, 164 Neb. 833, 83 N.W.2d 569 (1957):

> It is the function of the county board of equalization to determine the actual value of the property for taxation purposes. While the county board of equalization acts in a quasi-judicial capacity and its valuations are final as to individual taxpayers unless appealed from, such valuations are subject to the powers of the State Board of Equalization and Assessment, which powers have been described by this court as being purely incidental to proper equalization of the assessment of the different counties of the state as returned by that body. Hacker v. Howe, 72 Neb. 385, 101 N.W. 255. Both the county board of equalization and the State Board of Equalization and Assessment, however, must give effect to the constitutional requirement that taxes must be levied uniformly and proportionately upon all tangible property. It is evident that actual value and a uniform and proportionate value may not always result in identical results. In dealing with such a situation in this state, the Supreme Court of the United States said: 'This court holds that the right of the taxpayer whose property alone is taxed at 100 per cent. of its true value is to have his assessment reduced to the percentage of that value at which others are taxed even though this is a departure from the requirement of statute. The conclusion is based on the principle that where it is impossible to secure both the standard of the true value, and the uniformity and equality required by the law, > the latter requirement is to be preferred as the just and ultimate purpose of the law.' Sioux City Bridge Co. v. Dakota County, 260 U.S. 441, 43 S. Ct. 190, 67 L. Ed. 340, 28 A.L.R. 979.

178 Neb. at 616-17, 134 N.W.2d at 276-77 (emphasis in original). Significantly, the Court in Carpenter continued quoting its prior opinion in S.S. Kresge Co. v. Jensen as follows:

> It could well be added that the application of this principle to the findings of the county board of equalization makes it possible for the State Board of Equalization and Assessment to fairly equalize between counties without doing injustice to individual taxpayers.

178 Neb. at 617, 134 N.W.2d at 277 (emphasis added).[3]

The Carpenter court also discussed the standard of judicial review applicable to orders of the Board. In this regard, the Court stated:

> {T}he proper rule is that we may not substitute our judgment for that of the Board. We do not pass upon the relative merits or the probative force of the evidence in the record. We review the record only to determine if the Board has complied with the requirements of the statute in exercising the powers granted to it by the Legislature. It is only where the record is clear and conclusive that the Board's action was illegal, contrary to law, arbitrary, and capricious that this court has any power to reverse the findings and the orders of the Board. . . .
> A wide latitude of judgment and discretion is vested in the Board.

Id. at 618, 134 N.W.2d at 277 (citations omitted).

Finally, we note that the Court in Carpenter expressly recognized the difficulties inherent in applying concepts of "value" and "equalization":

> {I}t can probably always be demonstrated that the Board, in dealing with the intangible concepts of valuation and uniformity, could never reach any mathematically precise result. Such a yardstick or criterion of equalization can never be accomplished. Approximation, both as to value and uniformity, is all that can be accomplished. . . .And, we have held that the object of the law of uniformity is accomplished if all of the property within the taxing jurisdiction is assessed at a uniform standard of value. . . . Actual value is an intangible concept, is largely a matter of opinion, and there are no yardsticks by which it can be determined with accuracy. . . . {T}he judgment as to valuation is largely a matter of opinion and is committed to the sound discretion and judgment of the board. We have held that substantial compliance with the requirements of equality and uniformity in taxation laid down by the federal and state Constitution is all that is required and that such provisions are satisfied when designed and manifest departures of the rule are avoided.

Id. at 619, 134 N.W.2d at 278 (citations omitted) (emphasis in original).

III. Authority of the Board to Order Intercounty Equalization of Real Property at a "Target Range of Value" Lower than "Actual Value".

Laflin v. State Bd. of Equal., 156 Neb. 427, 428, 56 N.W.2d 469, 472 (1953), was an appeal by a landowner in Johnson County from action of the State Board claiming that the Board failed "to properly equalize the assessment of farm lands in the various counties of the state for the taxable year 1952." "The final decision of the Board was that the value of farm lands and improvements in all counties whose 1952 assessed valuations per acre as shown by the abstracts filed by the respective counties were less than 50 percent of the 20-year average selling price per acre be raised to equal at least 50 percent of such average." Id. at 432, 56 N.W.2d at 473. Thus, "the yardstick used in determining the value of farm lands and improvements for the assessment of taxes in 1952 was a percentage ratio of the 1952 assessed value per acre, as shown by abstracts of real and personal property assessed for taxation in the several counties of the state, to the 20-year average sale price per acre from 1932 to 1951 inclusive." Id.

The Laflin court found the Board's actions were contrary to the statutory requirement that taxes be assessed at "actual value":

> It is clear from an examination of the record before us that the Board failed in its duty to value farm lands and improvements on the basis of their actual value and to equalize between counties for the purpose of compelling compliance with controlling statutes on the subject. We cannot see where the 20-year average sale price of lands of similar kind or class in a county can have any evidentiary value in determining present market value. . . . It is the duty of the Board to fix the value of farm lands and improvements at their actual value at the time they are appraised for assessment purposes. Any attempt to depart from this provision of the statute by averaging values during past periods of time which are too remote to have evidentiary force, constitutes a noncompliance with legislative direction and any relief from this requirement must come from the Legislature.
> It is the function of the Board to see to it that all property is assessed at its actual value and that the failure of any of the various counties to comply with this requirement shall be corrected by the process of equalization between the counties. . . .
> The record shows on its face that the Board did not value farm lands and improvements for assessment in the various counties on the basis of actual value, their value in the market in the ordinary course of trade. This being so, the final orders of the Board are in violation of the positive directions of applicable statutes.

Id. at ___, 56 N.W.2d at 474-75.

While Laflin indicates that the Board, in exercising its intercounty equalization function, may not deviate from the "actual value" standard set by statute, the decision in Laflin must be read in light of subsequent Nebraska Supreme Court decisions addressing the equalization power of the Board, and the manner in which it determines to exercise that power.

In Box Butte Cty. v. State Bd. of Equal., 206 Neb. 696, 295 N.W.2d 670 (1980), the Court considered appeals from several counties from action of the State Board ordering increases in assessment valuations of real estate throughout the state. The Court held that different appraisal methods applied by the Board to different classes or property resulted in appropriate determinations of fair market value for each class of property, and affirmed the Board's action. The Court discussed the recommendations adopted by the Board as follows:

> {A}fter utilizing the assessment/sales ratios for urban residential property of the eight highest counties as a starting point in order to attempt to achieve equalization throughout the state, the Department of Revenue tested the resultant average ratio of 35 percent. Its surveys disclosed that using such a ratio would place more than 50 percent of all properties over 35 percent of actual value. Therefore, it recommended use of an assessment/sales ratio of 30 percent which in its opinion would achieve 35 percent of actual value for the vast majority of nonagricultural land in Nebraska. Likewise, the beginning point for agricultural land was 30 percent over the 1976 Land Valuation Manual. However, after further research, the Department of Revenue offered evidence that an increase of only 20 percent over the manual was necessary to equalize that division of property with all other classes of property at actual value. We have previously referred to the correlation which existed between the two methods.
> Considering all of the evidence, the State Board perceived these recommendations as forming a reasonable basis to achieve equalization of all classes of property throughout the state at 35 percent of actual value. The evidence supports the action of the State Board and the appealing counties have failed to prove that its action was erroneous, arbitrary, or contrary to law.

Id. at 714, 295 N.W.2d at 681-82.[4]

The decision in Box Butte Cty. illustrates that, depending on the nature of the evidence before the Board, use of an assessment/sales ratio at a level less than the absolute level of "actual value" for statewide equalization purposes is sustainable if the level established can statistically be validated. Further, it should be noted that it is widely accepted that "{t}olerances are frequently allowed in equalization orders" in statewide equalization; in fact, a tolerance of five percent is recognized as "warranted and justified" and a ten percent tolerance "is considered reasonable." J. Keith, Property Tax Assessment Practices 406 (1st ed. 1966). Indeed, it is our understanding that the Board has, in recent history, accepted a certain "range" or "tolerance" in performing its statewide equalization functions, based on evidence provided by the Department. Thus, while the Court in Laflin indicated that "actual value" must be the standard of assessment in the Board's performance of its equalization powers, use of an assessment/sales ratio lower than 100 percent of "actual value", coupled with an acceptable range of "tolerance" or deviation, would, if supported by the evidence, appear to satisfy the Board's responsibility to achieve statewide equalization.

Your question, however, is based on the Board's establishment of a "target range" of value which would be set at less than "actual value." This, of course, is not a question which the Nebraska Supreme Court has squarely addressed. The validity of so- called "uniform fractional assessments" is a question which has arisen in numerous jurisdictions, with inconsistent results. As stated in an annotation on the subject:

> Full-value assessments have been held required by state constitutional/statutory provisions for assessment at full value. . ., at full cash value. . ., although there is a wealth of contrary authority;. . .at fair cash value, although there are contrary decisions. . .; at full and fair cash value. . .; at true value. . .; at true and actual valuation. . .; and at actual value. . . although there are contrary results.
> On the other hand, uniform fractional assessments have been held permissible under state constitutional/statutory provisions requiring assessments at full and actual cash value. . .; at full and true value. . .; at true cash value. . .; at true value in money. . .; and at market value or fair market value. . . .

Annot., Requirement of Full-Value Real Property Taxation Assessments, 42 A.L.R.4th 676, 682-83 (1985). While an exhaustive analysis of the cases discussed in the annotation is not possible for purposes of this opinion, it appears that most, if not all, of the cases cited concerned actions involving assessment practices by local assessors, as opposed to state bodies exercising constitutional duties to equalize properties statewide. Of all the cases reviewed, the California District Court of Appeals decision in Hanks v. State Bd. of Equal., 229 Cal. App. 2d 427, 40 Cal. Rptr. 478 (2d Dist. 1964), seems most directly on point.

In Hanks, a taxpayer brought an action to mandate that the State Board increase assessment rolls of all counties to make them conform to "full cash value". The California Constitution required that "{a}ll property in the State. . .shall be taxed in proportion to its value. . .", and that "{a}ll taxable property shall be assessed for taxation at its full cash value." Id. at ___, 40 Cal. Rptr. at 479-80. The California Constitution also created the State Board of Equalization, whose duty it was "to equalize the valuation of the taxable property in the several counties of the state for the purposes of taxation. . . ." Id. at ___, 40 Cal. Rptr. at 480. The taxpayer argued that, "since all assessment for property tax purposes must be made at 100 per cent of market value, a uniform fraction or ratio of market value {could not} be used in the process of equalization of assessments." Id. at ___, 40 Cal. Rptr. at 480.

Rejecting the taxpayer's contention that the Board had acted contrary to its constitutional and statutory duties, the California court stated:

> Our determination of the issue whether defendant Board has a constitutional duty to raise or lower county assessment rolls to make them conform to 100 per cent of full cash value, is controlled by > Article XIII, section 9, California Constitution. The State Board's duty to equalize the level of assessments in the various counties throughout the state is derived from section 9, Article XIII. . . . Thereunder, the State Board has the 'duty * * * to equalize the valuation of the taxable property in the several counties of the State for the purposes of taxation'; and is 'authorized and empowered * * * to increase or lower the entire assessment roll, or any assessment contained therein, so as to equalize the assessment of the property contained in said assessment roll, and make the assessment conform to the true value in money of property contained in said roll, * * *' Thus, the only expressed duty of the State Board is to equalize the valuation of taxable property in the counties of the state (Art. XIII, § 9). This duty is not set up in terms of equalizing at 100 percent of market value. . . . If the State Board is required under Article XIII, section 9, to lower or raise a roll to 100 per cent of market value, as urged by appellant, why then is the State Board, in addition, separately but in the same constitutional provision, given the duty and power to require to equalize; for if 100 per cent of market value (true value in money) must be used, then equality and uniformity are automatically produced by raising or lowering rolls to 100 per cent of market value. Of what purpose then is the duty of the Board to equalize? It is exactly what the name implies--'to equalize the assessment of taxes in the several counties, so as to cause them to approximate as nearly as possible the equality and uniformity enjoined by the Constitution.'. . . Thus, the inference is fair that Article XIII, Section 9, was intended to permit the State Board to equalize on the basis of fractional assessments to full cash value.

Id. at ___, 40 Cal. Rptr. at 480-81 (citations omitted) (emphasis added).

> The court in Hanks further noted that {e}quality and uniformity in the imposition of the burden of taxation upon property throughout the state, and that all property be taxed in proportion to its value to be ascertained as directed by law, have always been the dominant goals of the Constitution in the field of taxation; and the evil that the State Board of Equalization was created to remedy was inequality and lack of uniformity producing discriminatory underassessment.

Id. at ___, 40 Cal. Rptr. at 483.

It should be noted that the decision in Hanks was based, in part, on California's historic practice of assessing property at the local level at less than 100 percent of actual value. Id. at ___, 40 Cal. Rptr. at 480-85. Nevertheless, the parallels between the constitutional duties to achieve statewide equalization under the California and Nebraska Constitutions are obvious. Article IV, § 28, imposes upon the Board the duty to "review and equalize assessments of property for taxation within the state." The Constitution makes no mention of the standard of valuation required in exercising this function. Moreover, we must be mindful of the Nebraska Supreme Court's discussion in Carpenter, quoting from its decision in S.S. Kresge Co. v. Jensen, of the impact of the U.S. Supreme Court decision in Sioux City Bridge Co. v. Dakota County, recognizing "the principle that where it is impossible to secure both the standard of true value, and the uniformity and equality required by law, the latter requirement is to be preferred as the just and ultimate purpose of the law.'" Carpenter, 178 Neb. at 617, 134 N.W.2d at 277 (emphasis in original). The Carpenter court continued by quoting its prior language in S.S. Kresge Co. v. Jensen that "{i}t could well be added that the application of this principle to the findings of the county board of equalization makes it possible for the State Board of Equalization and Assessment to fairly equalize between counties without doing injustice to individual taxpayers. 178 Neb. at 617, 134 N.W.2d at 277.[5] This language indicates that the Court may accept action by the Board deviating from the statutory "actual value" standard in exercising its duty to equalize property valuations statewide, provided the Board determined such action was necessary to achieve the overriding constitutional objective of uniform taxation.

The foregoing discussion indicates that Board action establishing a "target" of assessment at less than "actual value", within a specified narrow "range", may be deemed consistent with the Board's constitutional duty to "equalize assessments of property for taxation within the state".[6] The sustainability of any such action would, of course, depend greatly upon the nature and quality of the evidence before the Board, and whether the Board's reliance on the principle noted above that deviation from the "actual value" standard is appropriate "to fairly equalize between counties without doing injustice to individual taxpayers" is justified. Whatever aggregate increases (and decreases) in assessment levels the Board may choose to order for classes or subclasses of property in the various counties if it elects to follow such a course is a matter to be decided by the Board based on the evidence presented, giving due recognition, of course, to the wide latitude and discretion accorded the Board in exercising its judgment. In theory, however, such action would not, if properly supported, be clearly outside the Board's constitutional authority.

[1] Article VIII, § 1, also recognizes that "the Legislature may provide that agricultural land and horticultural land, as defined by the Legislature, shall constitute a separate and distinct class of property for purposes of taxation and may provide for a different method of taxing agricultural land and horticultural land which results in values that are not uniform and proportionate with all other real property. . .but which results in values that are uniform and proportionate upon all property within the class of agricultural land and horticultural land."

[2] The Legislature has, of course, provided a different method for determining the taxable value of agricultural and horticultural land. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-112(2) (Cum. Supp. 1992).

[3] In a prior opinion, we noted that the decision in Carpenter stood for the proposition that "the primary function of the Board was to equalize valuations among counties, even if that required a departure from a statutorily required standard of true value,. . . . Op. Att'y Gen. No. 173 (1977-89 Report of Attorney General, Jan. 18, 1978) (emphasis added).

[4] Prior to the enactment of 1979 Neb. Laws, LB 187, the level of assessment was 35 percent of actual value.

[5] The Court's decisions in Carpenter and S.S. Kresge Co. v. Jensen were rendered after its decision in Laflin.

[6] It is our understanding that the only proposal presently before the Board concerns the establishment of a narrow range within a "target value" which is relatively high with respect to the statutorily defined "actual value" for the classes of property under review. We express no opinion as to whether the Board could attempt to utilize an equalization measure substantially lower than the mandated "actual value" standard. This would, of course, present a fundamentally different question.

DATE: August 2, 1994

SUBJECT: Federal Energy Policy Act and Wholesale Wheeling of Electricity

REQUESTED BY: Senator George Coordsen
Nebraska State Legislature

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Linda L. Willard, Assistant Attorney General

You have asked whether Neb. Rev. Stat. § 70-625.02 (1990) conflicts with the Federal Energy Policy Act of 1992, and, if it does, whether the Nebraska Statute is preempted by the Federal Energy Policy Act.

Section 70-625.02 provides:

> Electric transmission facilities and interconnections, defined; policy of state. It is declared to be the policy of the State of > Nebraska that electric transmission facilities and interconnections which are defined as being electric lines having a rating of thirty-four thousand five hundred volts and higher will be provided and made available to all power agencies so as to result in the lowest possible cost for the transmission and delivery of electric energy over the transmission and interconnected facilities of any public power district, public power and irrigation district, individual municipality, group of municipalities registered with the Nebraska Power Review Board, governmental subdivision, or nonprofit electric cooperative corporation.

Section 70-625.02 declares a policy of the State to mandate wheeling of electricity for lines of 34,500 volts and higher. The process of using the transmission lines or facilities of utility B to get access generating capacity of generator A to customer C is often referred to as "wheeling."

The federal statutes relating to wheeling of electricity or interconnections is contained in 16 U.S.C. § 824(k). This provision is included within Subchapter II-Regulations of Electric Utility Companies Engaged in Interstate Commerce. Clearly both state and federal law address wheeling issues and as such the question of whether federal law preempts state law is important.

Congress has the power under the Supremacy Clause of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States to preempt state law. However, the Federal Power Act Subchapter II contains a specific exemption at 16 U.S.C. § 824(f) which states:

> No provision in this subchapter shall apply to, or be deemed to include, the United States, a State or any political subdivision of a State, or any agency, authority, or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing, or any corporation which is wholly owned, directly or indirectly, by any one or more of the foregoing, or any officer, agent, or employee of any of the foregoing acting as such in the course of his official duty, unless such provision makes specific reference thereto.

Further, the United States Supreme Court has determined that the Federal Power Acts does not preempt state regulation or authority over electric utilities unless there is a specific provision of the Federal Power Act that mandates preemption of state law. See Arkansas Electric Power Cooperative Corp. v. Arkansas Public Service Commission, 461 U.S. 375, 76 L.Ed.2d 1 (1983). No such provision exists in regard to wheeling of electricity.

Nebraska is a public power state with virtually all generation and distribution of electrical power carried on by political subdivisions or corporations controlled by political subdivisions of the State. Since the State, political subdivisions of the State and corporations owned by the State or political subdivisions of the State have been exempted from the Federal Power Act under 16 U.S.C. § 824(f), there is no question of preemption for those areas contained in the subchapter which includes wheeling.

Your question is whether there is a conflict between the state and federal law in the area of wheeling. The federal law specifically excludes public power districts owned by the state or political subdivisions of the state therefore there is no issue of conflict between these state and federal law. It is our conclusion that the current federal law is not in conflict with Nebraska law and that federal law, as currently written, would not preempt state law in the area of wheeling of electricity. Opinion #94036 is overruled to the extent it is inconsistent with this opinion.

DATE:	August 10, 1994
SUBJECT:	Application of Article III, Section 19 of the Nebraska Constitution to employee sick leave banks which would allow state employees to voluntarily transfer unused compensatory or holiday time to other employees who had exhausted their own sick leave benefits.
REQUESTED BY:	Senator Jerry Schmitt Nebraska State Legislature
WRITTEN BY:	Don Stenberg, Attorney General Dale A. Comer, Assistant Attorney General

You state that you are developing legislation for the 1995 legislative session concerning state employee union contract negotiations. In that regard, you have requested our opinion as to whether the Nebraska Constitution allows state employee unions to bargain for sick leave banks during contract negotiations. Such a sick leave bank would be established for employees who incur medically verified nonservice-connected illness or injury. The bank would allow other union members to voluntarily transfer to the affected employee's sick leave account enough of their earned compensatory time or holiday time to maintain the affected employee in a pay status after the employee's own sick leave was fully utilized. You ask, "{d}oes Article III, Section 19 of the Nebraska Constitution specifically prohibit the State of Nebraska and state employee unions from including this issue in contract negotiations?"

Article III, Section 19 of the Nebraska Constitution provides, in pertinent part:

> The Legislature shall never grant any extra compensation to any public officer, agent, or servant after the services have been rendered nor to any contractor after the contract has been entered into, . . . nor shall the compensation of any public officer, including any officer whose compensation is fixed by the Legislature, be increased or diminished during his term of office . . .

We will focus our analysis on the initial portion of the constitutional language quoted above, since we assume that the union members who would participate in the sick bank program would be state employees rather than state officers with a set term of office.

The purpose of state constitutional provisions prohibiting extra compensation to public employees after services are rendered is to prevent payments in the nature of gratuities for past services. 67 C.J.S. Officers § 236. As stated by the Nebraska Supreme Court in Wilson v. Marsh, 162 Neb. 237, 75 N.W.2d 723 (1956), a case which, in part, involved the application of Article III, Section 19 to judicial pensions:

> It could hardly be made clearer or more positive that retirement benefits are either earned compensation for services rendered after the grant of them and that they are therefore valid or that they are a gratuity and not a part of compensation and therefore invalid.

Id. at 253, 75 N.W.2d at 733.

Under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-117 (1987) and the applicable state personnel rules, certain state employees can earn compensatory time off in instances where those employees are required to work more than 40 hours in any one week. In a similar fashion, state employees can earn compensatory time off on those occasions when they are required to work on holidays. The legislation which you are considering would apparently allow union employees who earned this compensatory time or holiday time to voluntarily transfer those hours to another union employee whose sick leave was exhausted. This arrangement would not result in a gratuity to the employees who earned the time which was transferred. However, the employee on sick leave who received the transferred time would obviously receive a gratuity, i.e., compensation for hours for which he or she had not worked.

While the employees on sick leave who received transferred compensatory or holiday hours would receive a gratuity under your proposal, we believe that the propriety of that arrangement turns on who or what is granting that gratuity. In other words, if the state is granting the gratuity under your proposal, then the arrangement clearly violates Article III, Section 19. On the other hand, if the gratuity is actually from the employees who earned the extra hours and chose to transfer them, then the arrangement would not involve a gratuity from the state in contravention of Article III, Section 19. The latter arrangement would simply create a mechanism for one state employee to make a contribution to another. The Wilson case sheds some light on this question.

In the Wilson case, the court considered whether a judicial pension program which required contributions from a judge's salary beginning during the judge's term effected a diminution in the judge's salary under Article III, Section 19. In the course of its opinion, the court stated:

> The State of Nebraska retains 4 percent of the monthly salary of each judge within the act and credits the amount retained to a fund of its designation without participation in any way of the public official. These deductions are the retention of public money. They continue to be public money and the fund is a public one. The amount withheld by the state from the salary of judges never was and never will become their money or property. The annual salary of each fixed by law then earned and required to be paid in equal monthly installments is decreased by the amount deducted during his term of office.

Id. at 246, 75 N.W.2d at 729 (emphasis added). This language from the Wilson case indicates that monies held by the state and deducted from the salary of a state officer or employee as a part of a required pension program remain public monies. In this way, mandatory pension withholding instituted during an officer's term of office can result in a diminution of that officer's salary in violation of Article III, Section 19, since the public officer whose salary is subject to the withholding for the pension never receives the funds which are withheld. Language to the same effect concerning the nature of funds mandatorily withheld from an employee's salary for pension purposes is found in Gossman v. State Employees Retirement System, 177 Neb. 326, 129 N.W.2d 97 (1964).

The Wilson and Gossman cases make it clear that monies withheld from an employee's salary on a mandatory basis remain public monies for purposes of Article III, Section 19. However, it seems to us that the converse of this rule would apply to monies contributed voluntarily to a pension program or to withholding for other purposes. Those funds would not be monies of the state, but would be the monies of the individual officer or employee, under his or her control to be paid at his or her direction.

From your letter, we understand that transfers of compensatory time and holiday time into your proposed employee sick banks would be voluntary on the part of the state employee who had earned that time. As a result, we do not believe that the time and compensation at issue in the transfer would represent public monies on the basis of the cases cited above. Instead, the transfer of compensatory or holiday time would represent a transfer of monies belonging to the state employee who had earned the hours off. The gratuity received by the employee who had exhausted his or her sick leave would, therefore, be a gratuity received from the individual who made the transfer to the bank rather than a gratuity from the state. On that basis, we do not believe that your proposal would violate Article III, Section 19.

Sincerely yours,
DON STENBERG

SUBJECT: Interpretation of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-27,142.03, as amended - Submission of Local Option Sales Tax Questions to Electors of an Incorporated Municipality.

REQUESTED BY: Senator Joyce Hillman
Nebraska State Legislature

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
L. Jay Bartel, Assistant Attorney General

You have requested our opinion regarding the interpretation and application of the provisions governing the submission of local option sales tax questions to electors of an incorporated municipality under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 77-27,142.03 (1990), as amended by 1994 Neb. Laws, LB 1175, § 3. Prior to its amendment, § 77-27,142.03 provided, in part: "The question of imposing a sales and use tax shall not be submitted to the electors of an incorporated municipality more often than once every twenty-three months." Section 3 of LB 1175 amended this language to provide as follows: "(2) The question of imposing a sales and use tax which has been submitted to the electors and failed shall not be submitted to the electors of an incorporated municipality again until twenty-three months after such failure." Your question is prompted by concerns as to the interpretation and application of § 77-27,142.03, as amended, to a situation involving the City of Scottsbluff, Nebraska {the "City"}. The City presently proposes to place a measure before the electors on the general election ballot in November, 1994, seeking approval of a local option sales tax of one-half of one percent to fund an economic development program. The City also anticipates submitting the question of renewing the current local option sales tax for the City of one-half of one percent on the primary election ballot in May, 1995. Your question is whether, if the voters do not approve the local option sales tax for economic development in November, 1994, will the failure of this measure preclude the City from placing the question of renewing the local option sales tax for the City on the primary ballot in May, 1995, as this would be within the twenty-three month period established by § 77-21,127,03, as amended, during which time the question of imposing a local option sales tax may not be submitted to the electors after failure of such a measure. You indicate that, if this is the case, you may introduce amendatory legislation in the next legislative session.

In construing a statute, courts should attempt to discover legislative intent from the language of the act and give effect to that intent. Peterson v. Minden Beef Co., 231 Neb. 18, 434 N.W.2d 681 (1989). The reasons for the enactment of a statute, and the purposes and objects of the act, may be guides in attempting to give effect to the intent of lawmakers. State v. Jennings, 195 Neb. 434, 238 N.W.2d 477 (1976). A statute should be construed in the context of the mischief sought to be remedied and the purpose to be served. In re Boundaries of McCook Public Power Dist., 217 Neb. 11, 347 N.W.2d 554 (1984). Statutory language should generally be given its plain and ordinary meaning and where the words of the statute are plain, direct and unambiguous, no interpretation is necessary to ascertain their meaning. Sorenson v. Meyer, 220 Neb. 457, 370 N.W.2d 173 (1985).

Prior to its amendment, § 77-27,127.03 provided that "{t}he question of imposing a sales and use tax shall not be submitted to the electors of an incorporated municipality more often than once every twenty-three months." Section 3 of LB 1175 amended this language to provide that "{t}he question of imposing a sales and use tax which has been submitted to the electors and failed shall not be submitted to the electors of an incorporated municipality again until twenty-three months after such failure." (emphasis added). Thus, prior to its amendment, § 77-27,127.03 prohibited submitting the question of imposing a local option sales and use tax to the voters more than once during a twenty-three month period. This language precluded submission of a local option sales tax question for twenty-three months after either a successful, or unsuccessful, vote of the electorate on the question of imposing a sales and use tax. The language amending § 77-27,127.03, however, prevents the submission of additional questions to voters for approval of a local option sales and use tax for twenty-three months only after a local option sales and use tax question is submitted to the voters and has failed. Under § 77-27,127.03, as amended, if a local option sales and use tax question is submitted to the voters and is passed, additional questions of imposing a local sales and use tax may be submitted to the voters of an incorporated municipality during the following twenty-three month period. If a local option sales and use tax question is submitted to the voters and rejected, however, § 77-27,127.03, as amended, precludes the submission of a local option sales and use tax question to the voters for a twenty-three month period.

This interpretation of the 1994 amendment to § 77-27,127.03 is confirmed by the legislative history of the amendment. The sponsor of the amendment, in discussing its purpose, stated:

> {W}hat it does is some clarification with some municipalities that were looking at the city sales tax and what they might do and that they had some problems with the fact that once they had offered an initiative that they would not be able to submit anything to the voters again for 23 months. And I think what the intent was there was that if an initiative failed, that they would not be able to come back. But if it passed there wouldn't be any problems with them coming back with another initiative and looking at again increasing their sales tax on a local level. . . .{T}he purpose is that if an initiative is offered or if the option is offered and the voters vote it down, that you aren't allowed to hassle local entities if they had said no if it failed. . . .{I}t's a clarification that you can't come back only if it has failed, but if it had not failed they wouldn't be able to come back.

Floor Debate on LB 1175, 93rd Neb. Leg., 2nd Sess. 13252 (April 12, 1994) (Statement of Sen. Hillman).

In construing a legislative act, resort may be had to the history of its passage for the purposing of determining legislative intent. Georgetown Ltd. Partnership v. Geotechnical Services, Inc., 230 Neb. 22, 430 N.W.2d 34 (1988). While the language of § 77-27,127.03, as amended, is plain and unambiguous, and resort to legislative history is unnecessary, the explanation of the purpose of the amendment in the floor debate confirms that the amendment was intended to prevent the submission of local sales and use tax questions to voters after failure of a submission for a period of twenty-three months, while allowing further submission of questions to the voters during this period if a local option sales and use tax vote was approved by the electorate.

With respect to the specific situation regarding the City, the local option sales and use tax question to be placed on the general election ballot in November, 1994, would propose a local option sales and use tax to fund an economic development program under the Local Option Municipal Economic Development Act, Neb. Rev. Stat. §S 18-2701 to -2738 (1991 and Supp. 1993) {the "Act"}. Section 18-2713 of the Act provides that, "{b}efore adopting an economic development program, a city shall submit the question of its adoption to the registered voters at an election." This section further requires that the ballot question include "the year or years within which the funds from local sources of revenue are to be collected, the source or sources from which the funds are to be collected, {and} the total amount to be collected for the program from local sources of revenue,. . . ." The Act authorizes voters to approve "a local option sales tax" as a source of funding an economic development program. § 18-2713.

The question which arises is whether, if the vote on the local option sales and use tax question for economic development purposes submitted in November, 1994, fails, is the City prohibited from submitting to the voters in May, 1995, the question of approval of a local option sales and use tax for city purposes, as this would be within twenty-three months of the voters' rejection of a local option sales and use tax. In our view, the language of § 77-27,127.03, as amended, would preclude submission of a local option sales and use tax question by the City in May, 1995, if the question submitted in November, 1994, fails. The statute is worded in such a manner as to preclude submission of "{t}he question of imposing a sales and use tax" for twenty-three months if a measure has been submitted and failed. While the question to be submitted in November, 1994, is designated for the purpose of funding an economic development program, and the question to be submitted in May, 1995, is to impose a sales and use tax for general city revenue purposes, we do not believe the different purposes served by the proposed taxes render inapplicable the twenty-three month waiting period if the question submitted in November, 1994, fails. The statute does not condition application of the waiting period on the nature or purpose for which a local option sales and use tax question is submitted; rather, it speaks simply in terms of the submission of a local option sales and use tax question to the voters. This is consistent with the interpretation LB 1175 recently adopted by the Nebraska Department of Revenue. Revenue Ruling 9-94-2 (August 9, 1994). While construction of a statute by the department or agency charged with enforcing it is not controlling, considerable weight will be given to such construction. McCaul v. American Sav. Co., 213 Neb. 841, 331 N.W.2d 795 (1983).

An argument could be made that § 77-27,127.03, as amended, prevents only resubmission of the same question regarding imposition of a local option sales and use tax for twenty-three months after a specific question has been rejected by the voters. Applying this interpretation to the facts presented, if the question seeking approval of a local option sales and use tax for economic development purposes failed, the City would only be precluded from submitting the question of imposing a sales and use tax for this specific purpose for twenty-three months, and would not be precluded from submitting the question of imposing a sales and use tax for general revenue purposes within this time period. While such an interpretation is not implausible, it is by no means clear that, if the November, 1994, measure fails, the City could submit a local option sales and use tax question again in May, 1995. If the November measure fails, and the question submitted in May, 1995, is approved, the City could be subject to a lawsuit challenging the validity of the sales tax authorized by the May election. Such a lawsuit, if successful, would surely have an adverse effect on the City's finances. Therefore, in view of your stated intent in requesting our advice on this question, we urge you to consider introducing legislation clarifying this issue in order to avoid any uncertainty as to the interpretation and application of § 77-27,127.03 under these circumstances.

Very truly yours,

DATE: August 26, 1994

SUBJECT: Effect of a purported late filing, under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 32-707.01 (1988), of ballot explanations for constitutional amendments proposed by the Legislature.

REQUESTED BY: Allen J. Beermann
Nebraska Secretary of State

Dale A. Comer, Assistant Attorney General

During the 1994 legislative session, the Nebraska Legislature passed several legislative resolutions which proposed amendments to the state constitution. Under the provisions of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 32-707.01 (1988), the Executive Board of the Legislative Council is to prepare an explanatory statement for each of those proposed constitutional amendments which "in clear, concise language, {explains on the ballot} the effect of a vote for and against" the proposal. Those explanatory statements are to be "submitted to the Secretary of State not less than four months prior to the general election for certification to the county clerks and election commissioners along with the ballot titles." On July 8, 1994, the Chairman of the Legislature's Executive Board filed the requisite explanatory statements for the proposed constitutional amendments with your office. The general election will be held on November 8, 1994.

We have now received a copy of a letter from a Grand Island attorney, dated August 11, 1994, and directed to you, Governor Nelson and Attorney General Stenberg. In that correspondence, the attorney presents various arguments supporting his position that the ballot explanations prepared for the 1994 legislative resolutions proposing state constitutional amendments were filed with your office after the deadline established by Section 32-707.01. The attorney also argues that one specific constitutional change proposed by the Legislature, LR2CA dealing with arbitration, is unconstitutional. For these various reasons, the attorney asks you and the other constitutional officers involved to withhold the constitutional amendments proposed by the Legislature from the ballot. Alternatively, he also threatens a mandamus action should you and the other state officials place the proposed amendments on the ballot or otherwise not undertake a declaratory judgment action to litigate the matters raised in his letter. You have now asked for our views, in light of the attorney's correspondence, as to whether the constitutional amendments proposed by the Legislature should be placed on the ballot. We believe that they should be submitted to the voters in the November general election.

The attorney initially argues that the ballot explanations in question should have been filed with your office by July 6, 1994, in order to meet the requirements of a filing "not less than four months prior to the general election." This argument is based upon the notion that a minimum four-month time period must elapse from the filing of the statements to the date of general election, and on the application of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 25-2221 (1989) which generally governs the computation of time and provides that the first day of any statutory time period is excluded in time computation while the last day is included.

The argument based on Section 25-2221 notwithstanding, we believe that this situation is clearly governed by the previous decision of the Nebraska Supreme Court in State ex rel. Morris v. Marsh, 183 Neb. 521, 162 N.W.2d 262 (1968). In that case, the court considered whether an initiative measure was timely filed on July 5, 1968, for the general election on November 5, 1968, under a constitutional provision which required that "the {initiative} petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State, who shall submit the measure . . . at the first general election held not less than four months after such petition shall have been filed." The court ultimately stated,

> There is little or no dispute that in terms of a full day and an exact date, November 5 is a date exactly 4 months after July 5. The respondent attempts to read the language of the Constitution as requiring the election to be held more than 4 months after the filing of the petition, instead of "not less than 4 months." (Emphasis ours.) The district court's computation was correct.
> We hold that a requirement than an initiated measure be submitted at the first general election held not less than 4 months after filing of the petition is satisfied by a filing on July 5 for a general election to be held November 5.

Id. at 526, 527, 162 N.W.2d at 266, 267. (Emphasis in original). In a similar fashion, we believe that the filing by the Executive Board on July 8 for a general election on November 8 satisfies the requirements of Section 32-707.01.

Apart from the question of whether the filing of ballot explanations by the Executive Board was timely under the statutes, there is a greater question as to the effect of a late filing. In other words, if we assume, for the sake of argument, that the July 8 filing was late under Section 32-707.01, does that late filing authorize you to refuse to place the constitutional amendments proposed by the Legislature on the November ballot? Based upon our research, we do not believe that such a late filing would warrant that result.

The Nebraska Supreme Court has stated that,

> The two important, vital elements in any constitutional amendment are the assent of two-thirds of the Legislature and a majority of the popular vote. Beyond these, other provisions are mere machinery > and forms. They may not be disregarded, because, by them, certainty as to the essentials in secured. But they are not themselves the essentials.

State ex rel. Thompson v. Winnett, 78 Neb. 379, 388, 110 N.W. 1113, 1116 (1907). Based, in part, upon this reasoning, the Nebraska Supreme Court has indicated that substantial compliance with the constitutional requirements regarding amendment of the state constitution is sufficient to amend that document. Duggan v. Beermann, 245 Neb. 907, ___ N.W.2d ___ (1994); Swanson v. State, 132 Neb. 82, 271 N.W. 264 (1937); State ex rel. Hall v. Cline, 118 Neb. 150, 224 N.W. 6 (1929); State ex rel. Thompson v. Winnett, supra. For example, in the Swanson case, the court indicated that notice of a constitutional amendment was sufficient even though newspaper publications in one county of the state were not made on the correct dates and newspaper publications in three other counties were not made the required number of times.

The filing requirements in Section 32-707.01 are statutory rather than constitutional. If substantial compliance with constitutional requirements is sufficient for amendment of the state constitution, then surely substantial compliance with statutory requirements is satisfactory as well. Given that premise, we believe that filing ballot explanations two days late is substantial compliance with Section 32-707.01, and would not justify removing the proposed constitutional amendments from the ballot.

Finally, the attorney from Grand Island takes specific issue with LR2CA, a proposed constitutional amendment which would permit arbitration in Nebraska. He argues that this constitutional amendment would, in itself, be unconstitutional in several respects. On that basis, he asks that you exercise your authority and refuse to place that proposed amendment on the ballot.

The Nebraska Supreme Court has indicated that, unless the subject of a proposed initiative or referendum petition is invalid or unconstitutional on its face, the Secretary of State cannot pass upon the validity or construction of any proposed law when the petition is presented for filing and placement on the ballot. State ex rel. Brandt v. Beermann, 217 Neb. 632, 350 N.W.2d 18 (1984). This rule includes initiatives to amend the state constitution. By analogy, we believe that this rule applies equally in the present situation where the Legislature has presented duly enacted resolutions amending the constitution for placement on the ballot. In our view, unless those legislative resolutions exhibit some facial flaw, you do not have the authority to pass upon their constitutionality and to refuse to place them on the ballot. In that regard, we do not believe that LR2CA is unconstitutional on its face. Consequently, you should place it on the ballot for consideration by the people of Nebraska.

Sincerely yours,
DON STENBERG

Opinion No. 94078

DATE:	September 26, 1994
SUBJECT:	Statutory and Constitutional Constraints on the Use of Public Funds by Governmental Subdivisions to Purchase or Rent Buildings in Competition With Tax Paying Entities
REQUESTED BY:	Senator George Coordsen Nebraska State Legislature
WRITTEN BY:	Don Stenberg, Attorney General Dale A. Comer, Assistant Attorney General

In your opinion request letter, you posed two questions to us involving the use of public funds by governmental subdivisions, and you stated that your opinion request was submitted "{i}n contemplation of possible legislation to be introduced in the coming legislative session." We will deal with each of your questions in turn.

You first ask:

> Are public non-profit entities such as municipalities, public power districts or the Municipal Energy Agency of Nebraska, which do not pay real estate or corporate income tax, permitted under Nebraska Statute to use their ratepayers {sic} revenues to purchase buildings and subsequently to rent out portions of such buildings to other organizations, either public or private, which would place them in direct competition with tax paying entities?

The scope of your question makes it difficult for us to answer with any specificity since the authority for each municipality, power district, or other governmental subdivision referenced in your inquiry to use public revenues to purchase and rent buildings would be found in the specific statutes dealing with that entity or in other documents applicable to each individual entity such as home-rule charters. As a result, we can only comment generally on your question. In that regard, we are unaware of any one statute which would apply to all the subdivisions listed above and which would prevent them in any way from purchasing and renting buildings in direct competition with tax paying entities. Therefore, you may wish to consider such legislation at the upcoming legislative session if that is the purpose of your inquiry.

You next ask, "{s}econdly, are such organizations {as municipalities, public power districts or the Municipal Energy Agency} permitted to use such public funds to purchase buildings or land for economic development purposes or to further enhance their operating margins?"

Again, the number of governmental subdivisions included in your question and the multitude of statutes and other authorities applicable to those various subdivisions make it very difficult to answer with any degree of specificity. We are unaware of any statute which generally prohibits governmental subdivisions from using public funds to purchase buildings or land to enhance their operating margins. Apart from that, if a governmental subdivision is using public funds for economic development purposes, some question as to the propriety of that action might arise under Article XIII, Section 3 of the Nebraska Constitution which prohibits the use of public funds for private purposes. However, under Article XIII, Section 2 of the Nebraska Constitution and under the Municipal Economic Development Act, Neb. Rev. Stat. §§ 18-2701 to 18-2723 (1991, Cum. Supp. 1992), municipalities might well be able to use public funds to purchase buildings or land for economic development purposes in certain circumstances. As a result, the answer to your second question also depends, a great deal, on the particular entity involved and the precise nature of the use of public funds proposed.

While we have, of necessity, offered general answers to the questions posed in your opinion request letter, we can respond in greater detail should you choose to provide more information to us as to the specific governmental entity involved, the exact nature of the use of public funds at issue, and the nature and purpose of your proposed legislation.

Sincerely yours,
DON STENBERG

DATE: October 3, 1994

SUBJECT: Scope of Practice of Dental Hygienists

REQUESTED BY: Senator Don Wesely

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Lynn A. Melson, Assistant Attorney General

You have asked whether legislation is needed to assure that the Department of Health has statutory authority to promulgate regulations allowing dental hygienists to administer local anesthetics. You have referred to two statutory provisions concerning dental hygienists. Neb.

Rev. Stat. § 71-193.17 provides that a licensed dental hygienist may perform certain oral procedures including 1) scaling of teeth and 2) polishing all exposed tooth surfaces in the oral prophylaxis procedure. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 71-193.19 provides that the Department of Health may, by rule and regulation, prescribe additional services which may be performed by a licensed dental hygienist when such additional procedures are educational or related to the oral prophylaxis. In your letter, you have indicated that it is the procedure of planing roots below the gum line which generally requires the administration of local anesthetic by injection.

We have reviewed the Nebraska statutes concerning the practice of dentistry and the procedures authorized to be performed by licensed dental hygienists. As discussed below, we conclude that legislation would be needed to give the Department of Health sufficient authority to expand the scope of practice of dental hygienists to encompass the injection of local anesthetics.

The scope of dentistry practice is defined at Neb. Rev. Stat. § 71-183 (1990). That statute provides at § 71-183(1) that a person shall be deemed to be practicing dentistry who performs "any dental operation or oral surgery or dental service of any kind . . . . " The statute also provides at § 71-183(12) that a person shall be deemed to be practicing dentistry who "administers an anesthetic of any nature in connection with a dental operation. . . ." In other words, the general rule is that only a dentist may administer anesthetics.

Neb. Rev. Stat. § 71-183.01 (Cum. Supp. 1992) lists certain practices and operations which are exceptions to the general rule that a person engaged in such practice must be a licensed dentist. Section 71-183.01(2) states that a qualified anesthetist or registered nurse is not practicing dentistry when giving an anesthetic for a dental operation under the direct supervision of a licensed dentist or physician. Section 71-183.01(7) states that a licensed dental hygienist, when performing certain procedures under the supervision of a licensed dentist, is not deemed to be practicing dentistry. This exception is limited to the performance of "the oral prophylaxis procedure, which will include the scaling and polishing of teeth and such additional procedures as are prescribed in accordance with rules and regulations adopted by the Department of Health." We also note that § 71-193.17(10) specifically provides that a licensed dental hygienist may apply topical desensitizing agents, but contains no specific provision regarding administration of anesthetics by injection. These statutes must be read along with §§ 71-193.17 and 71-193.19 to which you refer to in your letter. Statutes pertaining to the same subject should be construed together as if they were one law and effect should be given to every provision. Indian Hills Community Church v. County Bd. of Equalization, 226 Neb. 510, 412 N.W.2d 459 (1987). Legislative intent deduced from the entire act prevails over that of a particular part considered separately. Grosvenor v. Grosvenor, 206 Neb. 395, 293 N.W.2d 96 (1980). Finally, we note for your information that the current regulations adopted by the Department of Health expressly prohibit dental hygienists from administering local or general anesthetics. 172 NAC 53-002.02C.

You inquire whether the Department of Health has sufficient statutory authority to adopt regulations allowing dental hygienists to administer a local anesthetic. It is true that there is language in both §§ 71-183.01(7) and 71-193.19 which allows the Department of Health to prescribe "additional procedures" which may be performed by a licensed dental hygienist. However, these additional procedures must relate to the oral prophylaxis procedure and it appears doubtful that the administration of a local anesthetic by injection is sufficiently related to the oral prophylaxis procedure. We find the Legislature has expressed its intent in §§ 71-183 and 71-183.01 that only licensed dentists, and qualified anesthetists and registered nurses under the direct supervision of a licensed dentist or physician, may give anesthetics. This lends support to our opinion that §§ 71-193.17 and 71-193.19 would be interpreted to mean that administering a local anesthetic is not one of the 'additional procedures" related to oral prophylaxis which may be prescribed by agency regulations. In the event the court would find the reference to "additional procedures" ambiguous and resort to legislative history for the purpose of determining legislative intent, we have reviewed the legislative history of Neb. Rev. Stat. §§ 71-193.17 and 71-193.19. LB 572 was intended to clarify statutory language concerning the practice of dentistry, to resolve a conflict with regard to who may take a dental x-ray, and to clarify the role of the licensed dental hygienist and make specific what is included in the oral prophylaxis procedure which hygienists are permitted to perform. As Chairman of the Committee on Public Health and Welfare, we note that you gave the following explanation during floor debate prior to passage of Laws 1986, LB 572. "Another thing, we make it clear is that you don't allow for local anesthesia to be administered by a dental hygienist. We do allow for monitoring of nitrous oxide. Once the dentist starts it, the dental hygienist is very qualified to make sure that everything functions according to plan, but as far as actual administration of anesthesia, they would not be allowed to do that." Floor Debate on LB 572, 89th Neb. Leg., 2nd Sess. 8418 (Feb. 6, 1986) (Statement of Sen. Wesely).

We also point out that, if the Department were to amend its regulations without a statutory change so as to allow dental hygienists to administer local anesthetics; Neb. Rev. Stat. §§ 71-183.01(7) and 71-193.19 may be subject to challenge as an unconstitutional delegation of legislative authority. Although the legislature may authorize an administrative agency to make rules and regulations to carry out an express legislative purpose or to enforce a law within designated limitations, these designated limitations and the standards by which the powers granted are to be administered must be clearly and definitely stated in the authorizing act. Bosselman, Inc. v. State, 230 Neb. 471, 432 N.W.2d 226 (1988). Arguably, these references to additional procedures to be prescribed by the Department of Health might not be found sufficiently clear and definite to guide the agency in exercising the power conferred upon it.

For all of these reasons we conclude that, if a change in scope of practice is desired, a safer course would be to amend the statutes in question so as to expressly provide for the administration of local anesthetics by dental hygienists.

Sincerely,
DON STENBERG

Opinion No. 94080

DATE: October 14, 1994

SUBJECT: Confidentiality of Senators' Phone Records

REQUESTED BY: Senator Tim Hall

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Steve Grasz, Deputy Attorney General

In conjunction with the audit of the Legislative Council by the Auditor of Public Accounts, you have requested the opinion of this office concerning several questions related to the confidentiality of phone records of Nebraska State Senators.

The first question presented is "at what point in the audit process do senators' long distance telephone records lose their exempt status?" This question is preceded, in your letter, by your legal conclusion that "Neb. Rev. Stat. Section 84-712.05(11) (Supp. 1993), specifically exempts from the Public Records Act 'correspondence, memoranda and records of telephone calls related to the performance of duties by a member of the Legislature."

The first question presented, as well as the legal conclusion on which it is premised, reflects a basic misunderstanding of the operation of the Public Records Act. Legislative phone expense records are not "exempt" from the Public Records Act. Such records clearly fall within the definition of "public record" as defined in Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-712.01 (1987). They are, however, specifically made subject to a provision under which the custodian of such records may withhold them from public viewing. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-712.05(11) (Supp. 1993). Our long standing view of the operation of the Public Records Act is supported not only by the clear text of the statutes, but also by the Legislative History of § 84-712.05(11). The Committee Statement for LB 565, dated February 10, 1983, stated as follows:

> LB 565 would add another category of public documents that may be excluded from public disclosure, under the public records laws, by their 'lawful custodian.' Included in this new category are correspondence, memoranda and records of telephone calls generated by a state senator in the performance of his or her duties.

Committee Records of LB 565 (Neb. Laws 1983) (emphasis added).

As was made clear by the Order of the Lancaster County District Court in Breslow v. Primeau (Docket 496, Page 039), dated April 18, 1994, the Auditor of Public Accounts is not the equivalent of the "public" and has independent constitutional authority to review records of expenditures of State funds. In addition, the Auditor has statutory authority to review Legislative phone records under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-304, as upheld in Breslow v. Primeau. Finally, as documents falling within the definition of "public records" under § 84-712.01, Legislative phone records are also specifically available to the Auditor of Public Accounts under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-1117.02(2) (1987) for audit purposes.

The general issue presented by your question was also the subject of Attorney General Opinion No. 92116 (October 8, 1992). The following analysis was set forth in that opinion:

> Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-712 (Reissue 1987) provides, in pertinent part:
> > Except as otherwise expressly provided by statute, all citizens of this state, and all other persons interested in the examination of the public records, . . . are hereby fully empowered and authorized to examine the same, and to make memoranda and abstracts therefrom, all free of charge, during the hours the respective offices may be kept open for the ordinary transaction of business.
> Under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-712.01 (Reissue 1987), "public record" is defined as:
> > . . . all records and documents, regardless of physical form, of or belonging to this state, any county, city, village, political subdivision, or tax-supported district in this state, or any agency, branch, department, board, bureau, commission, council, subunit or committee of any of the foregoing. Data which is a public record in its original form shall remain a public record when maintained in computer files.
> Obviously, these statutes would allow members of the public to review the phone records of state legislators, and we said as much in Opinion of the Attorney General No. 46, March 14, 1983. Therefore, in 1983, the Legislature added subsection 11 to Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-712.05 (Reissue 1987). Section 84-712.05 generally creates a list of categories of documents which may be withheld from the public at the discretion of the governmental agency involved. Subsection 11 of that section adds "{c}orrespondence, memoranda, and records of telephone calls related to the > performance of duties by a member of the Legislature" to the list of documents which may be kept confidential. As a result of Subsection 11, members of the public can be denied access to the telephone records of state legislators. . . .

> While the Public Records Statutes clearly allow legislative phone records to be kept confidential in the face of access requests from the public, other statutes also have a bearing on . . . access to phone records for audit purposes. Specifically, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-1117.02 (Reissue 1987) deals with the release of computer file data, which presumably includes phone records, by DAS. Subsection (2) of Section 81-1117.02 provides:
> > Any data which is a public record in its original form shall remain a public record when maintained in computer files and shall be provided to the Legislative Fiscal Analyst pursuant to section 50-420 and shall be made available to the Auditor of Public Accounts solely for use in the performance of audits prescribed by law.
> We do not believe that the Public Records Statutes, and in particular § 84-712.05 (11), form the basis to deny . . . access to legislative telephone records in light of § 81-1117.02(2). First of all, the application of section 84-712 itself is conditioned by the prefatory language in that statute which indicates that the Public Records Statutes apply "{e}xcept as otherwise expressly provided by statute." Moreover, courts will not give an interpretation to one statute which effectively nullifies another statute unless that is the clear legislative intent. Georgetowne v. Ltd. Partnership v. Geotechnical Services, Inc., 230 Neb. 22, 430 N.W.2d 34 (1988). If . . . {the Auditor is} denied access to the phone records in question on the basis of section 84-712.05(11), then section 81-1117.02(2) has, in essence, been nullified. We see no clear legislative intent to bring about that result.
> As a result, we agree . . . that section 84-712.05(11) must be read to prevent public access to legislative telephone records. We do not believe that statute also applies to deny . . . access to those documents in connection with a properly conducted audit which is authorized by statute. We would note that our conclusion with respect to this issue is generally consistent with a previous informal opinion of this office dated December 7, 1979, in which we determined that the Division of Communications and the Central Data Processing Division of DAS had a duty under section 81-1107.02 to release telephone call detail information to the Auditor of Public Accounts for the purpose of conducting audits.

Attorney General Opinion No. 92116 (Oct. 8, 1992).

In sum, there is no "point in the audit process" at which "senators' long distance telephone records lose their exempt status" since they are never exempt from the Public Records Act, and are always available to the Auditor of Public Accounts for audit purposes. Members of the general public may be denied access to the records at the discretion of the custodian of the records, and, as discussed more fully below, certain calls may be designated as confidential by Senators.

The second question presented is "If . . . I respond to the {Auditor's request for certain information regarding certain telephone calls} . . . do I waive any confidentiality rights I might have to those records{?}" This question is followed by a related query: "Does the fact that the telephone records are referenced in subsequent correspondence cause them to lose their exempt status?" Again, these questions are premised on a misreading of the applicable statutes. Records cannot lose "exempt status" which they never had. Correspondence between Senators and the Auditor fall within the broad definition of "public records." Such correspondence may be withheld from the public by Senators under § 84-712.05(11). However, this statute does not permit the Legislature to withhold records of expenditures of state funds or related information from the Auditor of Public Accounts. See Breslow v. Primeau. Nor does it prohibit disclosure by the Auditor of misuse of public funds, or disclosure of documents for which he is the custodian. The Auditor may lawfully withhold certain information concerning Legislative phone records from the public, and has, in fact, promised to do so with regard to the information sought from you.

Finally, you inquire as to the "legal authority and reasoning behind the conclusion reached in Mr. Comer's September 16, 1994, letter that the release of Senator Wesely's records by the State Auditor was authorized." The letter in question advised the Auditor of Public Accounts that "your letter of inquiry to Senator Wesely together with the details of specific long distance telephone records which are the subject of your inquiry {regarding irregularities in Senator Wesely's phone records} are public records under the pertinent Nebraska statutes which you may release to the public." (Letter from Assistant Attorney General Dale Comer to Auditor John Breslow, dated September 16, 1994).

As discussed in detail above, the phone records of Legislators fall within the statutory definition of "public records." See Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-712.01.[2] However, they may be withheld from the public by their custodian. See § 84-712.05(11). Furthermore, pursuant to Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-1120.27(3) (1993 Supp.) Legislators may conceal certain "sensitive or confidential" phone call records from the Auditor (except as to the date and the amount of the expenditures). However, audit reports and related correspondence may clearly be released to the public by the Auditor of Public Accounts, as there is no prohibition against such release under Nebraska law. In fact, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-712.05 (1993 Supp.) specifically provides that records which are otherwise qualified to be withheld from the public, including Legislative phone expense records, may be "disclosed by a public entity pursuant to its duties." The phone records of Senator Wesely referenced in the September 16 letter (concerning 365 calls to campaign offices and campaign ad agencies) were not designated by Senator Wesely as confidential. The 15 longer and more expensive calls to campaign offices which Senator Wesely attempted to conceal from the Auditor were not discussed in the September 16 letter. These 15 calls became public information during a criminal investigation, not through public release by the Auditor.

Finally, § 84-712.05(11) authorizes only the withholding from the public of "records of telephone calls related to the performance of duties by a member of the Legislature." (Emphasis added). Campaign related calls are not related to the performance of legislative duties. In addition, pursuant to § 81-1120.27(3) only calls which the Legislator or the caller would "reasonably expect" not to be disclosed may be designated as confidential. It is our opinion that Senators could not "reasonably expect" nondisclosure of calls which violate state law. Furthermore, the ability to designate calls as confidential and withhold information from the Auditor applies to Senators, not to Legislative employees conducting non-legislative business. See § 84-1120.27(3). Thus, it is likely that even information concerning the 15 calls which were not the subject of the September 16 letter could also have been disclosed by the Auditor of Public Accounts pursuant to Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-712.05 (disclosure pursuant to duties) and § 84-304(1)(c)(iii) (Supp. 1993) (duty to report irregularities and misuse of public funds or property).

As this office has stated repeatedly over the course of the past two years, if the Legislature wishes to prevent public disclosure of certain information concerning Legislative phone records by the Auditor, it may do so by adopting statutory penalties for improper disclosure of legally confidential information. As was stated in the State of Nebraska's Reply Brief In Support of Motion for Summary Judgment as to Respondent Hall and the Respondent Class of State Legislators, p.8 (December 3, 1993), "There are other means for the protection of confidential information such as sanctions for its improper disclosure." "As the Attorney General stated at the hearing on this Motion for Summary Judgment, the Legislature could properly enact legislation to prohibit improper disclosure of confidential information obtained by the Auditor in the course of auditing the Legislature." Id. at 34. Any such legislation would, of course, have to adequately respect the Auditor's constitutional duties, as well as allow proper disclosure of information to law enforcement authorities.[3]

[1] We note that "public record" for purposes of section 81-1117.02 is defined in § 81-1117.04, independently from the public records statutes in § 84-712.

[2] Section 1 of LB 579 provided, in part, "The records used and compiled pursuant to this section shall not be considered public records for purposes of section 84-712 to 84-712.09." However, section 1 of LB 579 was declared unconstitutional in Breslow v. Primeau.

[3] We would note that no such protection now covers highly confidential communications of the State Patrol, Governor, Supreme Court, Attorney General's Drug Prosecution or Child Protection Unit or any other agency; yet, to our knowledge, no improper disclosures have occurred. We further note that all information released by the Auditor to law enforcement authorities was properly released. But for the passage of time and the consequent running of the applicable statute of limitations, criminal charges would likely have resulted from the phone calls in question.

Sincerely yours,
DON STENBERG

DATE: November 2, 1994

SUBJECT: Nebraska Constitution Article I, § 13 - Attendance of Victims at Trial

REQUESTED BY: Senator Carol McBride Pirsch

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Sam Grimminger, Deputy Attorney General

In relevant part, your proposed constitutional amendment would read, "A victim of a crime, as shall be defined by law, or his or her guardian or representative shall have the right to be present at trial unless the trial court finds sequestration necessary for a fair trial for the defendant." You ask whether legislation implementing the foregoing "would necessarily conflict with or limit any 'attendance rights' of a victim under the open court provisions of Art. I, Sec. 13 of the constitution of the state of Nebraska." Neb. Const. art. I, § 13, provides, "All courts shall be open, and every person, for any injury done him in his lands, goods, person or reputation, shall have a remedy by due course of law, and justice administered without denial or delay." It is presumed that your concern arises because under your proposed amendment, a victim-witness would be barred from being physically present in the courtroom during the period of time in which he or she would be sequestered.

If the proposed constitutional amendment is adopted, your proposed legislation would not run afoul of art. I, § 13, assuming, of course, that the legislation would conform to the proposed amendment. This is so because the proposed amendment would become part of the Nebraska Constitution and would, therefore, have the same footing as art I., § 13. The question then becomes whether there is a conflict between art.

I, § 13, and the proposed constitutional amendment and, if so, the result.

As the court explained in Jaksha v. State, 241 Neb. 106, 110-11, 486 N.W.2d 858, 863 (1992) (citation omitted):

> A constitutional amendment becomes an integral part of the instrument and must be construed and harmonized, if possible, with all other provisions so as to give effect to every section and clause as well as to the whole instrument. If inconsistent, a constitutional amendment prevails over a provision in the original instrument . . . .

The open courts provision was included within the original Nebraska Constitution. See First Trust Co. v. Smith, 134 Neb. 84, 106, 277 N.W. 762, 774 (1938). Whether one attempts to harmonize art. I, § 13, and the proposed constitutional amendment or views the proposed amendment as a specific exception to art. I, § 13, the result would be the same. A victim-witness could be sequestered under the specific language of your proposed amendment.

SUBJECT: Correction of Technical Errors in Amendments to the Nebraska Constitution Proposed by Initiative Petition of the People

REQUESTED BY: E. Benjamin Nelson
Governor of Nebraska

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Dale A. Comer, Assistant Attorney General

At the general election on November 8, 1994, the people of the State of Nebraska approved amendments to the Nebraska Constitution which impose term limits on various state and federal officials. Those term limit amendments were proposed through an initiative petition effort of the people.

In your opinion request letter, you state that the petition language implementing constitutional term limits contains technical errors with regard to the placement of appropriate constitutional sections. Those errors are apparently acknowledged by the individuals who drafted the original petition. You then point out that Neb. Rev. Stat. § 32-712 (1993) requires you, as Governor, to proclaim, within 10 days of the completion of the Board of State Canvassers meeting, that any initiative measures which are approved by the voters of the state are in full force and effect as the law of the State of Nebraska. In connection with that proclamation process, you ask for our opinion as to whether:

> . . . these technical errors {in the constitutional amendments proposed by initiative petition} can be corrected and who has the proper legal authority to cure them. If your conclusion is that I have such authority, may the technical corrections be made in the proclamation? If I cure these errors and a lawsuit is subsequently filed against me for making the corrections, will you represent me in any such action?

For the various reasons discussed below, we do not believe that you have the authority to correct the technical errors in the petition as a part of your proclamation duties under § 32-712. However, we do believe that such errors may be cured as a part of the duties of the Nebraska Secretary of State and the Revisor of Statutes.

The technical errors described in your letter involve the amendments approved for Art. III, § 8, Art. IV, § 3 and Art. VII, § 15 of the Nebraska Constitution, which amendments generally impose term limits upon Nebraska legislators, state constitutional officers and state educational officers. In each of those amendments, the term limiting paragraph ends with language which makes the officer in question unable to serve in or ineligible to file for the office involved for a specified period after the expiration of the second of two consecutive terms "and as further provided in Article XV Section 20." Article XV, Section 20 of the Nebraska Constitution, as amended through the same petition effort in November, 1994, applies to federal officers. Article XV, Section 21 of the 1994 petition amendments, on the other hand, applies to the appointment of state officers. As a result, it appears clear that the reference to "Article XV Section 20" in the amendments at issue should actually be a reference to "Article XV Section 21." You ask if you can make that change in your proclamation under Section 32-712.

Art. III, § 4 of the Nebraska Constitution provides that an initiative measure to amend the Constitution "shall take effect upon proclamation by the Governor which shall be made within ten days after the official canvass of such votes." Moreover, the pertinent portions of Section 32-712 provide:

> The board of state canvassers shall canvass the votes upon each initiative or referendum measure in the same manner as is prescribed in the case of presidential electors. The Governor shall, within ten days of the completion of the canvass, issue his or her proclamation giving the whole number of votes cast in the state approving and rejecting each measure and declaring such measures as are approved by the constitutional number or majority of those voting to be in full force and effect as the law of the State of Nebraska from the date of such proclamation.

Therefore, the Governor's task under the Constitution and Section 32-712 is to declare, proclaim or publish the results of elections where initiative or referendum measures are proposed by the people.

Nebraska cases indicate that the election process is not complete until the election results are canvassed and declared according to law. State ex rel. Caldwell v. Peterson, 153 Neb. 402, 45 N.W.2d 122 (1950). In addition, constitutional amendments by initiative become effective, as noted above, upon certification by the Board of State Canvassers and proclamation by the Governor. Art. III, § 4, Constitution of Nebraska; Swanson v. State of Nebraska, 132 Neb. 82, 271 N.W. 264 (1937). However, the duty of declaring or publishing the results of an election is ministerial in nature. State v. Elder, 31 Neb. 169, 47 N.W. 710 (1891); 29 C.J.S. Elections § 237 (4); 26 Am. Jur. 2d Elections §304. In that regard, the Nebraska Supreme Court has indicated that ministerial acts may be enforced by mandamus since they do not involve judgment or discretion on the part of a state officer. State ex rel. Ball v. Hall, 130 Neb. 18, 263 N.W. 400 (1935). And, a ministerial act generally is defined as an act which a person performs in a given state of facts in a prescribed manner in obedience to the mandate of legal authority without regard to or the exercise of his or her judgment upon the propriety of the act being done. Gibson v. Winterset Community School Dist., 258 Iowa 440, 138 N.W.2d 112 (1966).

Since the Governor's function in declaring the results of an initiative election under the Constitution and Section 32-712 is ministerial in nature, we do not believe that you have authority to look behind the certification of the Board of State Canvassers to consider any technical defects in the initiative petition itself. In essence, your ministerial task is confined to publishing the results of the initiative election and declaring the initiative measure passed and in effect. Therefore, we believe that your proclamation pursuant to Section 32-712 should reflect the initiative language as presented to the petition signers, and we do not believe that you have authority to correct the technical errors enumerated in your letter.

While we do not believe that the Governor possesses the authority to correct technical errors in initiative petitions in the proclamation mandated by Section 32-712, that authority does rest with the Secretary of State and Revisor of Statutes in connection with the printing of constitutional amendments initiated by the people.

In addition to Section 32-712, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 32-704 (6) (1993) also deals with procedures subsequent to presentation of an initiative measure to the people:

> If any such measure shall, at the ensuing election, be approved by the people, then the copies of the petition filed with the Secretary of State and a certified copy of the Governor's proclamation declaring the same to have been approved by the people shall be identified and preserved. The Secretary of State shall cause every such measure and amendment to the Nebraska Constitution so approved by the people to be printed with the general laws enacted by the > next ensuing session of the Legislature with the date of the Governor's proclamation declaring the same to have been approved by the people.

As a result, the Secretary of State has the authority, under Section 32-704 (6), to print amendments to the Nebraska Constitution initiated by the people.[1]

The Secretary of State is the keeper of the public records of the State in his office, and it is generally the duty of a recording officer to correct mistakes and to supply omissions in records whenever he discovers them from data in his office. 81 C.J.S. States §132; 76 C.J.S. Records § 21. In addition, the Secretary of State has broad general authority to enforce the provisions of the election laws under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 32-1052 (1993). See State ex rel. Wieland v. Beermann, 246 Neb. 808, ___ N.W.2d ___ (1994). Those general rules, together with the authority of the Secretary of State under Section 32-704 (6) to print amendments to the Nebraska Constitution subsequent to an election, lead us to conclude that the Secretary of State does have the necessary authority to make the technical corrections in the constitutional amendments in question when they are printed. Those corrections should be included in the printed version of the constitutional amendments at issue.

In addition, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 49-705 (2) (f) (1993) allows the Revisor of Statutes to "correct faulty internal references" in preparing the statutory supplements and statutory replacement volumes issued periodically by his or her office. Those materials published by the Revisor of Statutes include the provisions of the Nebraska Constitution. Since the technical errors in the term limits amendments referenced in your letter involve what are essentially faulty internal references, and since the authority for the Revisor of Statutes in Section 49-705 (2) (f) is not limited, on its face, to statutory provisions, we believe that the Revisor of Statutes, in consultation with the Secretary of State, has the authority to make the technical corrections in the term limits amendments referenced in your letter as those amendments are printed in the proper volume of the Nebraska Statutes.

Apart from the technical errors in the term limits amendments noted in your opinion request letter, we would also point out that there is an additional technical error in that initiative petition. The latter portion of the initiative petition purports to amend Article XV of the Nebraska Constitution by adding new Sections 19, 20, 21 and 22. However, there is currently a Section 19 in Article XV of the Nebraska Constitution which deals with local liquor licenses. Therefore, Sections 19, 20, 21 and 22 in Article XV of the initiative petition must be renumbered when they are placed in the Constitution as Sections 20, 21, 22 and 23 respectively. We believe that the Secretary of State clearly has authority to make that change in numbering as the amendments are printed, since the initiative petition in question itself states in its preamble that: THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEBRASKA SHALL BE AMENDED AS INDICATED; OR PLACED IN ARTICLES AND SECTIONS AS DETERMINED BY COMPETENT AUTHORITY OF THE STATE AS FOLLOWS. (emphasis added).[2] That change will necessitate a further change in numbering in the paragraphs referenced in your letter.

In sum, we do not believe that you have authority to make the technical corrections in the initiative petition referenced in your letter as a part of your proclamation under 32-712, and your proclamation should set out the actual language of the initiative petition. However, the Secretary of State and the Revisor of Statutes should make the necessary technical corrections as the constitutional amendments are printed either in the bound volumes of statutes, in the statutory supplements, or separately. In that regard, we would suggest that the Secretary of State place an appropriate certification with the archival copies of the initiative petition and your proclamation in this instance to explain any changes in numbering in printed versions of the Constitution. It also might be appropriate to place a copy of this opinion with those materials.

[1] We would also note that Section 32-704 (6) supports our conclusion that the Governor does not have authority to correct technical errors in initiative petitions in his or her proclamation under Section 32-712. Section 32-704 (6) requires a copy of the original initiative petition to be preserved along with the Governor's proclamation of passage. If the Governor's proclamation contains corrected language for the constitutional amendments instituted by initiative, then the archival copies of those amendments would be inconsistent.

[2] We believe that this situation lends further support to our conclusion that the Secretary of State may correct the technical errors in the initiative petition described in your letter as the amendments are printed. As a result of the misnumbering in the latter portion of the initiative petition, the numerical references in the paragraphs set out in your letter which cross-reference the wrong constitutional section would have to be changed even if those errors had not occurred.

Sincerely yours,
DON STENBERG
Attorney General

INAUGURAL CEREMONIES

Chief Justice William C. Hastings administered the Oath of Office to the newly elected State officials.

Governor Ben Nelson delivered the following Inaugural Address:

Mr. Speaker, members of the 94th Legislature, honored guests, friends, family and my fellow Nebraskans:

It's cold outside but for the public officials of Nebraska the Heat is On! We have no time to rest. We have a job to do!

Our agenda this year must continue to change the face of government, to answer the mandate of the people that government become more efficient.

Let there be no doubt about it. In the next four years we WILL change the face of state government. The people of Nebraska demand it.

This is not the first time the people have vowed to change their government.

206 years ago, delegates from the thirteen United States of America gathered in Philadelphia for a convention to revise the Articles of Confederation. At that time, the balance of power between state and federal governments was weighted heavily on the side of the states.

They deliberated long and hard. But their efforts paid off. The members of the convention agreed new authority should be given to the federal government and a new constitution went into effect on March 4, 1789.

The challenges we face today are not unlike those faced by the members of that Constitutional Convention some 200 years ago. The difference is that the balance of power in our time has swung the opposite direction.

Washington has nearly eliminated the states' ability to govern the right that was established by the 10th Amendment of the United States Constitution.

Those early leaders of America had a great love for their new nation. They were driven by the same intensity of mission we feel the same desire for a better life the same sense of family, purpose and justice that drives us today.

Most of all, we can be sure our forefathers had courage...courage to defy the status quo, to overcome criticism and misunderstanding.

Courage to forge a better way of life and a better way of leadership.

In the past four years, I have seen that same kind of courage from the citizens of Nebraska and from their representatives in the legislature.

Our progress in technology is just one example, among many, that shows how we have affected the lives of individual Nebraskans in a positive way.

We are breaking new ground with distance learning and telecommunications. This use of technology brings Nebraskans closer, helps us improve our quality of life through economic development, education and medicine.

Doug Schadley of Indianola has used telecommunications to turn an idea for a new agricultural product into a profitable business venture in his hometown. Using Nebraska On-Line, Doug found the patent protection he needed to move his idea from the drawing board to production in rural Nebraska.

In central Nebraska, five schools have used distance learning to expand curriculum. With minimal costs, the students in those five schools have learned to speak Spanish and Japanese. Not only that, the kids have become friends instead of rivals.

In Ainsworth, George Botsford is using distance learning to help him overcome his physical challenge. Most importantly, through a telecommunications link, he has received moral support from his peers and medical professionals across the state. As a result, he no longer fears he will have to leave his brother Louie and the town of his birth.

For the sake of George, Doug, and the students in those five central Nebraska schools, as well as for all Nebraskans, we had the courage to change government where it needed to be changed.

We improved the financial condition of our state, we bolstered job training, we opened new markets for Nebraska products, and we continue to grow the economy of our state.

Through it all, we have shown the courage to defy the status quo. courage to address the needs of the people not the needs of government bureaucracy.

Seeing this courage makes me proud.

Our victory is that we have made the leap from the comfort of status quo to courageous change.

Our achievements of the past four years were capped by the unmistakable mandate of the people in November. It's a victory not so different from that of our remarkable Huskers in Miami. They rallied their strengths and realized their dreams.

We, too, will continue to build on our strengths, and realize our dreams for a #1 Nebraska.

Many of you have grown up in Nebraska as I have. You know instinctively what it means to be Nebraskan. It means family values. It means hard work. It means practicality. Responsible stewardship of the land. And deep affection for our neighbors.

The spirit of Nebraska includes, as well, the history and heritage that have brought us to this point.

All of us feel spirit of Nebraska. In parades and lemonade stands. In the commitment of our teachers and the energy of our young people. In the gleam in children's eyes. In the grainfields of our family farms.

These ideals are not new to us. Nebraska is one of the safest, healthiest, happiest and hardest-working states in the nation.

However, we cannot let down our guard. The challenges facing us as we approach the 21st century will overcome us if we are not prepared.

We've made a good start.

We are confronting...correcting...the inefficiencies and deficiencies of government.

Our fiscal house IS in order.

In many ways we are living the dream established by those thirteen states in 1789 as the foundation for our American way of life.

To preserve the strong foundation we've built, we must draw on our courage. We must continue to tackle the challenges of government efficiency and unfunded federal and state mandates.

That means changes in the way we have always done things. As Lt. Governor Robak has often said: "If you always do what you've always done, you'll always get what you've always got."

We MUST change. We WILL change. But those changes will be changes of common sense.

George Gallup, the famous pollster, has said, "The common people of America display a quality of good common sense."

Nowhere, more than in Nebraska, is common sense seen in the operation of individual lives. We run our businesses using common sense. We save our money for rainy days and we come to the aid of our neighbors without complaint because that's just good common sense in Nebraska.

Today, we must use that common sense and our courage for a new kind of leadership, a new way of looking at our future.

We will draw on our courage to create a system of government that does more than just talk about meeting Nebraskan's needs a system of government that is efficient, flexible and focused.

We will draw on our courage to create a fundamental new way of governing that is permanent, that won't end with a change in administration or with the influence of any one individual or group.

We'll draw on our courage to create government true to the federalist system initiated by our founding fathers, a system Americans believe in, a system based on good common sense, on fairness AND on opportunity.

THIS WILL be our legacy.

As your governor -- I pledge to uphold the trust Nebraskans have placed in me to continue making government responsible and responsive.

And now, I ask you, Mr. Speaker, members of the legislature, and my fellow Nebraskans to join me in this commitment to change, rational change, toward making the good life of Nebraska even better!

The Governor, Chief Justice, associate justices, newly elected state officials, congressional delegation, and families were escorted from the Chamber.

RESOLUTIONS

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION 6CA. Introduced by Dierks, 40; Jones, 43; Pirsch, 10; Schmitt, 41; Schrock, 38; Witek, 31.

THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION, RESOLVE THAT:

Section 1. At the general election in November 1996 the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of Nebraska shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska for approval or rejection:

To amend Article III, sections 2 to 4:

III-2 "The first power reserved by the people is the initiative ~~whereby~~ by which laws may be enacted and constitutional amendments adopted by the people independently of the Legislature. To initiate the enactment of a law or the adoption of a constitutional amendment, a petition shall be circulated which contains the entire proposed law or constitutional amendment. The petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State. If the petition is signed by the required number of registered voters appropriately distributed, the Secretary of State shall submit the proposed law or constitutional amendment to the electors of the state at the first general election held not less than four months after the petition is filed. The required number of signatures for a law is at least seven percent of the votes which were cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition. The required number of signatures for a constitutional amendment is at least ten percent of the votes which were cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition. The distribution of the registered voters signing a petition for a law or a constitutional amendment shall include signatures equal in number to at least five percent of the votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition from each of at least two-fifths of the counties in the state. ~~This power may be invoked by petition wherein the proposed measure shall be set forth at length. If the petition be for the enactment of a law, it shall be signed by seven percent of the registered voters of the state, and if the petition be for the amendment of the Constitution, the petition therefor shall be signed by ten percent of such registered voters. In all cases the registered voters signing such petition shall be so distributed as to include five percent of the registered voters of each of two-fifths of the counties of the state, and when thus signed, the petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State who shall submit the measure thus proposed~~

~~to the electors of the state at the first general election held not less than four months after such petition shall have been filed.~~

The same measure, either in form or in essential substance, shall not be submitted to the people by initiative petition, either affirmatively or negatively, more often than once in three years. If conflicting measures submitted to the people at the same election ~~be~~ are approved, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall ~~thereby~~ become law as to all conflicting provisions. The constitutional limitations as to the scope and subject matter of statutes enacted by the Legislature shall apply to those enacted by the initiative."

III-3 "The second power reserved is the referendum which may be invoked~~, by petition,~~ against any act or part of an act of the Legislature, except those making appropriations for the expense of the state government or a state institution existing at the time of the passage of such act. To refer an act or part of an act of the Legislature, a petition shall be circulated which sets out the title of the act against which the referendum is invoked and, if only a portion of the act is sought to be referred, the number of the section or sections or portion of sections of the act designating such portion. The petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State within ninety days after the Legislature at which the act sought to be referred was passed has adjourned sine die or for more than ninety days. If the petition is signed by the required number of registered voters appropriately distributed, the Secretary of State shall refer the act or the part of the act to the electors for approval or rejection at the first general election to be held not less than thirty days after the filing of the petition. The required number of signatures is at least five percent of the votes which were cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition. The distribution of the registered voters signing a referendum petition shall include signatures equal in number to at least five percent of the votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition from each of at least two-fifths of the counties in the state. ~~Petitions invoking the referendum shall be signed by not less than five percent of the registered voters of the state, distributed as required for initiative petitions, and filed in the office of the Secretary of State within ninety days after the Legislature at which the act sought to be referred was passed shall have adjourned sine die or for more than ninety days. Such petition shall set out the title of the act against which the referendum is invoked and, in addition thereto, when only a portion of the act is sought to be referred, the number of the section or sections or portion of sections of the act designating such portion. When the referendum is thus invoked, the Secretary of State shall refer the same to the electors for approval or rejection at the first general election to be held not less than thirty days after the filing of such petition.~~

When the referendum is invoked as to any act or part of act, other than emergency acts or those for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety, by petition signed by not less than ten percent of the registered voters of the state, distributed ~~as aforesaid~~ so as to include signatures equal in number to at least five percent of the votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition from each of at least two-fifths of the counties in the state, it shall suspend the taking effect of such act or part of act until the same has been approved by the electors of the state."

III-4 "~~The whole number of votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of an initiative or referendum petition shall be the basis on which the number of signatures to such petition shall be computed.~~ The veto power of the Governor shall not extend to measures initiated by or referred to the people.

A measure initiated shall become a law or part of ~~the~~ this Constitution, as the case may be, when a majority of the votes cast ~~thereon~~ on the measure, and not less than thirty-five ~~per cent~~ percent of the total vote cast at the election at which the ~~same~~ measure was submitted, are cast in favor ~~thereof~~ of the measure, and the measure shall take effect upon proclamation by the Governor which shall be made within ten days after the official canvass of ~~such~~ the votes. The vote upon initiative and referendum measures shall be returned and canvassed in the manner prescribed for the canvass of votes for president.

The method of submitting and adopting amendments to ~~the~~ this Constitution provided by this section shall be supplementary to the method prescribed in ~~the article~~ Article XVI of this Constitution, ~~entitled, "Amendments"~~ and the latter shall in no case be construed to conflict ~~herewith~~ with the provisions relating to initiative and referendum. The provisions with respect to the initiative and referendum shall be self-executing, but legislation may be enacted to facilitate their operation. ~~All propositions submitted in pursuance hereof~~ Initiative and referendum measures shall be submitted in a ~~non-partisan~~ nonpartisan manner and without any indication or suggestion on the ballot that they have been approved or endorsed by any political party or organization. Only the title or proper descriptive words of measures shall be printed on the ballot, and when two or more measures have the same title, they shall be numbered consecutively in the order of filing with the Secretary of State and the number shall be followed by the name of the first petitioner on the corresponding petition.".

Sec. 2. The proposed amendment shall be submitted to the electors in the manner prescribed by the Constitution of Nebraska, Article XVI, section 1, with the following ballot language:

"A constitutional amendment to reduce the number of signatures required on initiative and referendum petitions.
For Against".

Any citizen of the State of Nebraska may request the Commission on Judicial Qualifications to consider the qualifications of any Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge, and in such event the commission shall make such investigation as the commission deems necessary and shall, upon a finding of probable cause, reprimand such Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge or order a formal open hearing to be held before it concerning the reprimand, discipline, censure, suspension, removal, or retirement of such Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge. In the alternative or in addition, the commission may request the Supreme Court to appoint one or more special masters who shall be judges of courts of record to hold a formal open hearing to take evidence in any such matter, and to report to the commission. If, after formal open hearing, or after considering the record and report of the masters, the commission finds that the charges are established by clear and convincing evidence, it shall recommend to the Supreme Court that the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge involved shall be reprimanded, disciplined, censured, suspended without pay for a definite period of time not to exceed six months, removed, or retired as the case may be.

(2) The Supreme Court shall review the record of the proceedings and in its discretion may permit the introduction of additional evidence. The Supreme Court shall make such determination as it finds just and proper, and may order the reprimand, discipline, censure, suspension, removal, or retirement of such Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge, or may wholly reject the recommendation. Upon an order for retirement, the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall thereby be retired with the same rights and privileges as if he or she had retired pursuant to statute. Upon an order for removal, the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall be removed from office, his or her salary shall cease from the date of such order, and he or she shall be ineligible for judicial office. Upon an order for suspension, the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall draw no salary and shall perform no judicial functions during the period of suspension. Suspension shall not create a vacancy in the office of Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge.

(3) Upon order of the Supreme Court, a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall be disqualified from acting as a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge, without loss of salary, while there is pending (a) an indictment or information charging him or her in the United States with a crime punishable as a felony under Nebraska or federal law or (b) a recommendation to the Supreme Court by the Commission on Judicial Qualifications for his or her removal or retirement.

(4) In addition to the procedure set forth in subsections (1) and (2) of this section, on recommendation of the Commission on Judicial Qualifications or on its own motion, the Supreme Court (a) shall remove a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge other than a judge of the district or county court from office when in any court in the United States such justice or judge pleads guilty or no contest to a crime punishable as a felony under Nebraska or federal law, and (b) may suspend a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge other than a judge of the district or county court from office without salary when in any court in the United States such justice or judge is found guilty of a crime punishable as a felony under Nebraska or federal law or of any other crime that involves moral turpitude. If his or her conviction is reversed, suspension shall terminate and he or she shall be paid his or her salary for the period of suspension. If he or she is suspended and his or her conviction becomes final, the Supreme Court shall remove him or her from office.

(5) All papers filed with and proceedings before the commission or masters appointed by the Supreme Court pursuant to this section prior to a reprimand or formal open hearing shall be confidential. The filing of papers with and the testimony given before the commission or masters or the Supreme Court shall be deemed a privileged communication.

When the Commission on Judicial Qualifications determines that disciplinary action is warranted, whether it be a reprimand or otherwise, the Commission on Judicial Qualifications shall issue one or more short announcements confirming that a complaint has been filed; stating the subject and nature of the complaint, the disciplinary action recommended or reprimand issued, or the date of the hearing; clarifying the procedural aspects; and reciting the right of a judge to a fair hearing.

When the Commission on Judicial Qualifications determines that disciplinary action is not warranted, and the existence of any investigation or complaint has become publicly known, the judge against whom a complaint has been filed or investigation commenced may waive the confidentiality of papers and proceedings under this subsection.

The Supreme Court shall by rule provide for procedure under this section before the commission, the masters, and the Supreme Court.

(6) No Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall participate, as a member of the commission, or as a master, or as a member of the Supreme Court, in any proceedings involving his or her own reprimand, discipline, censure, suspension, removal, or retirement.".

WHEREAS, the State of Nebraska has traditionally recognized a variety of official state symbols as tangible representations of the proud spirit and heritage of our state; and

WHEREAS, the goldenrod, cottonwood, and western meadowlark are examples of some natural specimens that serve to symbolize the great diversity of the Nebraska landscape, while items such as the state nicknames, "The Cornhusker State" and "Tree Planters' State", and the state song, "Beautiful Nebraska", fittingly represent other aspects of our shared culture as Nebraskans; and

WHEREAS, in keeping with this custom, the designation of the square dance as an official state folk dance of Nebraska will provide suitable recognition for this popular American dance form; and

WHEREAS, first recorded in this country in 1651, the original square dances can be described as choreographic melting pots, containing elements of the Morris and maypole dances of England, the ballroom dances of France, and the church dances of Spain; as later immigrants arrived on our shores, square dancing evolved to include the folk dance traditions of nations such as Ireland, Germany, Italy, Poland, Austria, Russia, and Mexico; and

WHEREAS, brought to Nebraska by our pioneer forebears, square dancing quickly proved a popular diversion from the hardships faced by many settlers; in weathered barns or under starry skies, early Nebraskans joined their neighbors in the toe-tapping rhythms of these dances which strengthened and affirmed the bonds of community; and

WHEREAS, today, square dancing continues to be enjoyed by countless individuals of all ages and backgrounds, over 5,000 of whom claim membership in the state's one hundred twenty square dance clubs; although still known as square dancing, the term has been expanded to include clogging and round, contra, line, and heritage dancing within its scope; and

WHEREAS, an integral part of our state's cultural legacy, the square dance unites participants in a shared experience, crossing national and social barriers with its warmth and liveliness; the enduring beauty of this indigenous American dance form makes it an ideal choice for our official state folk dance and will serve as a fitting emblem for the rich diversity of our state's cultural heritage.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION:

1. That the Legislature designates the square dance as the official state folk dance of Nebraska.

Laid over.

RESOLUTIONS

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION 16. Introduced by Kristensen, 37; Withem, 14.

WHEREAS, the United States' Constitution established a balanced compound system of governance and through the Tenth Amendment reserved all non-delegated and non-prohibited powers to the States or to the people; and

WHEREAS, over many years, the Federal government has dramatically expanded the scope of its power and pre-empted state government authority and increasingly has treated States as administrative subdivisions or as special interest groups, rather than co-equal partners; and

WHEREAS, the Federal government has generated massive deficits and continues to mandate programs that State and Local governments must administer; and

WHEREAS, the number of federal unfunded mandates has grown exponentially during the last thirty years and has profoundly distorted State budgets, handcuffing the ability of State leaders to provide appropriate and needed services to their constituencies; and

WHEREAS, since 1990, the Federal government has enacted at least forty-two major statutes imposing burdensome and expensive regulations and requirements on States and Localities, which is nearly equal to all those enacted in the prior two decades combined; and

WHEREAS, persistent, State-led endeavors have consistently failed to generate any substantial reaction or remedy from the Federal government; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly determined that the States must look to the Congress and related political remedies for protection against Federal encroachments on the reserved powers of the States; and

WHEREAS, the Council of State Governments, through its Intergovernmental Affairs Committee, has been the champion of State sovereignty for many years; and

WHEREAS, in recent years, States have been the principal agents of government reform, including updating their constitutions, modernizing and restructuring governmental institutions, and, along with Local governments, have been the pioneers of government innovation, thus responding to the needs of their citizens; and

WHEREAS, the Council of State Governments recognizes a sense of urgency in calling for The Conference of the States, whereby each State government would send a delegation to develop a comprehensive Action Plan to restore balance in the Federal system; and

WHEREAS, the aforementioned experience of The Council of State Governments, in conjunction with its regional structure and groupings of elected and appointed officials from all three branches of State government, reflects an entity ideally suited to promote and facilitate such a conference; and

WHEREAS, The Conference of the States will communicate broad bipartisan public concern on the extent to which the American political system has been distorted and provide a formal forum for State governments to collectively propose constructive remedies for a more balanced State-Federal governance partnership for the twenty-first century.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION:

(1) A delegation of five voting persons from the State of Nebraska, shall be appointed to represent the State of Nebraska at a Conference of the States for the purposes described in Section (2) to be convened as provided in Section (3). The delegation shall consist of five voting persons as follows: (a) The governor or, if the governor does not wish to be a member of the delegation then a constitutional officer selected by the governor; and (b) four legislators selected by the presiding officer. No more than two of the four legislators may be from the same political party. The presiding officer may designate two alternate legislator delegates, one from each party, who have voting privileges in the absence of the primary delegates.

(2) The delegates of The Conference of the States will propose, debate, and vote on elements of an action plan to restore checks and balances between states and the national government. Measures agreed upon will be formalized in an instrument called a States' Petition and returned to the delegation's state for consideration by the entire Legislature.

(3) The Conference of the States shall be convened under the nonprofit status, section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, of The Council of State Governments in cooperation with the National Governors' Association and the National Conference of State Legislatures no later than two hundred seventy days after at least twenty-six legislatures adopt this resolution without amendment.

(4) Prior to the official convening of The Conference of the States the steering committee will draft:

(a) The governance structure and procedural rules for the Conference;

(b) The process for receiving rebalancing proposals; and

(c) The financial and administrative functions of the Conference, including The Council of State Governments as fiscal agent.

(5) The bylaws shall:

(a) Conform to the provisions of this resolution;

(b) Specify that each state delegation shall have one vote at the Conference; and

(c) Specify that the Conference agenda be limited to fundamental, structural, long-term reforms.

(6) Upon the official convening of The Conference of the States, the State delegations will vote upon and approve the Conference governing structure, operating rules and bylaws.

Laid over.

Sec. 10. Cloture. At any stage of consideration the principal introducer of the bill under consideration, a cointroducer with the consent of the principal introducer, or the chairperson of the committee, if the bill is introduced by that committee, may move for a cloture to the presiding officer after eight hours of debate on the bill at that stage of consideration, except that the appropriation bills introduced by the Appropriations Committee shall be subject to a cloture motion after twelve hours of debate at that stage of consideration. The presiding officer shall immediately recognize such introducer or chairperson and shall then order debate on the pending amendment or motion to cease. A vote on the pending amendment shall be taken immediately. If the pending matter is an amendment to an amendment, following a vote on the amendment to the amendment, a vote shall then be taken on the original amendment. If the original amendment has been divided, then the vote shall be on only the divided portion of the amendment being considered. Following the vote on such pending matter, a vote on the cloture motion shall be taken. A two-thirds majority of the elected members shall be required for the cloture motion to be successful. A motion for cloture shall be in order except while a member is speaking, and a motion for cloture is not debatable. If the motion for cloture is successful, a vote on the advancement of the bill shall be taken, without debate, immediately following the vote on cloture.

A motion for cloture shall have precedence over all other motions except a motion to recess or adjourn.

An unsuccessful motion for cloture shall result in the debate on the bill ending for the day. When the Speaker chooses to resume debate on the bill, successive motions for cloture shall not be in order until two additional hours of debate on the bill has occurred.

Amend Rule 7, Sec. 3(e), as follows:

(e) Any member may call for the division of a question, which shall be divided if it comprehends propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the Legislature. Once a division is ordered by the presiding officer, each component shall be treated as a separate and distinct proposition, and individual components shall not be amendable. Once a vote or change has occurred on any of the divisible questions, the remaining divided sections may not be withdrawn without a majority of those voting or without unanimous consent. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible, but a motion to strike out being lost, shall not preclude an amendment or a motion to strike out or insert. Such call for division shall not be allowed when considering motions under Rule 6, Section 6.

Amend Rule 6, Section 6, as follows:

Sec. 6. Return to Select File. (1) On a motion to return a bill to Select File for a specific amendment, a majority of the elected members must concur. No other amendment shall be considered when the bill is so returned. Such amendment when considered may be adopted by a majority of the elected members. (2) A point of order to determine the germaneness of a specific amendment may be considered during a motion to return a bill to Select File for specific amendment.

Amend Rule 7, Sec. 3(e), as follows:

(e) Any member may call for the division of a question, which shall be divided if it comprehends propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the Legislature. Once a division is ordered by the presiding officer, each component shall be treated as a separate and distinct proposition. For purposes of germaneness, if a question is germane prior to a request for division, each and every other component or proposition of the divided question will likewise be germane to the bill or pending amendment. Once a vote to change has occurred on any of the divisible questions, the remaining divided sections may not be withdrawn without a majority of those voting or without unanimous consent. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible, but a motion to strike out being lost, shall not preclude an amendment or a motion to strike out or insert. Such call for division shall not be allowed when considering motions under Rule 6, Section 6.

Amend Rule 7, Section 9.

Sec. 9. Motion to Adjourn. A motion to adjourn shall be in order, except:

a. While a member is speaking.
b. When a motion to adjourn or recess has just been defeated.
c. After the Final Reading of a bill and during roll call thereon.

A motion to adjourn to a time certain shall have precedence over a motion to adjourn. A motion to recess shall take precedence over either of such motions. Successive motions to adjourn or recess are never in order for dilatory purposes.

When a motion to adjourn or recess has been made, the Speaker shall be privileged to speak to the motion prior to any vote on such motion. A motion to adjourn or recess is not debatable.

A motion to adjourn or recess shall be adopted if approved by a majority of members voting.

Amend Rule 7 by adding a new section:

Sec. 11. Motions and amendments shall not be filed for dilatory purposes. If a series of amendments and/or motions are offered to a bill or resolution, any member may raise a point of order stating that he or she believes the amendments and/or motions are being used for dilatory purposes. If in the opinion of the Speaker the motions and/or amendments are not dilatory, debate on the pending measure shall continue. This decision shall not be subject to a motion to overrule the Speaker. If the Speaker has reason to believe that the amendments and/or motions are dilatory in nature, he or she may temporarily remove the pending measure from the agenda. The Speaker shall meet with the principal introducer of the original measure and the principal introducer of the amendments and/or motions in an attempt to reach an accord as to which amendments and/or motions should be considered by the Legislature. If an accord is not reached and the measure has been removed from the agenda, the Speaker shall return the measure to the agenda that day if feasible but no later than the next legislative day and shall rule which amendments and/or motions are out of order as being dilatory. No appeal may be taken to overrule the decision of the Speaker.

RESOLUTIONS

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION 22CA. Introduced by Schimek, 27; Kristensen, 37; Landis, 46; Warner, 25.

THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION, RESOLVE THAT:

Section 1. At the general election in November 1996 the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of Nebraska shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska for approval or rejection:

To amend Article III, sections 2 to 4:

III-2 "The first power reserved by the people is the initiative whereby laws may be enacted and constitutional amendments adopted by the people independently of the Legislature. This power may be invoked by petition wherein the proposed measure shall be set forth at length. If the petition be for the enactment of a law, it shall be signed by ~~seven percent of the~~ registered voters of the state~~, and if~~ equal in number to at least eight percent of the number of registered voters on the date of the most recent general election. If the petition be for the amendment of the Constitution, the petition ~~therefor~~ shall be signed by ~~ten percent of such~~ registered voters equal in number to at least twelve percent of the number of registered voters on the date of the most recent general election. In all cases the registered voters signing such petition shall be so distributed as to include five percent of the registered voters of each of two-fifths of the counties of the state, and when thus signed, the petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State who shall submit the measure thus proposed to the electors of the state at the first general election held not less than four months after such petition shall have been filed. The same measure, either in form or in essential substance, shall not be submitted to the people by initiative petition, either affirmatively or negatively, more often than once in three years. If conflicting measures submitted to the people at the same election be approved, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall thereby become law as to all conflicting provisions. The constitutional limitations as to the scope and subject matter of statutes enacted by the Legislature shall apply to those enacted by the initiative. The special challenges of relying solely on volunteer petition circulators is explicitly recognized. To accommodate these special challenges, petition signatures gathered during a nonpaid petition drive shall be granted a tabulation bonus of one additional signature counted for each valid signature submitted. Paid petition drive means a drive for signatures in which one or more circulators receive payment to collect signatures. Payment means compensation for collecting signatures other than reimbursement for travel and meals."

III-3 "The second power reserved is the referendum which may be invoked, by petition, against any act or part of an act of the Legislature, except those making appropriations for the expense of the state government or a state institution existing at the time of the passage of such act. Petitions invoking the referendum shall be signed by ~~not less than five percent of the~~ registered voters of the state equal in number to at least six percent of the number of registered voters on the date of the most recent general election, distributed as required for initiative petitions, and filed in the office of the Secretary of State within ninety days after the Legislature at which the act sought to be referred was passed shall have adjourned sine die or for more than ninety days. Such petition shall set out the title of the act against which the referendum is invoked and, in addition thereto, when only a portion of the act is sought to be referred, the number of the section or sections or portion of sections of the act designating such portion. When the referendum is thus invoked, the Secretary of State shall refer the same to the electors for approval or rejection at the first general election to be held not less than thirty days after the filing of such petition.

When the referendum is invoked as to any act or part of act, other than emergency acts or those for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety, by petition signed by ~~not less than ten percent of the~~ registered voters of the state equal in number to at least twelve percent of the number of registered voters on the date of the most recent general election distributed as aforesaid, it shall suspend the taking effect of such act or part of act until the same has been approved by the electors of the state. The special challenges of relying solely on volunteer petition circulators is explicitly recognized. To accommodate these special challenges, petition signatures gathered during a nonpaid petition drive shall be granted a tabulation bonus of one additional signature counted for each valid signature submitted.

Paid petition drive means a drive for signatures in which one or more circulators receive payment to collect signatures. Payment means compensation for collecting signatures other than reimbursement for travel and meals."

III-4 "~~The whole number of votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of an initiative or referendum petition shall be the basis on which the number of signatures to such petition shall be computed.~~ The veto power of the Governor shall not extend to measures initiated by or referred to the people. A measure initiated shall become a law or part of the Constitution, as the case may be, when a majority of the votes cast thereon, and not less than thirty-five per cent of the total vote cast at the election at which the same was submitted, are cast in favor thereof, and shall take effect upon proclamation by the Governor which shall be made within ten days after the official canvass of such votes. The vote upon initiative and referendum measures shall be returned and canvassed in the manner prescribed for the canvass of votes for president. The method of submitting and adopting amendments to the Constitution provided by this section shall be supplementary to the method prescribed in the article of this Constitution, entitled, "Amendments" and the latter shall in no case be construed to conflict herewith. The provisions with respect to the initiative and referendum shall be self-executing, but legislation may be enacted to facilitate their operation. All propositions submitted in pursuance hereof shall be submitted in a non-partisan manner and without any indication or suggestion on the ballot that they have been approved or endorsed by any political party or organization. Only the title or proper descriptive words of measures shall be printed on the ballot and when two or more measures have the same title they shall be numbered consecutively in the order of filing with the Secretary of State and the number shall be followed by the name of the first petitioner on the corresponding petition.".

Sec. 2. The proposed amendment shall be submitted to the electors in the manner prescribed by the Constitution of Nebraska, Article XVI, section 1, with the following ballot language:

"A constitutional amendment to change the number of signatures needed and the method of calculating the number of signatures for initiative and referendum measures.

MOTION - Escort Governor

Mrs. Hillman moved that a committee of five be appointed to escort the Governor of the State of Nebraska to the Legislative Chamber to deliver his State of the State and Budget Address.

The motion prevailed.

The Chair appointed Messrs. Beutler, Bromm, Dierks, Wickersham, and Lindsay to serve on said Committee.

The Committee returned and escorted Governor Ben Nelson to the rostrum where he delivered the following State of the State and Budget Address.

"The public good, the real welfare of the people is the goal of government. No government in any form, has value except as we use it to attain this goal."

Madame President, members of Nebraska's 94th Legislature family, friends and fellow Nebraskans...

Those are the paraphrased words of a famous statesman. His words sum up the need for us to continue changing the focus of government in the 1990s...toward government that upholds the good of the people, away from government for its own sake.

The name of that innovative statesman is President James Madison. The words appear in 1788 in the Federalist Papers... in this case, a letter to the people of New York, urging them to support changes in government. Changes that would establish a balance of power between state and federal governments of that day for the good of the people. Changes that would follow the original intent of the United States Constitution.

Even with the passing of more than 200 years, the goals of American government have not changed. However, we are once again facing an imbalance in governmental power. You've heard me say over and again: WE MUST CHANGE THE FACE OF GOVERNMENT.

I'm the first to admit change is not always easy. You don't have to look past my tie collection to see I'm not a rebel.

But when change is positive, for a good cause...when it is critical to our well-being, we must admit the need for change and have the courage to follow through.

President Andrew Jackson, in 1829, received a letter from then-Governor Martin Van Buren of New York which read as follows: "The canal system of this country is being threatened by the spread of a new form of transportation known as railroads."

Governor Van Buren was afraid railroad carriages, pulled at the "enormous" speed of 15 miles per hour, were endangering and frightening citizens, setting fire to crops, and jeopardizing the security of the nation. Not only that, he feared many canal workers would lose their jobs.

In hindsight, those views were narrow. It was a good decision to go ahead with the railroad. Americans had the courage to recognize the need for that change...and proceed with confidence.

Today, we also must have courage for change...change in the way we govern. Then we must proceed with confidence.

As always, when we begin a new legislative session, we face many challenges.

After decades of government set in its ways, our two biggest challenges still are government inefficiency and inflexible regulation.

Let's put it this way: Government has become disorderly... and demanding.

Disorderly government means Washington and the States duplicating one another's efforts. Or two agencies performing the same functions. Disorderly means running the state for the sake of government...not for the sake of the people. It means ineffective use of our resources. Disorderly government is inefficient government.

We've begun, over the past four years, to reduce duplication, remove unnecessary functions and use resources better. We will continue our fight for more efficient government!

Demanding government means regulatory overkill. It means inflexible, unfunded mandates. Government has a bad habit of telling us what to do and how to do it.

It's costing state and local taxpayers billions of dollars each year! We spend so much money on mandates, we don't have dollars left over to spend on our priorities.

The federal government has more power over our state budget than we do. The balance of power intended by the drafters of the constitution is no longer in place. It's time for Washington to stop playing big brother...time to start playing fairly.

We already have been fighting against unfair federal mandates and we will continue our fight on two fronts...one is long-term and the other, short-term.

To accomplish a long-term change in federal government, Nebraska must come together with other states...as partners...and respectfully nudge Congress away from unfunded mandates.

In the past four years, we've made progress. I've testified before Congress several times, led national committees on mandates and co-sponsored a push for a Conference of the States.

Our efforts are beginning to pay off. Representatives from every state will meet this year to draft a firm message to Washington: We will no longer tolerate unfunded mandates. We must restore the balance of power. The States and Congress must return to our work for America as equal partners.

Just as when our nation's founders convened a Constitutional Convention more than 200 years ago...this Conference of the States shows we mean business as well. And others from every state in the nation agree.

We all agree this process must be bi-partisan, and without influence of special interests. If either of those conditions is not met, we will stop our progress until they are met.

I am not exaggerating when I say...this Conference of the States will make history...and Nebraska is leading the way.

The second front of our attack against unfunded mandates and inefficient government is right here at home.

We have the power to make change happen...now...on our own turf, in our own state. We will make sure Nebraska communities, businesses and citizens have a say in rules and regulations that affect them.

The Executive Order I signed last year was a beginning. It requires State agencies to bring communities into the lawmaking process early on. Our negotiated rule-making process supports that effort.

Change doesn't always happen overnight.

The spread of railroad tracks into the heart of our nation took a little time. But the many people who built the railroad were inspired and challenged. They worked fast and hard.

And when they were finished, a great length of steel from coast to coast would outlive their own generation and carry a message into the future. That message is: We are a progressive nation and when we put our minds to it, we can do anything!

Likewise, no one expects changes in government to happen overnight. We will plan our strategy, take our time to make these changes real and permanent...and we WILL confidently move forward. Because it's the right thing to do. And it's about time we did it.

Picture a typical Nebraska family. They lead a wholesome life. They have strong values...and they work hard. Still, sometimes they struggle to make ends meet. I want to make their lives a little better. So they can enjoy the good life of Nebraska. So life for them is more than a matter of survival.

To do that for the families of Nebraska, we must look at everything we do in 1995 through the twin filters of efficiency and flexibility.

In other words, we must continue to clean up the disorder... and the demanding attitude of government.

Last week, when I announced an income tax cut for Nebraska taxpayers, I took the first of many steps to show Nebraskans I am serious about making government more efficient and flexible.

Some have questioned how we will come up with the money to not only fund this tax cut, but balance the budget and pay for new initiatives. It won't be easy.

But we can, indeed, pay for everything I am proposing.

We are doing things differently now. We are looking at our budget in a new way.

> Our budget will -- among other things -- return vacancy savings of more than $12 million dollars to the general fund.
> Our budget will bring the state more than $52 million in new federal matching funds for existing human service programs.
> Our budget requires agency directors to find efficiencies totaling more than $44 million dollars.

The people of Nebraska deserve to share the savings. But the tax cut is more than a handout to Nebraska families. In a day and age when governments are typically raising taxes, we are cutting taxes.

It sends a message to the people of Nebraskan that the focus of government has changed...from government itself, to the people of this state and their basic needs. And that's the whole point.

Many Nebraskans have been asking: Why did you cut income taxes, when property taxes are the real headache. Couldn't you have given the $70 million dollars back to local governments for property tax relief?

The answer to that question is: YES, I could have. But let's learn a lesson from Nebraska history.

In 1967, the State of Nebraska implemented sales and income taxes to reduce property taxes. Within three years, more property tax was levied than ever before!

In 1989, LB 84 returned more than $100 million dollars to local governments. The money was intended for property tax relief. It didn't work. Instead, almost all of the $100 million dollars went for new spending and added to the base.

The following year, $200 million dollars more were allocated for state aid to schools. After initial decreases, property taxes still continue to increase.

We took over municipal courts and Medicaid...we gave a homestead exemption...we shared the state's sales tax base with local governments.

It's not that we don't want to help.

But the only way to get property tax relief is to cut spending. Anything else is masking the problem.

On the other hand, it's unfair to be too critical of local spending when much of the spending is a result of federal and state mandates beyond local control.

Instead of playing the blame game, we must come together as Nebraskans to address this problem. It's time for us to admit our approach to property taxes hasn't worked.

I pledge to join with cities, counties and schools to find solutions to these problems.

In the meantime, I will ONLY support a tax proposal that actually puts tax dollars back into the pockets of Nebraskans.

In the past four years, we have made headway toward more efficient and responsive government.

We pulled this state together by... cutting $100 million dollars from the budget cutting taxes
  and beginning to resolve our tax crisis.

We... created jobs for Nebraskans increased agricultural exports by 429% set aside lottery funds for education and the environment.

We...
promoted ethanol and came one step closer to becoming energy self-sufficient through the use of locally-based renewable fuels.

We... pushed for welfare and health care reform . . . AND worked hard to make our state safe.

Now, ask yourselves this question...What can government provide to Nebraskans to make the good life even better?

Part of the answer to that question lies in our 1995 legislative agenda.

First, if we expect to run state government more efficiently, we must clean our own house. We must get a handle on out-of-control government wherever it appears.

I am pleased to announce this goal in my Government Efficiency Package.

With these recommendations, we take state government beyond reaction to proaction. We will plan strategically and make more efficient use of our resources.

As a result of these efficiency recommendations, I expect to realize substantial dollar savings. In addition, I expect Nebraskans will see a simpler, more responsive government.

First, I propose we make the Department of Education a code agency. This will reduce duplication of effort and make local governments and local schools more responsible for carrying out education policy. It will make us ALL more accountable.

For the same reason, I propose a constitutional amendment to appoint the Board of Regents. Nearly 20% of the state's budget is allocated to higher education. We need to take more responsibility for this large part of the budget and be accountable to the citizens of Nebraska.

We will begin looking at the coordination of Health Care Policy.

Right now we have five agencies that work on health planning and policy. Sometimes they work together...and sometimes they don't. Consolidation of these functions will reduce costs. It also will streamline services which will make us more responsive to citizens.

In addition to coordinating Health Care Policy, we will study coordination of transportation functions. We will position Nebraska as a national leader and innovator in transportation, much as we have in telecommunications. To move us in that direction, I will soon announce a transportation efficiency project. The project will begin with an intensive study by Nebraska freight and carrier industries.

We will consolidate activities in international trade, job training, parole and probation administration.

We will coordinate activities basic to the operation of government...such as grant writing. From now on all state agencies will accept multi-purpose grant applications from communities. This means communities can coordinate requests for grant monies -- in ONE document -- to be used by ALL affected agencies.

I propose we merge administrative functions of the Public Employees' Retirement system...and of the Investment Council into the Department of Administrative Services.

I also propose we increase our efficiency by merging the administrative functions of the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission into the Department of Labor...and the administrative functions of the Power Review Board into the Nebraska Energy Office.

This year we will privatize the Soybean Board and the Department of Public Institutions' laundry services, as well as move the state print shop to Corrections.

Improved technology will help us streamline government in Nebraska. We will computerize State Patrol paperwork, increase use of the state video conferencing network and promote the sharing of electronic data.

The appropriate role of government is to help citizens help themselves...to feel safe, be healthy, and find jobs. Each of the initiatives I am proposing to you today will assist Nebraskans in meeting those basic needs.

Remember the days when we left our cars and houses unlocked? It's not that way anymore. In the past 10 years, arrests increased 70% for adults 198% for juveniles. I want you to know we will remain vigilant, and we will be aggressive in counteracting crime in Nebraska.

In 1995, I propose we continue our comprehensive approach to crime. We must address prevention, intervention AND detention.

First, the price of committing a crime in Nebraska will go up, especially for violent criminals and hardcore drug dealers.

Second, we will provide more tools to law enforcement such as, equipment grants and laboratory space for DNA testing.

We'll address the need for intervention, in part, by allocating an additional $3 million dollars to the Office of Juvenile Services for treatment and support of young people. The largest recent increase in crime is by and against young people. This is a priority of my agenda because we MUST not allow our youth to be trapped in the cycle of criminal behavior.

Finally, in the area of criminal detention, I propose we make it more difficult to parole violent offenders. In addition, we will provide funding for more prison guards and a boot camp. We will emphasize positive time and require inmates to EARN time off their sentences, rather than having it handed to them for merely behaving.

The people of Nebraska will not allow crime to go unchecked in our state.

In addition to feeling safe, the citizens of Nebraska deserve to be able to provide for themselves.

That is why I'm asking for a renewed commitment in the area of welfare reform.

We will expand the child care tax credit to reward middle and low income parents who work. We will strengthen enforcement of child support payments, in part with suspension and revocation of driver's and professional licenses.

We must continue to seek flexibility in the form of waivers from the federal government. We must revise conflicting statutes to move us beyond the change implemented last year. We must have practical and appropriate rules and regulations...and pass enabling legislation that will give Nebraskans a real opportunity to help themselves...to make their dreams into reality.

In addition to feeling safe and being able to provide for themselves, the citizens of Nebraska deserve to be healthy. We must be healthy to be productive. And we must be productive to be prosperous.

Even though we have come far in providing more health care options, some Nebraskans may still be unable to get health care. We will work this year to make health care more accessible by making government health care programs more efficient.

Through the Nebraska Health Care Policy Project, chaired by Lt. Governor Robak, we will work to realign state health and human services agencies to make them more efficient and more responsive.

We will achieve some flexibility in the state budget through changes in Medicaid managed care.

Then, we will review and evaluate existing programs to make sure they are as efficient and as responsive as possible. This includes a review of all rural health loan programs.

I want to help Nebraskans get better health care. I will ask for enhancement of the telemedicine program and the Rural Health Education Network at the University of Nebraska Medical Center. Also, I will call for private contracts with mental health professionals to provide services for children's mental health.

The cluster of Health and Human Services Agencies and the Governor's Blue Ribbon Coalition will study health data issues, cost containment, purchasing cooperatives and interstate compacts.

By forcing ourselves to become more efficient, we will more effectively carry out our steering role in health care...and leave the rowing to private providers.

In order to be healthy, safe and prosperous, Nebraskans deserve a first-rate education.

In 1995, that means efficient delivery of educational services. We need to determine just what it is we want from education in our state. We need to ask ourselves who should be paying for it.

Teachers play an important role in bolstering Nebraska for the good of our future. We appreciate their input into the lives of our children and their work in creating good citizens who will someday manage our state.

Educators, businesses, parents...and, yes, even the children...know what's best for their own communities. I have made a firm commitment to supporting local decisions in education.

To begin, we will adjust incentives and disincentives for reorganization of local school districts...only if they choose to reorganize.

Until then, we must protect the taxpayer with a reasonable lid on property taxes while preserving the opportunity for growth in the future.

We will move toward an educational system that is efficient, effective and helps all Nebraskans become active, involved and educated citizens of our state.

Better educated, better trained citizens get better jobs. And that's what we provide with my 1995 Economic and Human Resource Development package.

We will continue to support job training and school-to-work initiatives. We will support, as well, efforts to streamline these programs to ensure Nebraska workers are competitive.

In addition, I have proposed business tax incentives for job training and more skilled workers.

Through tax incentives in the Small Business Development Act, we will create new business opportunities in all of Nebraska's communities.

Just as importantly, this year, I will suggest we make an aggressive push to market our state. Nebraska's own Warren Buffett has agreed to give us a hand in that effort.

In addition, there are still many opportunities to bring money into our economy by selling Nebraska products internationally.

We also will transfer the technology research at our universities to our businesses to make them more competitive in the global economy.

We are in the enviable position of needing workers to fill the nearly 50 thousand jobs we have created over the past four years. After training our own to fill these positions, we must be able to attract workers from other places.

As you know, the state of Nebraska has not only boosted jobs in the private sector, but we have supported our own employees by raising their pay.

Finally, the citizens of Nebraska realize affordable housing is essential to the economic health of our state. I will work hard to get affordable housing for every Nebraska family.

Now, picture that typical Nebraska family again. They lead a wholesome life. They have strong values...and they work hard. Still, sometimes they struggle to make ends meet. If we have done our jobs right by the end of this session...their lives will be a little better. So they can enjoy the good life of Nebraska. So life for them IS INDEED more than a matter of survival.

All of these changes are, as President James Madison would say, for the public good, the real welfare of the people.

Just as James Madison and the nation's founders were aggressive and confident in their fight to uphold the constitutional balance of government, so must WE be aggressive and confident. We must declare our intent, take action and believe in ourselves.

We must work together without partisan or special interest bickering. Every level of government, every family, and every citizen of Nebraska must do their part to support these changes in government if they are to become real.

I ask you all to join me in this effort to streamline government...and have the courage for confident change. We must not be afraid to veer off our well-worn path of government management. It's obvious that change is what the people of Nebraska want.

We must have confidence to work as fast and as hard as those builders of the transcontinental railroad...and to leave a legacy as reliable as those steel rails...to keep Nebraska on track for health, safety and prosperity.

The Committee escorted Governor Ben Nelson from the Chamber.

Sec. 11. Motions and amendments shall not be filed for dilatory purposes. If more than two amendments and/or motions are offered to a bill or resolution, the principal introducer of the bill or resolution may raise a point of order stating that he or she believes the amendments and/or motions are being used for dilatory purposes. If in the opinion of the Speaker the motions and/or amendments are not dilatory, debate on the pending measure shall continue. If the speaker has reason to believe that one or more of the amendments and/or motions are dilatory, the speaker shall consult with the principal introducer of the original bill or resolution and the principal introducers of the amendment and/or motions in an attempt to reach an accord as to which amendments and/or motions should be considered by the Legislature. For that purpose the speaker may temporarily remove the entire bill, or resolution, from the agenda. After consultation the speaker shall forthwith decide which, if any, amendments and/or motions are dilatory and shall rule such amendments and/or motions out of order. A motion to overrule the chair on any decision made pursuant to this section is not in order except that a ruling of the chair may be challenged by an introducer of amendments and/or motions ruled to be dilatory in which instance the challenge shall be to all amendments and/or motions included in the speaker's ruling. The consultation, and the speaker's ruling subsequent to consultation provided for in this section, shall in no case result in a bill or resolution being removed from the agenda for more than the current legislative day.

The Chair declared the call raised.

Mr. Bernard-Stevens offered the following proposed rules change:

Rule 7, Section 2(d)

(d) Whenever the "ayes" and "nays" are taken by machine vote, no member shall be permitted to vote after the decision is announced by the presiding officer or the Clerk. Votes not registered on the electric roll call system shall not be counted for or against a proposition. In announcing such vote, the Clerk shall announce the ayes, the nays, those present and not voting, and on any action to advance or amend bills, these totals shall be set forth in the Journal. Voice votes shall be accepted on roll call or record votes. All roll call votes of the comprised membership shall be taken in alphabetical order starting with the first name that begins with the letter "A" or the letter closest to "A", except that any member may request a roll call vote reverse alphabetical order unless the introducer of the motion under consideration objects. Amend Rule 7, Section 3(e):

(e) Any member may call for the division of a question, which ~~shall~~ may be divided if it comprehends propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the Legislature. If any member objects to the division, the decision shall be put to the body as to whether the amendment should be divided. The motion to divide shall be debatable and will be allowed if a majority of those voting vote in favor of allowing the division. In a situation where a committee amendment is offered that constitutes a complete rewrite of the bill, it shall be non-divisible. Once a division is ordered by the presiding officer, each component shall be treated as a separate and distinct proposition. For purposes of germaneness, even if a question is germane prior to a request for division, each and every other component or proposition of the divided question will be subject to germane rulings. Once a vote to change has occurred on any of the divisible questions, the remaining divided sections may not be withdrawn without a majority of those voting or without unanimous consent. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible, but a motion to strike out being lost, shall not preclude an amendment or a motion to strike out or insert. Such call for division shall not be allowed when considering motions under Rule 6, Section 6.

Any citizen of the State of Nebraska may request the Commission on Judicial Qualifications to consider the qualifications of any Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge, and in such event the commission shall make such investigation as the commission deems necessary and shall, upon a finding of probable cause, reprimand such Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge or order a formal open hearing to be held before it concerning the reprimand, discipline, censure, suspension, removal, or retirement of such Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge. In the alternative or in addition, the commission may request the Supreme Court to appoint one or more special masters who shall be judges of courts of record to hold a formal open hearing to take evidence in any such matter~~,~~ and to report to the commission. If~~,~~ after formal open hearing~~,~~ or after considering the record and report of the masters~~,~~ the commission finds that the charges are established by clear and convincing evidence, it shall recommend to the Supreme Court that the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge involved ~~shall~~ be reprimanded, disciplined, censured, suspended without pay for a definite period of time, not to exceed six months, removed, or retired as the case may be.

(2) The Supreme Court shall review the record of the proceedings and in its discretion may permit the introduction of additional evidence. The Supreme Court shall make such determination as it finds just and proper~~,~~ and may order the reprimand, discipline, censure, suspension, removal, or retirement of such Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge, or may wholly reject the recommendation. Upon an order for retirement, the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall thereby be retired with the same rights and privileges as if he or she had retired pursuant to statute. Upon an order for removal, the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall be removed from office, his or her salary shall cease from the date of such order, and he or she shall be ineligible for judicial office. Upon an order for suspension, the Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall draw no salary and shall perform no judicial functions during the period of suspension. Suspension shall not create a vacancy in the office of Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge.

(3) Upon order of the Supreme Court, a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall be disqualified from acting as a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge, without loss of salary, while there is pending (a) an indictment or information charging him or her in the United States with a crime punishable as a felony under Nebraska or federal law or (b) a recommendation to the Supreme Court by the Commission on Judicial Qualifications for his or her removal or retirement.

(4) In addition to the procedure set forth in subsections (1) and (2) of this section, on recommendation of the Commission on Judicial Qualifications or on its own motion, the Supreme Court (a) shall remove a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge from office when in any court in the United States such justice or judge pleads guilty or no contest to a crime punishable as a felony under Nebraska or federal law~~,~~ and (b) may suspend a Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge from office without salary when in any court in the United States such justice or judge is found guilty of a crime punishable as a felony under Nebraska or federal law or of any other crime that involves moral turpitude. If his or her conviction is reversed, suspension shall terminate and he or she shall be paid his or her salary for the period of suspension. If he or she is suspended and his or her conviction becomes final the Supreme Court shall remove him or her from office.

(5) All papers filed with and proceedings before the ~~commission~~ Commission on Judicial Qualifications or masters appointed by the Supreme Court pursuant to this section prior to a reprimand or formal open hearing shall be confidential. The filing of papers with and the testimony given before the commission, the ~~or~~ masters, or the Supreme Court shall be deemed a privileged communication.

When the Commission on Judicial Qualifications determines that disciplinary action is warranted, whether it be a reprimand or otherwise, the Commission on Judicial Qualifications shall issue one or more short announcements confirming that a complaint has been filed; stating the subject and nature of the complaint, the disciplinary action recommended or reprimand issued, or the date of the hearing; clarifying the procedural aspects; and reciting the right of a judge to a fair hearing.

When the Commission on Judicial Qualifications determines that disciplinary action is not warranted~~,~~ and the existence of any investigation or complaint has become publicly known, the judge against whom a complaint has been filed or investigation commenced may waive the confidentiality of papers and proceedings under this subsection.

The Supreme Court shall by rule provide for procedure under this section before the commission, the masters, and the Supreme Court.

(6) No Justice or Judge of the Supreme Court or other judge shall participate, as a member of the commission, ~~or~~ as a master, or as a member of the Supreme Court, in any proceedings involving his or her own reprimand, discipline, censure, suspension, removal, or retirement.".

Sec. 2. The proposed amendment shall be submitted to the electors in the manner prescribed by the Constitution of Nebraska, Article XVI, section 1, with the following ballot language:

> "A constitutional amendment to provide for disciplinary action against judges on the basis of an inadequate level of competence to perform the duties of the office of judge.
> For > Against".

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION 35. Introduced by Coordsen, 32.

WHEREAS, there exists much concern among affected citizens of Nebraska with regard to the routing of a power transmission line planned by the Nebraska Public Power District; and

WHEREAS, there exists much concern among those affected Nebraskans about the lack of public participation in the planning and approval of power transmission lines of three hundred forty-five thousand volts or more in capacity; and

WHEREAS, the Ninety-fourth Legislature of Nebraska, First Session, has several bills introduced that would modify public power statutes if enacted.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION:

1. That the Legislature strongly encourages the Board of Directors of the Nebraska Public Power District to delay the start of construction of any power transmission line which exceeds ten miles in length and is of three hundred forty-five thousand volts or more until November 1, 1995, or later. This action would allow the Legislature time to properly consider statutory changes.

Laid over.

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION 36CA. Introduced by Beutler, 28.

THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION, RESOLVE THAT:

Section 1. At the general election in November 1996 the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of Nebraska shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska for approval or rejection:

To add a new section 3A to Article III:

III-3A "The Legislature may enact laws expressly conditioned upon ratification by the people.

The veto power of the Governor shall not extend to such laws. A law enacted by the Legislature expressly conditioned upon ratification by the people shall become a law when a majority of the votes cast on the law at the election at which the law was submitted, and not less than thirty-five percent of the total vote cast at the election, are cast in favor of the law. The law shall take effect upon proclamation by the Governor which shall be made within ten days after the official canvass of the votes. The vote shall be returned and canvassed in the manner prescribed for the canvass of votes for president.

All laws submitted pursuant to this section shall be submitted in a nonpartisan manner and without any indication or suggestion on the ballot that they have been approved or endorsed by any political party or organization. Only the title or proper descriptive words of measures shall be printed on the ballot.".

Sec. 2. The proposed amendment shall be submitted to the electors in the manner prescribed by the Constitution of Nebraska, Article XVI, section 1, with the following ballot language:

> "A constitutional amendment to authorize the Legislature to enact laws expressly conditioned upon ratification by the people, to prohibit the veto power of the Governor from extending to such laws, and to provide for the manner of submission and adoption of such laws.

THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION, RESOLVE THAT:

Section 1. At the general election in November 1996 the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of Nebraska shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska for approval or rejection:

To amend Article III, section 2, and Article XVI, section 1, and add a new section 4A to Article III:

III-2 "The first power reserved by the people is the initiative whereby laws may be enacted and constitutional amendments adopted by the people independently of the Legislature. This power may be invoked by petition wherein the proposed measure shall be set forth at length. If the petition ~~be~~ is for the enactment of a law, it shall be signed by seven percent of the registered voters of the state, and if the petition ~~be~~ is for the amendment of ~~the~~ this Constitution, the petition therefor shall be signed by ten percent of such registered voters. In all cases the registered voters signing such petition shall be so distributed as to include five percent of the registered voters of each of two-fifths of the counties of the state, and when thus signed, the petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State who shall submit the measure thus proposed to the electors of the state at the first general election held not less than four months after such petition shall have been filed.

The same measure, either in form or in essential substance, shall not be submitted to the people by initiative petition, either affirmatively or negatively, more often than once in three years. If conflicting measures submitted to the people at the same election ~~be~~ pursuant to this section are approved, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall thereby become law as to all conflicting provisions. The constitutional limitations as to the scope and subject matter of statutes enacted by the Legislature shall apply to those enacted by the initiative."

III-4A "The Legislature may propose laws and constitutional amendments as alternatives to measures proposed pursuant to Article III, section 2, of this Constitution.

The veto power of the Governor shall not extend to such measures. A measure submitted by the Legislature pursuant to this section shall become a law or part of this Constitution when a majority of the votes cast on the measure at the election at which the measure was submitted, and not less than thirty-five percent of the total vote cast at the election, are cast in favor of the measure. The measure shall take effect upon proclamation by the Governor which shall be made within ten days after the official canvass of the votes. The vote shall be returned and canvassed in the manner prescribed for the canvass of votes for president.

All measures submitted pursuant to this section shall be submitted in a nonpartisan manner and without any indication or suggestion on the ballot that they have been approved or endorsed by any political party or organization. Only the title or proper descriptive words of the measures shall be printed on the ballot.

If a measure submitted pursuant to this section conflicts with a measure submitted pursuant to Article III, section 2, of this Constitution, and both are approved by the people at the same election, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall become law."

XVI-1 "The Legislature may propose amendments to this Constitution. ~~If the same be~~ The amendments may be presented on the ballot as alternative measures to measures initiated by the people pursuant to Article III, section 4A, of this Constitution, or may be presented independently of measures initiated by the people. When two or more amendments are submitted at the same election, they shall be so submitted as to enable the electors to vote on each amendment. ~~separately.~~".

Sec. 2. The proposed amendment shall be submitted to the electors in the manner prescribed by the Constitution of Nebraska, Article XVI, section 1, with the following ballot language:

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINIONS

Opinion No. 95003

DATE:	January 13, 1995
SUBJECT:	Whether Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-2201.01 Vests Educational Service Units With Implied Authority to Sell Real Estate
REQUESTED BY:	Senator Douglas A. Kristensen Nebraska State Legislature
WRITTEN BY:	Don Stenberg, Attorney General Lauren L. Hill, Assistant Attorney General

You have requested our opinion as to whether Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-2201.01 (1987) vests an educational service unit {"ESU"} with the implied authority to sell real estate. The statute provides that > {i}n order to carry out {the role and mission imposed by statute}, educational service units may purchase, lease, or lease-purchase real estate, equipment, supplies, and personal property for their own use. Educational service units may . . . purchase, lease, lease-purchase, or act as purchase agent for administrative and instructional supplies, instructional equipment, and personal property for resale only to school districts and state colleges within the territorial boundaries of any educational service unit.

Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-2201.01 (1987) (emphasis added).

Two canons of statutory construction direct our analysis. First, "{i}n the absence of anything indicating to the contrary, statutory language is to be given its plain and ordinary meaning; when the words of a statute are plain, direct, and unambiguous, no interpretation is necessary or will be indulged in to ascertain their meaning." State on behalf of Matchett v. Dunkle, 244 Neb. 639, 643, ____ N.W.2d ____ (1993). Second, "{t}he maximum 'expressio unius est exclusio alterius' is applicable here." Nebraska City Education Assn. v. School

Dist. of Nebraska City, 201 Neb. 303, 306, 267 N.W.2d 530, 532 (1978). Under that principle, "where a statute or ordinance enumerates the things upon which it is to operate, or forbids certain things, it is to be construed as excluding from its effect all those not expressly mentioned, unless the legislative body has plainly indicated a contrary purpose or intention." Id. (quoting Starman v. Shirley, 162 Neb. 613, 76 N.W.2d 749 (1956)); See also Curry v. State ex rel. Stenberg, 242 Neb. 695, 496 N.W.2d 512 (1993); State Bd. of Agriculture v. State Racing Commission, 239 Neb. 762, 478 N.W.2d 270 (1992).

The language of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-2201.01 clearly and plainly authorizes an ESU to "purchase, lease, or lease-purchase real estate." We recognize the principle that restrictions upon the free alienability of real property should rarely be imposed. Therefore, it seems impractical to authorize an ESU to purchase real estate but not authorize the ESU to dispose of the property by resale. A technical reading of the statute, however, leads us to conclude that the Legislature has not authorized an ESU to sell real property under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-2201.01.

Our reasoning in reaching that conclusion is based upon several observations. First, had the Legislature intended to authorize ESU's to sell real property, it could have easily granted such power by inserting the word "sell" in the statute. The Legislature has, on many occasions authorized other public entities to sell property which they acquire. For example, you note that pursuant to Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-401 (Cum. Supp. 1992), school districts "may purchase, hold, and sell such . . . real estate as the law allows."

Also, in many instances where the Legislature has vested a public body with the power to sell real property, various restrictions have been placed upon that power. In Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-521 (Supp. 1993), the Legislature has directed that "{n}o school property of any kind belonging to any Class II, III, IV, or VI school district shall be sold by the board of education except at a regular meeting of the same and with an affirmative recorded vote of at least two-thirds of all members of the board." The statute further directs how proceeds of the property sale may be utilized by the school district. Id. In another statute, the Legislature has provided that in a Class VI school district, "{n}o transfer of property from an accredited school district to a nonaccredited school district of any class shall be permitted {except as specifically provided}." Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-1108 (1987). Another example of requirements imposed upon the sale of school property is set forth in Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-507 (1987), which mandates that fifty-five percent of the qualified voters of a Class I or Class II school district must approve the sale of any schoolhouse, site, building or other property belonging to the district.

Given that the Legislature could have easily included the term "sell" in Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-2201.01, that other public entities have been vested with the express power to sell real property in several other statutes, and that, in many instances, the Legislature has imposed requirements upon a public entity's ability to sell real property, we conclude that an implied power to sell real estate cannot be vested in educational service units under current law.

Sincerely yours,
DON STENBERG

Opinion No. 95004

DATE: January 18, 1995

SUBJECT: Constitutionality of Proposal to Change Qualifications of Membership on the State Board of Education

REQUESTED BY: Senator C. N. "Bud" Robinson
Nebraska State Legislature

Lauren L. Hill, Assistant Attorney General

You have requested an opinion from this office regarding the constitutionality of legislation "that will prohibit a member of the State Board of Education from concurrently serving as a member of the board of education of any school district in Nebraska." You have inquired whether your proposal to add this qualification for membership on the State Board of Education would conflict with Article VII, § 3 of the Nebraska Constitution. As we have not been provided with a draft of the legislation which you are contemplating, our opinion as to the constitutionality of your proposal "is necessarily limited to a review of the general outline of the plan as set forth above, rather than a review of {specific legislation}." Op. Att'y Gen. No. 82-214 (March 15, 1982).

Applicable Law

Several well-established principles of law are applicable to our analysis of your inquiry. Foremost among these principles is the separation of powers doctrine contained within the Nebraska Constitution:

> The powers of the government of this state are divided into three distinct departments, the legislative, executive, and judicial, and no person shall exercise any power properly belonging to either of the others, except as hereinafter expressly directed or permitted.

Neb. Const. art. II, § 1.

Interpreting this provision, the Nebraska Supreme Court has determined that it is "an absolute prohibition upon the exercise of the executive, legislative and judicial powers by the same person or the same group of persons. It has remained a part of the Constitution unchanged since 1875. It is more certain and positive than the provisions of the federal Constitution and those of some of the states, which merely definitely divided the three powers of government." Laverty v. Cochran, 132 Neb. 118, 120-21, 271 N.W. 354, 356 (1937); See also State ex rel. Spire v. Conway, 238 Neb. 766, 472 N.W.2d 403 (1991).

The court has also held that "The people of the state, by adopting a Constitution, have put it beyond the power of the legislature to pass laws in violation thereof." State ex rel. Randall v. Hall, 125 Neb. 236, 243, 249 N.W. 756, 759 (1933). Therefore, as we noted in a prior opinion, "{t}he legislative authority of the Unicameral is extensive. However, it is not limitless." Op. Att'y Gen. No. 93-012 (March 4, 1993) at 5.

Two final precedents are significant to your inquiry. First is the rule that because the Nebraska Constitution "is not a grant but a restriction on legislative power, . . . the {L}egislature may legislate upon any subject not inhibited by the Constitution." Swanson v. State, 132 Neb. 82, 90, 271 N.W. 264, 269 (1937); State ex rel. Quinn v. Marsh, 141 Neb. 436, 3 N.W.2d 892 (1942). Second, "when a state {c}onstitution creates an office and names the qualifications of the incumbent, the legislature has no authority to prescribe additional qualifications or to remove any of the requirements provided for by the {c}onstitution." State ex rel. Brazda v. Marsh, 141 Neb. 817, 830, 5 N.W.2d 206, 214 (1942); State ex rel. Quinn v. Marsh, 141 Neb. at 439, 3 N.W.2d at 894.

State Board of Education Member Eligibility Requirements

Article VII, Section 3 of the Nebraska Constitution provides that > {t}he State Board of Education shall be composed of eight members, who shall be elected from eight districts of substantially equal population as provided by the Legislature. Their term of office shall be for four years each. Their duties and powers shall be as prescribed by the Legislature, and they shall receive no compensation, but shall be reimbursed their actual expense incurred in the performance of their duties. The members of the State Board of Education shall not be actively engaged in the educational profession and they shall be elected on a non-partisan ballot.

Neb. Const. art. VII, § 3 (emphasis added).

Although Article VII has been amended several times since its inception, the text of this constitutional provision has remained essentially unchanged. See Laws 1965, c. 293, p. 834; Laws 1972, LB 1023.

In accordance with this constitutional provision, the Legislature has set forth the manner and method by which the eight State Board of Education members shall be elected. See Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-322 - § 79-322.02 (Cum. Supp. 1992). Additionally, the Legislature has statutorily prescribed that > {n}o person shall be eligible to membership on the State Board of Education (1) who is actively engaged in the teaching profession, (2) who is a holder of, or a candidate for any state office, board, or commission, or (3) unless he is a citizen of the United States, a resident of the state for a period of at least three years, and a resident of the district from which he is elected for a period of at least two years immediately preceding his election.

Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-323 (1987). The requirements of this statute were enacted in 1953, following the adoption of a constitutional amendment which formally created the State Board of Education. See Laws 1953, c. 320, § 3, p. 1054. The qualification on membership to the State Board contained in subsection (1) of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-323 arises from the restriction imposed by Article VII, Section III. The qualification set forth in subsection (2) of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-323 was apparently incorporated from a provision of the Nebraska Constitution which pertained to officers appointed pursuant to Article IV. See Neb. Const. art. IV, § 2 (1953). We are uncertain of the basis for the qualification imposed by Neb. Rev. Stat. § 79-323(3).

Discussion

Based upon the foregoing, we now address whether you may legislatively impose the requirement upon State Board of Education members that they not serve concurrently on local boards of education. At least one eligibility requirement for membership on the State Board of Education has been expressly set forth in Nebraska's Constitution. Article VII, Section 3 requires that State Board members "not be actively engaged in the educational profession." Given the current constitutional qualification, we find that the court's decision in State ex rel. Brazda v. Marsh, 141 Neb. 817, 5 N.W.2d 206, is binding.

In Brazda, the question before the court was whether the Legislature could impose a residency requirement, in addition to existing constitutional requirements, upon an individual who sought to file as a candidate for the office of Secretary of State. As previously noted, the court held that "when a state {c}onstitution creates an office and names the qualifications of the incumbent, the legislature has no authority to prescribe additional qualifications or to remove any of the requirements provided for by the {c}onstitution." Id. at 830, 5 N.W.2d at 214; See also State ex rel Quinn, 141 Neb. at 442-43. Thus, the court determined that the additional residency requirement could not validly be imposed. Id. Likewise, in this instance, we find that the Legislature cannot, by statute, impose as an additional qualification for State Board of Education membership the requirement that State Board members not concurrently serve on a local board of education. A constitutional amendment to Article VII, Section 3 would be required to impose such an additional qualification to State Board of Education membership.

DON STENBERG

MOTION - Suspend Rules

Mr. Robinson moved to suspend Rule 3, Section 13 to cancel the January 26, 1995 confirmation hearing set for G. Roderic Anderson and Christine M. Harris in the Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee.

Laid over.

RESOLUTION

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION 49. Introduced by Beutler, 28.

WHEREAS, the Clinton Administration and the Congress of the United States are considering proposals to sell the five federal power marketing administrations, including the Western Area Power Administration, in order to fund a tax cut for middle-income Americans; and

WHEREAS, Nebraska's publicly-owned electric utilities receive low-cost hydroelectric power from federal dams operated by the Western Area Power Administration, the University of Nebraska receives approximately eighty percent of its power from the Western Area Power Administration, and the privatization of the Western Area Power Administration will significantly increase wholesale power costs for electric utilities statewide which will result in increased rates for Nebraska ratepayers; and

WHEREAS, Nebraska is the only all-public-power state in the nation, with Nebraska's electric utilities offering rates among the lowest ten percent in the nation, and selling the Western Area Power Administration will lessen this rate advantage which will detrimentally impact economic development in Nebraska and will also burden the existing agriculture and business industry in Nebraska, including the fact that a portion of the federal hydropower allocated to Nebraska is specifically designated for irrigation pumping power; and

WHEREAS, the Nebraska Power Association has estimated that this proposal could cost Nebraska ratepayers more than fifty million dollars annually, the proposal is unnecessary and burdensome, and the ratepayers purchasing electricity through the Western Area Power Administration have repaid a major part of the original investment with interest.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION:

1. That the Legislature opposes the sale, transfer, exchange, lease, or other disposition of the Western Area Power Administration due to the significant fiscal impact such a sale would have on Nebraska ratepayers.
2. That the Clerk of the Legislature transmit a copy of this resolution to the President of the United States, the President pro tempore of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and to the members of the Nebraska delegation to the Congress of the United States.

Laid over.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION

Opinion No. 95005

DATE: January 26, 1995

SUBJECT: Constitutionality of a Two-tiered Signature Requirement For Initiative and Referendum Petitions

REQUESTED BY: Senator M.L. Dierks, Nebraska Legislature

Steve Grasz, Deputy Attorney General

You have requested an Attorney General's Opinion as to the constitutionality of a two-tiered signature requirement for initiative and referendum petitions in Nebraska whereby one number of signatures would be required for volunteer petition efforts, and a higher number for petition efforts utilizing paid circulators. Such a proposal is of no small import, since under the Nebraska Constitution the people, by means of the initiative and referendum, are of equal status as a legislative body with the Unicameral. Klosterman v. Marsh, 180 Neb. 506, 511, 143 N.W.2d 744, 748 (1966) ("the Legislature . . . and the electorate . . . are coordinate legislative bodies, and there is no superiority of power between the two."). We have now reviewed the actual Legislative Resolution introduced to place a two-tiered signature requirement before the voters (LR 22CA), and our analysis is set forth below.

Background

Prior to May 13, 1994, the Nebraska Constitution was interpreted as requiring that petitions seeking to enact laws by initiative be signed by registered voters equal in number to seven percent of the whole number of votes cast for Governor at the last general election. See Neb. Const. art. III, § 4. Petitions seeking to propose Constitutional amendments required the signatures of ten percent of such voters, and petitions invoking the referendum required five percent (or ten percent to suspend the law pending the vote) of such voters. However, in Duggan v. Beermann, 245 Neb. 907, 515 N.W.2d 788 (1994), the Nebraska Supreme Court held that the above referenced signature requirements must be calculated using the total number of all registered voters in the State, notwithstanding the express language of article III, § 4 to the contrary.[1]

Subsequent to the Nebraska Supreme Court's decision in Duggan, a committee developed recommendations for changes in the relevant constitutional provisions. These recommendations were introduced as LR 22CA, which provides, in pertinent part:

> If the petition be for the enactment of a law, it shall be signed by ~~seven percent of the~~ registered voters of the state~~, and if~~ equal in number to at least eight percent of the number of registered voters on the date of the most recent general election. If the petition be for the amendment of the Constitution, the petition ~~therefor~~ shall be signed by ~~ten percent of such~~ registered voters equal in number to at least twelve percent of the number of registered voters on the date of the most recent general election.

The special challenges of relying solely on volunteer petition circulators is explicitly recognized. To accommodate these special challenges, petition signatures gathered during a nonpaid petition drive shall be granted a tabulation bonus of one additional signature counted for each valid signature submitted. Paid petition drive means a drive for signatures in which one or more circulators receive payment to collect signatures. Payment means compensation for collecting signatures other than reimbursement for travel and meals.

III-4 "~~The whole number of votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of an initiative or referendum petition shall be the basis on which the number of signatures to such petition shall be computed~~. . . ."

Similarly, LR 22CA raises the signature requirement for invoking a referendum from 5 to 6% (from 10% to 12% to suspend a law pending the vote). More significant, in terms of signatures needed, LR 22CA calculates the number of signatures required based on all registered voters rather than the number of votes cast in the preceding gubernatorial election. The changes proposed by LR 22CA can be seen more clearly in the following chart:

Petition Signatures Required (example based on 1992 statistics)

	Pre-Duggan	LR 22CA Paid	LR 22CA Volunteer
Initiative (law)	41,058	70,809	35,405
Initiative (Const. Amend)	58,654	106,213	53,107
Referendum	29,327	53,107	26,554
Referendum (Suspend law)	58,654	106,213	53,107

Thus, under LR 22CA, petition efforts utilizing paid circulators would need twice as many signatures as those using all volunteer circulators. The payment of a single dollar to a single petition circulator in an otherwise volunteer effort would double the number of signatures required and could effectively nullify the signatures of more than enough voters to otherwise place an initiative on the ballot.

Standard of Review

The circulation of initiative and referendum petitions constitutes core political speech protected by the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution. The United States Supreme Court has held uniformly that expression of political ideas is the highest form of protected speech and is entitled to strict judicial scrutiny to prevent state infringement. See Meyer v. Grant, 486 U.S. 414, 421, 108 S.Ct.

1886, 1992 (1988); State v. Monastero, 228 Neb. 818, 825, 424 N.W.2d 837, 843 (1988), appeal dismissed, Monastero v. Nebraska, 488 U.S. 936, 109 S.Ct. 358 (1988) ("{s}peech protected by the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution includes the free expression or exchange of ideas, the communication of information or opinions, and the dissemination and propagation of views and ideas, as well as the advocacy of causes."); Riley v. Nat'l Fed'n of the Blind of North Carolina, 487 U.S. 781, 789, 108 S.Ct. 2667, 2673 (1988) ("Restrictions on First Amendment interests pass constitutional muster only when they are narrowly tailored to serve a legitimate state interest.").

The Court uses an equal protection standard of review when a government act classifies people in relation to a fundamental right, such as the exercise of core political speech. The strict scrutiny test means that "{t}he Court will not accept every permissible government purpose as sufficient to support a classification under this test, but will instead require the government to show that it is pursuing a 'compelling' or 'overriding' end." John E. Nowak & Ronald D. Rotunda, Constitutional Law § 14.3, at 575 (4th ed. 1991). Furthermore, "the Court will not uphold the classification unless the justices have independently reached the conclusion that the classification is necessary, or narrowly tailored, to promote that compelling interest." Finally, "{i}f the justices are of the opinion that the classification need not be employed to achieve such an end, the law will be held to violate the equal protection guarantee." Id.

Discussion

A. Conclusion and Summary

A two-tiered signature requirement as proposed in LR 22CA violates the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution by impermissibly burdening the freedom of speech.

The United States Supreme Court has clearly indicated that unequal treatment of paid petition circulators, such as proposed in LR 22CA, violates the First Amendment. In Meyer v. Grant, 486 U.S. 417, 108 S.Ct. 1886 (1988), the Court stated, "Colorado also seems to suggest that it is permissible to mute the voices of those who can afford to pay petition circulators (citation to Brief omitted) 'But the concept that government may restrict the speech of some elements of our society in order to enhance the relative voice of others is wholly foreign to the First Amendment.'" Id. at 1894 n.7 (quoting Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1, 48-49, 96 S.Ct. 612, 648-649 (1976)). "{T}he First Amendment protects {the people's} right not only to advocate their cause but also to select what they believe to be the most effective means for so doing.'" National Ass'n of Radiation Survivors v Derwinski, 782 F.Supp. 1392, 1411 (N.D. Cal. 1992) (quoting Meyer, 486 U.S. at 424, 108 S.Ct. at 1893)). See also Riley v. Nat'l Fed'n of the Blind of N.C., 108 S.Ct. 2667, 2674 n.5 (1988); City Council v. Taxpayers for Vincent, 466 U.S. 789, 804, 104 S.Ct. 2118 (1984) ("the First Amendment forbids the government to regulate speech in ways that favor some viewpoints or ideas at the expense of others.").

More specifically, a two-tiered system would be struck down by the Court because the purpose of the amendment is constitutionally impermissible. In our view, a court would almost certainly conclude the purpose is not to protect the State's interest in maintaining the integrity of the election process by preventing fraud and misrepresentation among petition circulators, Libertarian Party of Nebraska v. Beermann, 598 F.Supp. 57, 60 (D. Neb. 1984), but rather to penalize and discourage the use of paid circulators.[2]

Likewise, a court would not likely conclude the purpose of the proposed amendment is to ensure sufficient grassroots support for initiative measures, since the number of signatures needed may actually be reduced slightly for those efforts using only volunteer circulators (see chart page 5). Furthermore, the United States Supreme Court and the Nebraska Supreme Court have both rejected similar "grassroots" arguments. See Radcliffe, 228 Neb. at 871, 424 N.W.2d at 610 (discussing the U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to accept such an argument in Meyer, 108 S.Ct. at 1894). See also Ficker v. Montgomery County Bd. of Elections, 670 F.Supp. 618, 621 (D.Md. 1985)

B. Wealth and Political Speech

Requiring paid circulators to gather double the signatures of volunteer circulators impermissibly introduces wealth as a barrier to political speech. In State ex rel. Stenberg v. Beermann, 240 Neb. 755, 485 N.W.2d 151 (1992), the Nebraska Supreme Court struck down a law that would have prohibited petition circulators from accumulating signatures outside their own counties. The Court explained:

> In a participatory system of government the voices pressing their views on their elected officials reflect the broad spectrum of the total society. It is an obvious truth that no one view is more entitled to be expressed than another. The judgement of the majority or the economically privileged as to the accepted and proper view of an issue, and the suppression of the minority's right of expression, is tyranny, no matter how wise and reasoned the majority opinion.

Id. at 757.

Wealth cannot be a restricting factor in the dissemination of political discussion. Wealth "is not germane to one's ability to participate intelligently in the electoral process" ' and is therefore an insufficient basis on which to restrict a citizen's fundamental right to vote.' " Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1, 49, 96 S.Ct. 612, 649 n.55 (1976) (quoting Harper v. Virginia Bd. of Elections, 383 U.S. 663, 668, 86 S.Ct. 1079, 1082 (1966)). In Buckley, the United States Supreme Court struck down federal statutes that limited expenditures by someone on his own behalf as violative of freedom of speech. They further stated, "{b}ut the concept that government may restrict the speech of some elements of our society in order to enhance the relative voice of others is wholly foreign to the First Amendment, which was designed 'to secure the widest possible dissemination of information from diverse and antagonistic sources,' and 'to assure unfettered interchange of ideas for the bringing about of political and social change desired by the people.'" Buckley, 424 U.S. at 49, 96 S.Ct. at 649 (quoting New York Times Co. v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254, 266, 84 S.Ct. 710, 718 (1964)). Furthermore, "{t}he First Amendment's protection against government abridgement of free expression cannot properly be made to depend on a person's financial ability to engage in public discussion." Buckley, 424 U.S. at 49, 96 S.Ct. at 649 (quoting Eastern R. Conf. v. Noerr Motors, 365 U.S. 127, 139, 81 S.Ct. 523, 530 (1961)).

The point is that a two-tiered system makes the signatures of voters who sign petitions circulated by paid circulators of less force and value than others. Although the two-tiered signature requirement proposed in LR 22CA is characterized as a "tabulation bonus", it takes more than a gimmicky euphemism to survive strict scrutiny under the First Amendment.[3] The practice of counting some petition signatures at half the value as others is constitutionally indistinguishable from a "voting bonus" scheme under which votes cast in favor of an initiative for which paid advertising has been run by the petition sponsors count only half as much as votes cast where no paid ads are run.[4] Although a two-tiered system does not necessarily limit the audience reached by petition circulators, it does devalue the audience's views whenever one or more paid circulators are involved. Requiring paid circulators to gather double the signatures of volunteer circulators restricts First Amendment rights and is clearly unconstitutional.

[1] Article III, § 2, which specifies the percentage of voters needed to place an initiative on the ballot, has never, since its inception in 1912, referred to the percentage of all Nebraska voters, but rather refers to the percentage of those voters who cast ballots for Governor at the last general election (regardless of whether the term used was "legal voters" {1912-1920}, "electors" {1920-1988} or "registered voters" {1988-present}).

From 1912 to 1920 both provisions (now § 2 and § 4 of Article III) referred to "legal voters." In 1920, "legal voters" was changed to "electors" in § 2, while section 4 was changed to its current form. The records of the constitutional convention proceedings from 1919-1920 specifically state that no substantive change was intended when these words were substituted. At the convention, William Jennings Bryan urged the delegates to liberalize the constitutional provisions governing the initiative process. Journal of the Nebraska Constitutional Convention, Vol. 1, pp. 326-327 (Jan. 12, 1920). Delegates to the constitutional convention subsequently considered proposal No. 108, which revised Neb. Const. art. III, § 1. During debate, delegate Norton stated, "We should not make it difficult for the people to use this machinery. Whenever you increase the percentages, and make them too large, you defeat the very purpose of the initiative and referendum because you make it difficult for the people to use." Id. at 504.

As amended by the Committee on Initiative, Referendum and Recall, Proposal No. 108 proposed to amend Neb. Const. art. III, § 1A to state that "proposed Constitutional Amendments shall require a petition of ten per cent of the legal voters of the State. . . ." Id. at

457. (Emphasis added). Section 1d of art. III was left unchanged, and read "The whole number of votes cast for governor at the regular election last preceding the filing of any initiative or referendum petition shall be the basis on which the number of legal voters required to sign such petition shall be computed." Thus, the only substantive change was to reduce the percentage of required signatures from 15% to 10%.

This proposed amendment to article III then went to the Committee on Arrangement and Phraseology, which recommended the "arrangement and phraseology" of Section 1a be changed to read "if the petition be for the amendment of the Constitution, the petition therefore shall be signed by ten per cent of such electors." (Emphasis added). Id. at 1130. The Committee also changed the phraseology of Section 1d to read, "The whole number of votes cast for governor at the general election next preceding the filing of an initiative or referendum petition shall be the basis on which the number of signatures to such petition shall be computed." Id. at 1131. (This is the current form of Neb. Const. art. III, § 4).

Thus, the phraseology was changed from "legal voters" to "electors" in Section 1a, and the reference to "legal voters" was eliminated from Section 1d, thereby creating the facial discrepancy which exists to this day as to Neb. Const. art. III, § 2 and § 4. The record of the constitutional convention proceedings could not be more clear, however, that these changes were not intended to be substantive. The Committee on Arrangement and Phraseology concluded its report on Proposal No. 108 by stating, "In conclusion, your Committee begs to say that while it has recommended many changes in the wording and arrangement of this proposal, it has not intentionally recommended any alteration that would affect any essential feature of the proposal." Id. at 1132 (emphasis added). Thus, it is clear that, despite the facial discrepancy between the two sections, the number of signatures required was to be based on 10% of the gubernatorial vote, and not 10% of all electors.

Proposal No. 108 was approved by the convention, id., Vol. II, p. 2651, and submitted for voter approval under the title "To amend Sections 1-a, 1-b, 1-c and 1-d, Article III," with the descriptive matter 'Initiative and Referendum. Reduces percentages in number of signatures required.'" Id. at 2822 (emphasis added). Thus, the 1920 amendment (which created the same facial discrepancy between the two provisions which exists today) was clearly intended to reduce the number of required signatures, despite the fact that section 1a facially required signatures from 10% of all electors of the State.

The 1988 amendment to article III, § 2 simply replaced the word "electors" with "registered voters." This change in no way affected the method of calculating the number of signatures required, as provided in § 4. Section 4 had been harmonized with section 2 for many decades, in accordance with the original intent of the provisions, until the Duggan v. Beermann decision. The 1988 amendment, when read together with Section 4 in the context of its history, changed nothing with respect to the number of petition signatures required. The history of the 1988 amendment also clearly shows no change was intended with regard to the calculation of the required number of signatures. Since the inception of the initiative petition process in Nebraska in 1912, it had always been the Gubernatorial vote from which the required number of petition signatures was to be calculated.

[2] Of course, arguments can be made that the amendment's purpose is to prevent fraud and misrepresentation. However, the Court will then analyze whether the means used are narrowly tailored to achieve that end. Clearly, less drastic means are available to the state to protect against fraud and misrepresentation among paid circulators than restricting their first amendment right to political speech. Several state statutes already exist to protect the public from fraud and misrepresentation from either volunteer or paid circulators. Neb. Rev Stat. §32-628(2) (Cum. Supp. 1994) specifically requires a warning to be printed on every signature page "for the purpose of preventing fraud, deception, and misrepresentation." Neb. Rev. Stat. §§ 32-629 - 32-630 (Cum. Supp. 1994) provides the qualifications and prohibited acts of signers and circulators.

[3] The "volunteer bonus" approach to a two-tiered petition signature requirement was proposed by Daniel H. Lowenstein and Robert M. Stein in The First Amendment and Paid Initiative Petition Circulators: A Dissenting View and a Proposal 17 Hastings Const. L.Q. 175 (Fall 1989). We find the authors' arguments in favor of constitutionality to be weak and unconvincing. Id. at 222-23. The First Amendment is not so feeble in its protection as to be circumvented by fancy packaging and illusory "bonuses."

[4] The Supreme Court has long required adherence to the principle of "one person, one vote." See Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 84 S.Ct. 1362, 1380 (1964). In Reynolds, the Court stated, "the fundamental principle of representative government in this country is one of equal representation for equal numbers of people, without regard to race, sex, economic status, or place of residence within a State." Id. at 1381. The Court further stated, "{I}t is inconceivable that a state law to the effect that, in counting votes. . . , the votes of citizens in one part of the State would be multiplied by two, five or 10, while the votes of persons in another area would be counted only at face value, could be constitutionally sustainable. . . One must be ever aware that the Constitution forbids 'sophisticated as well as simple-minded modes of discrimination.'" Id. at 1381 (quoting Lane v. Wilson, 307 U.S. 268).

1. Strike original section 1 and all amendments thereto and insert the following new section:

"Section 1. Section 77-1601, Revised Statutes Supplement, 1994, is amended to read:

77-1601. The county board of equalization shall each year, on or before September 20, levy the necessary taxes for the current year. Before levying taxes for any other functions of county government, each county shall first levy a tax sufficient to enable the county board to provide medical, surgical, and hospital care for needy persons of the county. After making the levy for such purpose, the county board of equalization shall make the levy of taxes for county purposes. The levy shall include all county taxes necessary to cover the amounts required to be raised by taxation, as provided in the annual budget of the county for the current year, and shall include all township, city, school district, precinct, village, road district, and other taxes required by law to be certified to the county clerk and levied by the county board of equalization. Any such taxes regularly voted and certified to the county assessor, after the county board has made such levy and before the county clerk has completed the tax list, shall be levied by the county board of equalization, if within the limit of the law, and extended upon the tax list. Within thirty days after a levy has been made pursuant to this section, the county board of equalization upon its own motion may act to correct a clerical error which has resulted in the calculation of an incorrect levy.".

RESOLUTION

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION 51. Introduced by Wickersham, 49; Bohlke, 33; Schrock, 38.

WHEREAS, Nebraska citizens living in our large, sparsely populated state, clearly understand the significance and long-term benefits of federal investment in an integrated transportation system; and

WHEREAS, Amtrak provides an important transportation option to citizens of many smaller communities inadequately served by air and bus services as well as to those persons with medical conditions which prevent them from flying; and

WHEREAS, Amtrak is energy efficient and environmentally beneficial, consuming about half as much energy per passenger miles as airlines and causing less pollution; and

WHEREAS, Amtrak is nine times safer than driving on a passenger miles basis and operates even in severe weather conditions; and

WHEREAS, expansion of Amtrak service by using existing rail rights-of-way would cost less and use less land than new highways and airports, further increasing Amtrak's energy-efficiency advantage; and

WHEREAS, Amtrak travel rose forty-eight percent from 1982 to 1993 and Amtrak dramatically improved coverage of its operating costs from revenues; and

WHEREAS, from 1982 to 1993 federal spending on Amtrak increased only one percent, while federal spending on highways from non-user taxes increased one hundred thirty-four percent, and federal spending on aviation increased almost two hundred percent; and

WHEREAS, Amtrak workers and vendors pay more in taxes than the federal government invests in Amtrak.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION:

1. That the Legislature urge Nebraska's congressional delegation to carefully consider the benefits of Amtrak if federal transportation support dollars must be cut.
2. That the Legislature urge Nebraska's congressional delegation to look to the future and work toward a transportation system that includes a strong Amtrak.

Laid over.

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION 52. Introduced by Crosby, 29; Wesely, 26; Warner, 25; Beutler, 28; Hudkins, 21.

WHEREAS, a mailing address in the State of Nebraska has been utilized by certain Nebraska residents and other persons to conduct an activity involving the production and dissemination in the United States and abroad of Nazi and neo-Nazi propaganda and paraphernalia; and

WHEREAS, this activity has gained international attention and has caused people in this country and countries abroad to associate the State of Nebraska with these kinds of discredited, discriminatory, and undemocratic ideas and doctrines; and

WHEREAS, because the Nebraska Legislature is convinced that citizens of this state oppose the hateful ideas and doctrines of National Socialism (for the overthrow of which two hundred thousand Americans gave their lives), the Nebraska Legislature wishes to go on record as completely disassociating the State of Nebraska from the activity of such individual or individuals.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION:

1. That, although the Nebraska Legislature recognizes the rights of individuals in this country to freely speak their minds and to disseminate their ideas under the First Amendment of the United States Constitution, the Nebraska Legislature hereby expresses its firm and unwaivering disagreement with the concepts of Nazism and neo-Nazism and its embarrassment over the good name of the State of Nebraska being in any way associated with the production and dissemination of material favoring such ideas and doctrines.
2. That the Nebraska Legislature hereby officially disassociates the State of Nebraska from the activities of all individuals engaged in the publication or dissemination of Nazi or neo-Nazi propaganda or paraphernalia from or within its state boundaries and expresses its opposition to such activities.
3. The Clerk of the Legislature shall send a copy of this resolution to the Embassy of the Federal Republic of Germany in Washington, D.C., and to Nebraska's United States Congressional Delegation.

Laid over.

LEGISLATIVE BILL 334. Placed on General File as amended.
AM0151

1. Strike original section 1 and insert the following new section:

"Section 1. Section 48-649, Revised Statutes Supplement, 1994, is amended to read:

48-649. The commissioner shall, for each calendar year, determine the combined tax rate applicable to each employer on the basis of his or her actual experience in the payment of contributions and with respect to benefits charged against his or her separate experience account, in accordance with the following requirements:

(1) Commencing January 1, 1996, the commissioner shall, in April or May, for each calendar year, and based upon information available through the department, determine the state unemployment insurance tax rate for the following year. The state unemployment insurance tax rate shall be zero percent if:

(a) The minimum reserve ratio for the lowest combined tax rate exceeds ten and five-tenths percent for the current year;

(b) The average balance in the State Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund at the end of any three months in the preceding calendar year is greater than one percent of state taxable wages for the same preceding year;

(c) The balance in the State Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund equals or exceeds thirty percent of the average month end balance of the state's account in the Unemployment Trust Fund for the three lowest calendar months in the preceding year; or

(d) The state advisory council determines that a zero percent state unemployment insurance tax rate is in the best interests of preserving the integrity of the state's account in the Unemployment Trust Fund;

(2) If the state unemployment insurance tax rate is not zero percent as determined in this section, the combined tax rate shall be divided so that eighty percent of the combined tax rate equals the contribution rate and twenty percent of the combined tax rate equals the state unemployment insurance tax rate except for employers who are assigned the five and four-tenths percent combined tax rate. For those employers, the state unemployment insurance tax rate shall equal zero and their combined tax rate shall equal their contribution rate. When the state unemployment insurance tax rate is determined to be zero percent pursuant to subdivision (1) of this section, the contribution rate for all employers shall equal one hundred percent of the combined tax rate;

(3) An employer's contribution rate shall be three and five-tenths percent of his or her annual payroll and for calendar years beginning 1996 an employer's combined tax rate shall be three and five-tenths percent of his or her annual payroll unless and until (a) benefits have been payable from and chargeable to his or her experience account throughout the preceding one calendar year and (b) contributions have been payable to the fund and credited to his or her experience account with respect to the two preceding calendar years. Subject to fair and reasonable rules and regulations of the commissioner issued with due regard for the solvency of the fund, the combined tax rate required of each employer who meets the requirements of subdivisions (a) and (b) of this subdivision shall be based directly on his or her contributions to and benefit experience of his or her experience account and shall be determined by the commissioner for each calendar year at its beginning. Such rate shall not be greater than three and five-tenths percent of his or her annual payroll if his or her experience account exhibits a positive balance as of the beginning of such calendar year, but for any employer who has been subject to the payment of contributions for ~~the~~ any two preceding calendar years, regardless of whether such years are consecutive, and whose experience account exhibits a negative balance as of the beginning of such calendar year, the rate shall be greater than three and five-tenths percent of his or her annual payroll but not greater than five and four-tenths percent of his or her annual payroll until such time as the experience account exhibits a positive balance, and thereafter the rate shall not be greater than three and five-tenths percent of his or her annual payroll. The standard rate shall be five and four-tenths percent of the employer's annual payroll. As used in this subdivision, standard rate shall mean the rate from which all reduced rates are calculated;

(4) Any employer may at any time make voluntary contributions, additional to the required contributions, to the fund to be credited to his or her account. Voluntary contributions received after March 10 of any year shall not be used in rate calculations for the same calendar year;

(5) As used in sections 48-648 to 48-654, the term payroll shall mean the total amount of wages during a calendar year, except as otherwise provided in section 48-654, by which the combined tax was measured; and

(6)(a) The state or any of its instrumentalities shall make payments in lieu of contributions in an amount equal to the full amount of regular benefits plus one-half of the amount of extended benefits paid during each calendar quarter that is attributable to service in employment of the state or any of its instrumentalities. The commissioner after the end of each calendar quarter shall notify any state instrumentality or other public employer of the amount of regular benefits and one-half the amount of extended benefits paid that are attributable to service in its employment and the instrumentality or public employer so notified shall reimburse the fund within thirty days after receipt of such notice; (b) after December 31, 1977, the state or any of its political subdivisions and any instrumentality of one or more of the foregoing or any other governmental entity for which services in employment as is provided by subdivision (4)(a) of section 48-604 are performed shall be required to pay contributions and after December 31, 1996, combined tax on wages paid for services rendered in its or their employment on the same basis as any other employer who is liable for the payment of combined tax under the Employment Security Law, unless the state or any political subdivision thereof and any instrumentality of one or more of the foregoing or any other governmental entity for which such services are performed files with the commissioner its written election not later than January 31, 1978, or if such employer becomes subject to this section after January 1, 1978, not later than thirty days after such subjectivity begins, to become liable to make payments in lieu of contributions in an amount equal to the full amount of regular benefits plus one-half of the amount of extended benefits paid during each calendar quarter that is attributable to service in employment of such electing employer prior to December 31, 1978, and in an amount equal to the full amount of regular benefits plus the full amount of extended benefits paid during each calendar quarter that is attributable to service in employment of such electing employer after January 1, 1979. Eligible employers electing to make payments in lieu of contributions shall not be liable for state unemployment insurance tax payments. The commissioner, after the end of each calendar quarter, shall notify any such employer that has so elected of the amount of benefits for which it is liable to pay pursuant to its election that have been paid that are attributable to service in its employment and the employer so notified shall reimburse the fund within thirty days after receipt of such notice; and (c) any employer which makes an election in accordance with subdivision (b) of this subdivision to become liable for payments in lieu of contributions shall continue to be liable for payments in lieu of contributions for all benefits paid based upon wages paid for service in employment of such employer while such election is effective and such election shall continue until such employer files with the commissioner, not later than December 1 of any calendar year, a written notice terminating its election as of December 31 of that year and thereafter such employer shall again be liable for the payment of contributions and for the reimbursement of such benefits as may be paid based upon wages paid for services in employment of such employer while such election was effective.".

1. Strike the original sections and insert the following new sections:

"Section 1. Section 46-602, Revised Statutes Supplement, 1994, is amended to read:

46-602. (1) For each water well completed in this state on or after September 9, 1993, the water well contractor as defined in section 46-1213 constructing the water well and the owner of the water well shall complete the appropriate registration form after the completion of the water well. The registration form for all water wells other than test holes and dewatering wells with intended use of ninety days or less shall be filed with the Department of Water Resources by the owner within thirty days after completion of the water well. Registration shall be on a form provided by the Director of Water Resources. The form shall contain (a) the name, address, and signature of the owner, (b) the legal description of the water well, (c) the date drilling commenced and the date construction was completed, (d) the intended use of the water well, (e) the description and depth of geologic materials encountered, (f) the depth and diameter or dimension of the constructed water well and test hole, (g) the depth and diameter or dimension of the excavated hole if applicable, (h) the depth of the formation stabilizer or gravel pack and size of particles if used, (i) the depth and thickness of grout or other sealing materials if applicable, (j) casing information, including length, inside diameter, wall thickness, and type of material if applicable, (k) the static water level, (l) the water level when pumped at the designated rate, giving the rate of pumping and amount of time pumped, if applicable, (m) the yield of the water well in gallons per minute if applicable, (n) the identification number of any permit for the water well issued pursuant to Chapter 46, article 6, Chapter 66, article 11, or any other law, (o) the name, address, and license number of any license issued pursuant to the Water Well Standards and Contractors' Licensing Act to any person, other than the owner of the water well, who constructed the water well, (p) screen information, including length, trade name, inside and outside diameter, slot size, and type of material if applicable, (q) the signature of the water well contractor, and (r) such additional information conformable to the statement of purpose contained in section 46-601 as the director requires. A series of water wells completed for purposes of installation of a ground heat exchanger for a structure for utilizing the geothermal properties of the ground shall be considered as one water well, and one registration form and detailed site plan shall be completed for each such series. For water wells constructed as part of a single site plan for monitoring ground water, obtaining hydrogeologic information, or extracting contaminants from the ground and for water wells constructed as part of remedial action approved by the Department of Environmental Quality pursuant to section 66-1525, 66-1529.02, or 81-15,124, one registration form shall be required which shall include a detailed site plan which shows the location of each such water well in the site and a log from each such water well. The Department of Water Resources shall be notified of any change in the ownership of a water well required to be registered under this section. Notification shall be in such form and shall include such evidence of ownership as the director by rule and regulation directs. The department shall use such notice to update the registration on file. The registration requirement in this subsection shall not apply to water wells constructed prior to September 9, 1993, unless previously required to be registered.

(2) Whenever a water well becomes an illegal water well as defined in section 46-1207.01, the owner of the water well shall decommission the water well by completely filling and sealing the water well cavity in accordance with the rules and regulations adopted pursuant to the Water Well Standards and Contractors' Licensing Act. The method specified in such rules and regulations for filling and sealing water well cavities shall be designed to eliminate any safety hazard created by illegal water wells and to prevent deterioration in the quality of the underlying ground water. Written notice of any such abandonment shall be provided by the owner to the department within sixty days. The department shall not collect a fee for the filing of the notice.

~~(3) When any water well contractor as defined in section 46-1213 or owner replaces an abandoned water well, the owner shall, within thirty days after the completion of such replacement water well, give notice of replacement to the department by filing in the office of the department a completed water well registration form for the replacement water well.~~

~~(4) When any owner of an abandoned water well in a control area or management area desires to replace the abandoned water well, he or she shall, prior to commencing construction, obtain a permit pursuant to the Nebraska Ground Water Management and Protection Act. The owner of the abandoned water well may immediately proceed to construct a replacement water well and pump water without obtaining a permit if the pump installed in the replacement water well has a column size which is not greater than the pump formerly used in the abandoned water well. Following completion of the replacement water well, notice of such completion shall be given in the manner provided by subsection (3) of this section.~~

~~(5) For purposes of this section, replacement water well shall mean a water well which (a) replaces an abandoned water well within three years of the last operation of the abandoned water well and (b) is constructed within six hundred feet of the abandoned water well.~~

~~(6)~~ (3) For purposes of water well registration under this section, registration fees shall be collected as provided in sections 46-606 and 46-1224.

Forms shall be made available at each district in which a control area or management area is located, in whole or in part, and at such other places as may be deemed appropriate. The district shall review such application and issue or deny the permit within thirty days after the application is filed.

(2) The application shall be accompanied by a seventeen-dollar-and-fifty-cent filing fee payable to the district, except as provided in subsection (8) of section 46-666, and shall contain (a) the name and post office address of the applicant or applicants, (b) the nature of the proposed use, (c) the intended location of the proposed water well or other means of obtaining ground water, (d) the intended size, type, and description of the proposed water well and the estimated depth, if known, (e) the estimated capacity in gallons per minute, (f) the acreage and location by legal description of the land involved if the water is to be used for irrigation, (g) a description of the proposed use if other than for irrigation purposes, and (h) such other information as the district requires. Before any water well having a capacity of less than one hundred gallons per minute is modified to withdraw ground water at a rate equal to or greater than one hundred gallons per minute, an application shall be filed for a permit pursuant to this section before water is so withdrawn.

(3) Any person who has failed or in the future fails to obtain a permit required by subsection (1) of this section shall make application for a late permit on forms provided by the district.

(4) The application for a late permit shall be accompanied by a two-hundred-fifty-dollar fee payable to the district, except as provided in subsection (8) of section 46-666, and shall contain the same information required in subsection (2) of this section.

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTION 16. Reported to the Legislature for further consideration with the following amendment:

1. Strike the original provisions of the resolution and insert the following:

"WHEREAS, the United States' Constitution established a balanced compound system of governance and through the Tenth Amendment reserved all non-delegated and non-prohibited powers to the States or to the people; and

WHEREAS, over many years, the Federal government has dramatically expanded the scope of its power and pre-empted state government authority and increasingly has treated States as administrative subdivisions or as special interest groups, rather than co-equal partners; and

WHEREAS, the Federal government has generated massive deficits and continues to mandate programs that State and Local governments must administer; and

WHEREAS, the number of federal unfunded mandates has grown exponentially during the last thirty years and has profoundly distorted State budgets, handcuffing the ability of State leaders to provide appropriate and needed services to their constituencies; and

WHEREAS, since 1990, the Federal government has enacted at least forty-two major statutes imposing burdensome and expensive regulations and requirements on States and Localities, which is nearly equal to all those enacted in the prior two decades combined; and

WHEREAS, persistent, State-led endeavors have consistently failed to generate any substantial reaction or remedy from the Federal government; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly determined that the States must look to the Congress and related political remedies for protection against Federal encroachments on the reserved powers of the States; and

WHEREAS, the Council of State Governments, through its Intergovernmental Affairs Committee, has been the champion of State sovereignty for many years; and

WHEREAS, in recent years, States have been the principal agents of government reform, including updating their constitutions, modernizing and restructuring governmental institutions, and, along with Local governments, have been the pioneers of government innovation, thus responding to the needs of their citizens; and

WHEREAS, the Council of State Governments recognizes a sense of urgency in calling for The Conference of the States, whereby each State government would send a delegation to develop a comprehensive Action Plan to restore balance in the Federal system; and

WHEREAS, the aforementioned experience of The Council of State Governments, in conjunction with its regional structure and groupings of elected and appointed officials from all three branches of State government, reflects an entity ideally suited to promote and facilitate such a conference; and

WHEREAS, The Conference of the States will communicate broad bipartisan public concern on the extent to which the American political system has been distorted and provide a formal forum for State governments to collectively propose constructive remedies for a more balanced State-Federal governance partnership for the twenty-first century.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE NINETY-FOURTH LEGISLATURE OF NEBRASKA, FIRST SESSION:

(1) A delegation not to exceed seven voting persons from the State of Nebraska, shall be appointed to represent the State of Nebraska at a Conference of the States for the purposes described in Section (2) to be convened as provided in Section (3). The delegation shall not exceed seven voting persons as follows: (a) The governor or, if the governor does not wish to be a member of the delegation then a constitutional officer selected by the governor; and (b) a number of legislators not to exceed six of which at least three shall be from each major political party selected by the presiding officer of the Legislature. The presiding officer may designate two alternate legislator delegates, one from each party, who have voting privileges in the absence of the primary delegates.

(2) The delegates of The Conference of the States will propose, debate, and vote on elements of an action plan to restore checks and balances between states and the national government. Measures agreed upon will be formalized in an instrument called a States' Petition and returned to the delegation's state for consideration by the entire Legislature.

(3) The Conference of the States shall be convened under the nonprofit status, section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, of The Council of State Governments in cooperation with the National Governors' Association and the National Conference of State Legislatures no later than two hundred seventy days after at least twenty-six legislatures adopt a resolution of participation.

(4) Prior to the official convening of The Conference of the States the steering committee will draft:

(a) The governance structure and procedural rules for the Conference;

(b) The process for receiving rebalancing proposals; and

(c) The financial and administrative functions of the Conference, including The Council of State Governments as fiscal agent.

(5) The bylaws shall:

(a) Conform to the provisions of this resolution;

(b) Specify that each state delegation shall have one vote at the Conference; and

(c) Specify that the Conference agenda be limited to fundamental, structural, long-term reforms.

(6) Upon the official convening of The Conference of the States, the State delegations will vote upon and approve the Conference governing structure, operating rules and bylaws.".

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION

Opinion No. 95009

DATE: February 13, 1995

SUBJECT: Civil Liability for Equine Activities Under LB 348

REQUESTED BY: Senator Dan Fisher
Nebraska Legislature

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Hobert B. Rupe, Assistant Attorney General

This is in response to your request, dated January 27, 1995, for the opinion of this office regarding LB 348. Specifically, you have inquired whether the provisions of said bill would excuse horse owners from all liability for their animals.

Section 3 of LB 348 reads as follows:

> Except as provided in section 4 of this act, (1) an equine activity sponsor, an equine professional, or any other person, which includes a corporation, limited liability company, or partnership, shall not be liable for an injury to or the death of a participant resulting from the inherent risks of equine activities and (2) no participant nor participant's representative shall make any claim against, maintain an action against, or recover from an equine activity sponsor, an equine professional, or any other person for injury, loss, damage, or death of the participant resulting from any of the inherent risks of equine activities.

The above-quoted provision does purportedly narrow the scope of liability in regard to the "inherent risk of equine activity." Said phrase is defined in Section 2(6) of LB 348 which states:

> (6) Inherent risks of equine activities means those dangers or conditions which are an integral part of equine activities including, but not limited to:
> (a) The propensity of an equine to behave in ways that may result in injury, harm, or death to persons on or around them;
> (b) The unpredictability of an equine's reaction to such things as sounds, sudden movement, and unfamiliar objects, persons, or other animals;
> (c) Certain hazards such as surface and subsurface conditions;
> (e) The potential of a participant to act in a negligent manner that may contribute to injury to the participant or others, such as failing to maintain control over the equine or not acting within his or her ability; . . .

Thus, it can be deduced from the above-quoted provisions that LB 348 purportedly grants a broad exemption of liability to equine owners, equine activity sponsors, and equine professionals. However, that exemption is not complete as it is modified by Section 4 of LB 348 which states in pertinent part:

(1) This act shall not apply to the horseracing industry as regulated in sections 2-1201 to 2-1229.

(2) Nothing in section 3 of this act prevents or limits the liability of an equine activity sponsor, an equine professional, or any other person if the equine activity sponsor, equine professional, or person:

(a) Provided the equipment or tack and the equipment or tack caused the injury because the equine activity sponsor or professional failed to reasonably and prudently inspect or maintain the equipment or tack;

(b) Provided the equine and failed to make reasonable and prudent efforts to determine the ability of the participant to engage safely in the equine activity and determine the ability of the participant to safely manage the particular equine based on the participant's representations of his or her ability;

(c) Owns, leases, rents, or otherwise is in lawful possession and control of the land or facilities upon which the participant sustained injuries because of a dangerous latent condition which was known or should have been known to the equine activity sponsor, equine professional, or person and for which warning signs were not conspicuously posted;

(d) Commits an act or omission which a reasonable, prudent person would not have done or omitted under the same or similar circumstances or which constitutes willful or wanton disregard for the safety of the participant and that act or omission was a proximate cause of the injury; or

The above-quoted exceptions enumerate numerous acts or omissions by an equine activity sponsor, equine professional, or other person which would not be exempt under LB 348 and which could form the basis of liability.

In summary, LB 348 purports to limit liability for certain equine activities; however, the exceptions contained in the bill are so broad as to virtually swallow up the general provisions limiting liability. For example, Section 4(2)(d), quoted above, would appear to preclude limiting liability if the equine professional, sponsor, or other person was negligent, as that concept is commonly defined in tort law. Thus, in answer to your specific question, LB 348 certainly does not exclude an equine owner from all liability for his or her animal.

Sincerely yours,
DON STENBERG

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION

Opinion No. 95010

DATE: February 14, 1995

SUBJECT: Power of Natural Resources Districts to acquire abandoned railroad right-of-way.

REQUESTED BY: Senator Carol Hudkins
Nebraska State Legislature

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Warren D. Lichty, Assistant Attorney General

Your inquiry has to do with LB 258, 94th Legislature, First Session (1995), and particularly with regard to the effect that bill has in amending Neb. Rev. Stat. § 28-2801 (1994). That bill indicates an intention to provide powers and duties relating to railroad rights-of-way and recreational trails. In section 1, the bill gives the Game and Parks Commission power to acquire abandoned railroad right-of-way by gift, devise, or purchase.

Section 4 of the bill amends Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-2801 (1994), which act, generally, prohibits agencies of the State from purchasing, leasing or acquiring real estate from a railroad on rural right-of-way which has been abandoned. The amendment adds the Game and Parks Commission to the exceptions to that prohibition.

Your question is whether a Natural Resources District (NRD) is, by this statute, prevented from accepting abandoned railroad land without approval by the legislature. The 1988 case, Catherland Reclamation District v. Lower Platte North Natural Resources District, 230 Neb. 580, 433 N.W.2d 161 (1988), holds, at page 585, that an NRD is a political subdivision, and that it has only that power delegated to it by the legislature. It also states that a grant of power to a political subdivision is strictly construed. In Dawson v. Papio Natural Resources District, 206

Neb. 225, 291 N.W.2d 730 (1980), an NRD was referred to as a governmental subdivision.

As to whether NRDs have the authority, generally, to acquire real estate, we believe that, while the grant is not in clearest language, they do. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 2-3233 (1991) authorizes a district "to acquire by grant, purchase, bequest, devise, or lease and to hold and use waterworks, personal property, and interests or title in real property. . . ." In addition, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 2-3228 (1991) gives districts the power and authority to "Receive and accept donations, gifts, grants, bequests, appropriations, or other contributions in money, services, materials, or otherwise. . . from any person as defined in section 49-801. . . ." Neb. Rev. Stat. § 49-801 (1993) defines person as including "bodies politic and corporate, societies, communities, the public generally, individuals, partnerships, limited liability companies, joint-stock companies, and associations." Also, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 2-3229 (1991) defines the purposes of a district so as to include development and management of recreational and park facilities. We believe this definition is broad enough to include recreational trails.

This leads to the conclusion that an NRD would have the power to acquire real estate and that this would include abandoned railroad right-of-way unless Neb. Rev. Stat. § 81-2801 (1994) prohibits it. We believe the language of the first sentence of that section is clear and not subject to interpretation. All agencies of the State of Nebraska, except the Department of Roads, and now, with the amendment, the Game and Parks Commission, are so prohibited.

The only question remaining then is whether an NRD is an "agency of this State." Certainly, the NRDs were set up by authority of the legislature and Neb. Rev. Stat. § 2-3201 (1991) declares an intent that such districts encompass all the areas of the State. However, as discussed above, NRDs are political subdivisions, and are not "agencies of the State." Consequently, § 81-2801 does not apply to NRDs.

Sincerely,
DON STENBERG
Attorney General

"Section 1. (1) Any person who withdraws ground water for agricultural purposes from aquifers located within the State of Nebraska may transfer the use of the ground water off the overlying land if the ground water is put to a reasonable and beneficial use within the State of Nebraska and is used for an agricultural purpose after transfer, and if such withdrawal, transfer, and use (a) will not significantly adversely affect any other water user,

(b) is consistent with all applicable statutes and rules and regulations, and (c) is in the public interest.

(2) Any affected party may object to the transfer of ground water by filing written objections, specifically stating the grounds for such objection, in the office of the natural resources district containing the land from which the ground water is withdrawn. Upon the filing of such objections or on its own initiative, the natural resources district shall conduct a preliminary investigation to determine if the withdrawal, transfer, and use of ground water is consistent with the requirements of subsection (1) of this section. Following the preliminary investigation, if the district has reason to believe that the withdrawal, transfer, or use may not comply with any rule or regulation of the district, it may utilize its authority under the Nebraska Ground Water Management and Protection Act to prohibit such withdrawal, transfer, or use. If the district has reason to believe that the withdrawal, transfer, and use is consistent with all rules and regulations of the district but may not comply with one or more other requirements of subsection (1) of this section, the district shall request that the Department of Water Resources hold a hearing on such transfer.

(3) At the hearing, all interested persons may appear and present testimony. ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION

Opinion No. 95012

DATE: February 15, 1995

SUBJECT: Effect of Repeal of Neb. Rev. Stat. § 70-627.01 (1990), a Statutory Policy Statement Encouraging the Constructive Use of Radioactive Materials or Energy in Nebraska

REQUESTED BY: Senator Donald Preister
Nebraska State Legislature

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Dale A. Comer, Assistant Attorney General

Neb. Rev. Stat. § 70-627.01 (1990), which is a part of the Nebraska statutes dealing with public power and irrigation districts, states:

> It is hereby determined and declared to be the public policy of the State of Nebraska to encourage constructive use of radioactive material or the energy therefrom associated with facilities constructed in connection with the production of electrical energy, for industrial and other useful purposes, and to adapt its laws to meet new conditions in the developing field of industrial use of radioactive material or the energy therefrom in ways that will encourage the healthy development and progress of such industries.

LB 120 would repeal Section 70-627.01, and enact the following language into law:

> The Legislature finds that Nebraska should develop efficient and less-polluting energy sources which will make Nebraska more energy independent and will retain Nebraska dollars in the Nebraska economy, thereby generating additional jobs and tax income to the state rather than export Nebraska dollars. The Legislature further finds that the use of sustainable indigenous energy resources is in the public interest of the people of Nebraska.
> (1) Practice least cost integrated resource planning in the determination of future energy choices; and
> (2) Support research and development of a diverse energy supply that insulates Nebraska from the risks and uncertainties of fuel price volatility and future environmental liability.

You have now requested our opinion on a number of questions concerning the effects of a repeal of Section 70-627.01, and we will respond to each of your questions in turn. Before we address your specific questions, however, we will discuss some of the general rules pertaining to statutory interpretation and construction, for reasons that will become apparent below.

Statutes are not open to construction as a matter of course, and in the absence of any contrary indication, statutory language is generally to be given its plain and ordinary meaning. Weiner v. State ex rel. State Real Estate Commission, 214 Neb. 404, 333 N.W.2d 915 (1983). In keeping with that premise, when the words of a statute are plain, direct, and unambiguous, no interpretation is necessary or will be indulged to ascertain their meaning. Rosse v. Rosse, 244 Neb. 967, 510 N.W.2d 73 (1994). On the other hand, statutes are open to construction when the language used requires interpretation or may reasonably be considered ambiguous. Coleman v. Chadron State College, 237 Neb. 491, 466 N.W.2d 526 (1991). Under circumstances where the language used in a statute is ambiguous and must be construed, a fundamental principle of statutory construction is to attempt to ascertain legislative intent and to give it effect, and recourse may be had to the legislative history of the statute for the purpose of discovering the intent of the lawmakers. Lancaster County v. Maser, 224 Neb. 566, 400 N.W.2d 238 (1987); North Star Lodge No. 227 v. City of Lincoln, 212 Neb. 236, 322 N.W.2d 419 (1982). Where the language used in a statute is ambiguous, recourse may also be had to the legislative purposes or policy underlying the statute. Freese v. Douglas County, 210 Neb. 521, 315 N.W.2d 638 (1982).

Section 70-627.01 is essentially a pronouncement by the Legislature of the public purposes or policy underlying certain portions of the statutes dealing with public power and irrigation districts. Such policy pronouncements are generally available for the clarification of ambiguous portions of a statute and are entitled to strong consideration in that process. 1A NORMAN J. SINGER, SUTHERLAND ON STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION, §20.12 (5th Ed. 1992); 82 C.J.S. Statutes § 323. However, such policy pronouncements are not a part of the substantive portion of the statute. SUTHERLAND ON STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION, supra. This latter rule is illustrated in Hansen v. Gass, 130 Neb. 685, 267 N.W. 403 (1936). That case involved the issue of whether the state's liquor laws in existence in 1936 allowed beer to be sold on the same premises as other alcoholic beverages. Section 3 of the pertinent statutes in that case contained a pronouncement by the Legislature that the public policy of Nebraska favored the separate sale of beer and other alcoholic beverages. Hansen at 687, 267 N.W. at 404. In contrast, various substantive portions of the same liquor statutes appeared to allow the sale of beer and other alcoholic beverages in the same location. Ultimately, the Nebraska Supreme Court ruled that the statement of public policy in Section 3 of the liquor statutes did not control over the other substantive provisions of the Act at issue. The Court stated:

> Section 3 {the public policy provision of the liquor statutes} is not legislative either in substance or form, but is merely a declaration of policy in the nature of a preamble. Although it appears as a section of the act, it does not change the provisions of the act. It declares that it is the public policy of the state to separate the sale at retail of beer and alcoholic liquors other than beer. It also provides that the same person may have a license to sell both if the sale is conducted as separate businesses and sold in separate and distinct places or premises. . . . However, it seems that what the Legislature does in positive and specific provisions of the law as enacted is not changed by a preliminary declaration as to public policy.
> . . . we conclude that the declaration of policy or purpose in section 3 of the act is not substantive law, and that it could only be of use to determine the intent of the Legislature in case sections 82 and 83 {other substantive liquor licensing provisions} were > ambiguous with respect of the right of a holder of license C thereunder to sell alcoholic liquors, including beer regardless of alcoholic content, in the licensed premises.

Hansen at 693, 694, 267 N.W. at 407.

When the various authorities discussed above are taken into consideration, it becomes apparent that Section 70-627.01 is not substantive legislation, but only a statement of public policy or a description of the intent and purposes of the Legislature. Based upon those same authorities, if a given portion of the statutes dealing with public power and irrigation districts is clear and unambiguous, it is not open to construction, nor is it changed by the existence (or non-existence) of Section 70-627.01. On the other hand, portions of the statutes dealing with public power and irrigation districts which might be ambiguous will be construed with the assistance of the public policy pronouncement in Section 70-627.01 and any other relevant portions of the legislative history of those statutes. Repeal of the public policy pronouncement in Section 70-627.01 might also, in and of itself, form the basis for arguing that a particular construction should be given to an ambiguous portion of the statutes dealing with public power and irrigation districts since such a repeal might arguably evidence a change in the public policy of the State. With these conclusions in mind, we will turn to your specific questions in order in which you posed them.

1. Is 70-627.01 a state energy policy regarding nuclear energy?

We are not sure what you mean by "a state energy policy regarding nuclear energy." As noted above, Section 70-627.01 is a non-substantive statement of public policy and legislative intent which may be used, where appropriate in the case of statutory ambiguity, as an aid in the construction of pertinent statutes. Its repeal might also be used, in certain circumstances, as an aid in the construction of ambiguous statutes. Whether that makes it a "state energy policy regarding nuclear energy" depends upon your definition of such a policy and the application of such a policy in given circumstances.

2. Does repeal of 70-627.01 remove, affect or impair the rights, powers and authority of public power districts to operate or construct nuclear power plants, or to generate nuclear power?

As discussed at length above, Section 70-627.01 is not a substantive provision of law which changes other provisions of the statutes. Therefore, its repeal would not affect any specific and clearly enumerated powers or authority of public power districts regarding the generation of nuclear power. However, as a statement of public policy and legislative intent, it could be used, where appropriate, in the construction of any ambiguous statutes pertaining to those entities in those areas, and its repeal would affect that function. The repeal of Section 70-627.01 as a policy statement might also, in and of itself, form the basis for arguing that certain constructions should be placed on particular ambiguous statutes in those areas.

3. Does repeal of the policy language contained in 70627.01 (sic) create ambiguities or call into question any of the power, authority or duties of public power and irrigation districts enumerated in Chapter 70?

Our answer to this question is essentially the same as our answer to question number 2 above. Since Section 70-627.01 is not a substantive statutory provision, its repeal would not affect any clearly stated powers or duties of public power and irrigation districts enumerated in Chapter 70. If it is repealed, it could no longer be used as an aid in the construction of any ambiguous statutes contained in Chapter 70, and its repeal as a policy statement could allow arguments for particular constructions of ambiguous portions of those statutes.

4. Does repeal of 70-627.01 affect or impair any person's rights to license, construct or operated a nuclear waste disposal facility in the State of Nebraska?

Our answer to this question is again essentially the same as our answer to question number 2 above. Since Section 70-627.01 is not a substantive statutory provision, its repeal would not directly impair any person's rights to license, construct or operate a nuclear waste disposal facility in Nebraska. If it is repealed, it could not longer be used as an aid in the construction of any ambiguous statutes pertaining to such rights, and its repeal could form the basis for arguing other constructions of ambiguous statutes in that area.

5. Does repeal of 70-627.01 affect, impair or remove the authority or ability of industry or medical/health care providers to use radioactive materials?

Since Section 70-627.01 is not a substantive statutory provision, its repeal would not directly affect or impair any authority or ability of industry or medical/health care providers to use radioactive materials. If it is repealed, it could no longer be used as an aid in the construction of any ambiguous statutes pertaining to such authority, and its repeal could form the basis for arguing other constructions of ambiguous statutes in that area.

6. If Section 1 of LB 120 is placed into law and 70-627.01 is not repealed, would the stated policy in 70-627.01 require that nuclear power be given greater consideration over other energy resources in the development of future energy supplies?

The bulk of Section 1 of LB 120 is a non-substantive public policy pronouncement concerning the development of efficient and less-polluting energy sources and the use of sustainable indigenous energy resources. Therefore, if Section 1 of LB 120 is placed into law and Section 70-627.01 is not repealed, there would simply be two statements of public policy concerning energy use and development available to aid in the construction of ambiguous statutes in that area. We see no language in Section 70-627.01 which would indicate a public policy to make nuclear energy the paramount energy resource in Nebraska. Moreover, statutes pertaining to the same subject matter are in pari materia, and must be construed together so as to give effect to every provision. Wahlers v. Frye, 205 Neb. 399, 288 N.W.2d 29 (1980). As a result, we do not believe that leaving Section 70-627.01 in the statutes together with LB 120 would require that nuclear power be given greater consideration over other energy resources.

7. At least one of the public power districts argues that legislative repeal of 70-627.01 would be regarded as a significant act by a Court and would endanger the millions of dollars public power has invested in its nuclear plants. It has further stated that this argument could be waged successfully in a lawsuit to shut down a nuclear power plant. Is it your opinion that a Court would consider legislative repeal of 70-627.01 a significant act that could be successfully argued as a basis to shut down a nuclear plant or any (sic) way impair a public power district's ability to carry out its statutory duties and authority regarding the development, operation and construction of its facilities?

Once again, we must point out that Section 70-627.01 is a non-substantive statement of public policy and legislative intent which may be used, where appropriate in the case of statutory ambiguity, as an aid in the construction of pertinent statutes. Since it is not a substantive enactment, its repeal, standing alone, could not be used as a basis to shut down a nuclear power plant. However, its repeal could be cited as a change in the State's public policy concerning nuclear power, which might be used in support of a certain construction of the statutes affecting nuclear power plants. In that very limited sense, its repeal could be said to affect a public power district's ability to carry out its statutory duties and authority regarding the development, operation and construction of its facilities.

Sincerely yours,
DON STENBERG

25-21,239. The owner of any ~~leased~~ truck, truck-tractor, whether with or without trailer, or trailer, leased for a period of less than thirty days or leased for any period of time and used for commercial purposes, shall be jointly and severally liable with the lessee and the operator thereof for any injury to or the death of any person or persons, or damage to or the destruction of any property resulting from the operation thereof in this state, except that the owner shall not be jointly and severally liable if there is in effect at the time the claim arises a valid insurance policy with coverage limits in the minimum amount of one million dollars per occurrence. The insurance must be available to compensate any person with a claim arising out of the operation or use of the leased truck, truck-tractor, or trailer. This section shall not limit or reduce the owner's liability for his or her own acts or omissions which cause damage to any person or property.".

LEGISLATIVE BILL 474. Placed on General File as amended.
AM0488

1. Insert the following new sections:

"Section 1. Section 43-290, Reissue Revised Statutes of Nebraska, is amended to read:

43-290. (1) It is the purpose of this section to promote parental responsibility and to provide for the most equitable use and availability of public money.

(2) Pursuant to the petition filed by the county attorney or any reputable person in accordance with section 43-274, whenever the care or custody of a juvenile is given by the court to someone other than his or her parent, which shall include placement with a state agency, or when a juvenile is given medical, psychological, or psychiatric study or treatment under order of the court, the court shall make a determination of support to be paid by a parent for the juvenile at the same proceeding at which placement, study, or treatment is determined or at a separate proceeding. Such proceeding, which may occur prior to, at the same time as, or subsequent to adjudication, shall be in the nature of a disposition hearing.

(3) At such proceeding, after summons to the parent of the time and place of hearing served as provided in sections 43-262 to 43-267, the court may order and decree that the parent shall pay child support in an amount established in accordance with the guidelines provided by the Supreme Court pursuant to section 42-364.16. Child support orders issued under this section shall be governed by sections 42-347 to 42-379 and the filing provisions of subsection (3) of section 43-2,113. The court may also order and decree that the parent shall provide health insurance pursuant to subsection (2) of section 42-369.

(4) If the court determines that it would be unjust or inappropriate to order the parent to pay child support based on the guidelines provided by the Supreme Court pursuant to section 42-364.16, nothing in this section shall prohibit the court from deviating from such guidelines and entering an order or decree directing that the parent shall pay, in such manner as the court may direct, a reasonable sum that will cover in whole or part the support, study, and treatment of the juvenile. The court in making such order shall give due regard to the cost of study, treatment, and maintenance of the juvenile.

(5) For purposes of subsections (3) and (4) of this section, the ~~, which amount ordered paid shall be the extent of the liability of the parent. The~~ court in making such order shall give due regard to the ~~cost of study, treatment, and maintenance of the juvenile, the ability of the parent to pay,~~ earning capacity of the parent and the availability of money for the support of the juvenile from previous judicial decrees, social security benefits, veterans benefits, or other sources. Support or sums thus received by the court shall be transmitted to the person, agency, or institution having financial responsibility for such study, treatment, or maintenance and, if a state agency or institution, remitted by such state agency or institution quarterly to the Director of Administrative Services for credit to the proper fund.

(6) Whenever medical, psychological, or psychiatric study or treatment is ordered by the court, whether or not the juvenile is placed with someone other than his or her parent, or if such study or treatment is otherwise provided as determined necessary by the custodian of the juvenile, the court shall inquire as to the availability of insured or uninsured health care coverage or service plans which include the juvenile. The court may order the parent to pay over any plan benefit sums received on coverage for the juvenile. The payment of any deductible under the health care benefit plan covering the juvenile shall be the responsibility of the parent.

(7) If the parent willfully fails or refuses to ~~pay the sum ordered or to pay over any health care plan benefit sums received,~~ comply with an order or decree under subsections (3), (4), or (6) of this section, the court may proceed against him or her as for contempt, either on the court's own motion or on the motion of the county attorney or authorized attorney as provided in section 43-512, or execution shall issue at the request of any person, agency, or institution treating or maintaining such juvenile.

(8) The court may afterwards, because of a change in the circumstances of the parties, revise or alter the order of payment for support, study, or treatment.

(9) If the juvenile has been committed to the care and custody of the Department of Social Services, the department shall pay the costs for the support, study, or treatment of the juvenile which are not otherwise paid by the juvenile's parent.

(10) If no provision is otherwise made by law for the support or payment for the study or treatment of the juvenile, compensation for the study or treatment shall be paid, when approved by an order of the court, out of a fund which shall be appropriated by the county in which the petition is filed.

(11) The juvenile court shall retain jurisdiction over a parent ordered to pay support for the purpose of enforcing such support order for so long as such support remains unpaid but not to exceed ten years from the nineteenth birthday of the youngest child for whom support was ordered.

Sec. 2. Section 43-512.07, Reissue Revised Statutes of Nebraska, is amended to read:

43-512.07. (1) Any action, payment, aid, or assistance listed in subdivisions (a) through (c) of this subsection shall constitute an assignment by operation of law to the Department of Social Services of any right to spousal or medical support when ordered by the court and to child support whether or not ordered by the court which a recipient may have in his or her own behalf or on behalf of any other person for whom an applicant receives such payments, aid, or assistance, including any accrued arrearages as of the time of the assignment:

(a) Application for and acceptance of one or more aid to dependent children payments by a parent, another relative, or a custodian;

(b) Receipt of aid by or on behalf of any dependent child as defined in section 43-504; or

(c) Receipt of aid from child welfare funds.

The department shall be entitled to retain such child, spousal, or other support up to the amount of payments, aid, or assistance provided to a recipient. For purposes of this section, the right to receive current and past-due child support shall belong to the child and the assignment shall be effective as to any such support even if the recipient of the payments, aid, or assistance is not the same as the payee of court-ordered support.

(2) After notification of the clerk of the district court receiving the child, spousal, or other support payments made pursuant to a court order that the person for whom such support is ordered is a recipient of payments, aid, or assistance listed in subsection (1) of this section, the department shall also give notice to the payee named in the court order at his or her last-known address.

(3) Upon written or ~~other~~ computer system notification from the department ~~or from another state~~ of such assignment of child, spousal, or other support payments to the department or another state, the clerk of the district court shall transmit all the support payments received to the department or the other state as directed by the department without the requirement of a subsequent order by the court. The clerk of the district court shall continue to transmit the support payments for as long as the payments, aid, or assistance listed in subsection (1) of this section continues.

(4) Any court-ordered child, spousal, or other support remaining unpaid during the period of the assignment shall constitute a debt and a continuing assignment at the termination of payments, aid, or assistance listed in subsection (1) of this section, collectible by the department or other state as reimbursement for such payments, aid, or assistance. The continuing assignment shall only apply to support payments made during a calendar period which exceed the specific amount of support ordered for that period. When payments, aid, or assistance listed in subsection (1) of this section have ceased and upon notice by the department, ~~or the other state,~~ the clerk of the district court shall continue to transmit to the department or the other state any support payments received on arrearages in excess of the amount of support ordered for that specific calendar period until notified by the department ~~or the other state~~ that the debt has been paid in full, except that any amount of support arrearages that has accrued or accrues after termination of payments, aid, or assistance listed in subsection (1) of this section shall be paid first by the clerk to the person to whom support is due before any reimbursement is made to the department or the other state.

(5) An assignment of support to the department shall have priority over any other assignment of support payments received in excess of the amount of support payments ordered for that specific calendar period, and the clerk of the district court shall transmit to the department the support payments or a portion thereof as directed by the department.

(6) For assignments effective prior to the effective date of this act the clerk of the district court shall transmit the support payments to the department or the other state as directed by the department. The department may provide direction to the clerk of the district court by a general notice covering all assignments arising pursuant to this section. In directing the clerk of the district court the department shall comply with the assignment and distribution requirements of Title IV-D of the federal Social Security Act, as amended.".

1. On page 1, strike lines 7 through 17 and insert the following:

"To repeal Article III, sections 2 through 4, and to add new sections 1 through 7 to a new Article XVIII entitled "Initiatives and Referendums":

XVIII-1 "The first power reserved by the people is the initiative by which laws may be enacted and constitutional amendments adopted by the people independently of the Legislature. This power may be invoked by petition wherein the proposed measure shall be set forth at length. If the petition is for the enactment of a law, it shall be signed by registered voters of the state equal in number to at least eight percent of the number of votes which were cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition. If the petition is for the amendment of this Constitution, the petition shall be signed by registered voters equal in number to at least twelve percent of the number of votes which were cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition. The distribution of the registered voters signing a petition for a law or a constitutional amendment shall include signatures equal in number to at least five percent of the number of votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition from each of at least two-fifths of the counties in the state, and when thus signed, the petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State who shall submit the measure thus proposed to the electors of the state at the first general election held not less than four months after such petition has been filed. The same measure, either in form or in essential substance, shall not be submitted to the people by initiative petition, either affirmatively or negatively, more often than once in three years. If conflicting measures submitted to the people at the same election are approved, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall become law as to all conflicting provisions. The constitutional limitations as to the scope and subject matter of statutes enacted by the Legislature shall apply to those enacted by the initiative. The special challenges of relying solely on volunteer uncompensated petition circulators is explicitly recognized. To accommodate these special challenges, petition signatures gathered by volunteer uncompensated circulators shall be granted a tabulation bonus of one additional signature counted for each valid signature submitted. For purposes of this section, volunteer uncompensated circulator means a person who does not receive compensation for collecting signatures other than reimbursement for travel and meals."

XVIII-2 "The second power reserved by the people is the referendum which may be invoked by petition against any act or part of an act of the Legislature, except those making appropriations for the expense of the state government or a state institution existing at the time of the passage of such act. Petitions invoking the referendum shall be signed by registered voters of the state equal in number to at least six percent of the number of votes which were cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition, distributed as required for initiative petitions, and filed in the office of the Secretary of State within ninety days after the Legislature at which the act sought to be referred was passed has adjourned sine die or for more than ninety days. Such petition shall set out the title of the act against which the referendum is invoked and, in addition thereto, when only a portion of the act is sought to be referred, the number of the section or sections or portion of sections of the act designating such portion. When the referendum is thus invoked, the Secretary of State shall refer the same to the electors for approval or rejection at the first general election held not less than thirty days after the filing of such petition.

When the referendum is invoked as to any act or part of an act, other than emergency acts or those for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety, by petition signed by registered voters of the state equal in number to at least twelve percent of the number of votes which were cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition, it shall suspend the taking effect of such act or part of act until the same has been approved by the electors of the state. The special challenges of relying solely on volunteer uncompensated petition circulators is explicitly recognized. To accommodate these special challenges, petition signatures gathered by volunteer uncompensated circulators shall be granted a tabulation bonus of one additional signature counted for each valid signature submitted. For purposes of this section, volunteer uncompensated circulator means a person who does not receive compensation for collecting signatures other than reimbursement for travel and meals."

XVIII-3 "The veto power of the Governor shall not extend to measures initiated by or referred to the people.

A measure initiated shall become a law or part of this Constitution, as the case may be, when a majority of the votes cast on the measure, and not less than thirty-five percent of the total vote cast at the election at which the measure was submitted, are cast in favor of the measure, and the measure shall take effect upon proclamation by the Governor which shall be made within ten days after the official canvass of such votes. The vote upon initiative and referendum measures shall be returned and canvassed in the manner prescribed for the canvass of votes for president.

The method of submitting and adopting amendments to this Constitution provided by this section shall be supplementary to the method prescribed in Article XII of this Constitution, entitled, "Amendments" and the latter shall in no case be construed to conflict with the provisions relating to initiative and referendum. The provisions with respect to the initiative and referendum shall be self-executing, but legislation may be enacted to facilitate their operation. Initiative and referendum measures shall be submitted in a nonpartisan manner and without any indication or suggestion on the ballot that they have been approved or endorsed by any political party or organization. Only the title or proper descriptive words of measures shall be printed on the ballot, and when two or more measures have the same title, they shall be numbered consecutively in the order of filing with the Secretary of State and the number shall be followed by the name of the first petitioner on the corresponding petition."

XVIII-4 "The Legislature recognizes that uncertainty exists in the constitutional validity of Article XVIII, sections 1 through 3, of this Constitution. Article XVIII, sections 5 through 7, of this Constitution provide an alternative procedure for initiatives and referendums. If Article XVIII, sections 1 through 3, of this Constitution are held to be unconstitutional in whole or in part by the Nebraska Supreme Court or the United States Supreme Court, upon the date of the court's opinion the provisions of Article XVIII, sections 5 through 7, of this Constitution shall become effective and be given retroactive effect to the effective date of the 1996 constitutional amendment."

XVIII-5 "The first power reserved by the people is the initiative by which laws may be enacted and constitutional amendments adopted by the people independently of the Legislature. To initiate the enactment of a law or the adoption of a constitutional amendment, a petition shall be circulated which contains the entire proposed law or constitutional amendment. The petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State. If the petition is signed by the required number of registered voters appropriately distributed, the Secretary of State shall submit the proposed law or constitutional amendment to the electors of the state at the first general election held not less than four months after the petition is filed. The required number of signatures for a law is at least seven percent of the number of votes which were cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition. The required number of signatures for a constitutional amendment is at least ten percent of the number of votes which were cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition. The distribution of the registered voters signing a petition for a law or a constitutional amendment shall include signatures equal in number to at least five percent of the number of votes cast for Governor at the general election next preceding the filing of the petition from each of at least two-fifths of the counties in the state.

The same measure, either in form or in essential substance, shall not be submitted to the people by initiative petition, either affirmatively or negatively, more often than once in three years. If conflicting measures submitted to the people at the same election are approved, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall become law as to all conflicting provisions. The constitutional limitations as to the scope and subject matter of statutes enacted by the Legislature shall apply to those enacted by the initiative."

XVIII-6 "The second power reserved by the people is the referendum which may be invoked by petition against any act or part of an act of the Legislature, except those making appropriations for the expense of the state government or a state institution existing at the time of the passage of such act. To refer an act or part of an act of the Legislature, a petition shall be circulated which sets out the title of the act against which the referendum is invoked and, if only a portion of the act is sought to be referred, the number of the section or sections or portion of sections of the act designating such portion. The petition shall be filed with the Secretary of State within ninety days after the Legislature at which the act sought to be referred was passed has adjourned sine die or for more than ninety days. If the petition is signed by the required number of registered voters appropriately distributed, the Secretary of State shall refer the act or the part of the act to the electors for approval or rejection at the first general election to be held not less than thirty days after the filing of the petition. LEGISLATIVE BILL 469. Placed on General File as amended.
AM0510

1. Insert the following new sections:

"Section 1. Section 19-4601, Revised Statutes Supplement, 1994, is amended to read:

19-4601. Sections 19-4601 to 19-4623 and section 2 of this act shall be known and may be cited as the Municipal Natural Gas Regulation Act.

Sec. 2. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the governing body of any municipality may deny or limit the request of a utility seeking the authority to erect, construct, or maintain facilities within the boundaries of the municipality necessary to provide natural gas service within the boundaries of the municipality if the municipality has already granted the authority to another utility and the denial or limitation is deemed by the governing body to be necessary in the interests of the health, safety, or economic well-being of the municipality and its inhabitants.

Sec. 3. Section 19-4610, Reissue Revised Statutes of Nebraska, is amended to read:

19-4610. (1) If a utility desires to change its rates for natural gas service within a municipality other than to reflect an adjustment for natural gas supply costs, the utility shall present to the municipality copies of present and proposed rate schedules, the monthly customer billing dates for the twelve months following the date of filing, and information supporting the proposed rates for natural gas service within the municipality as required by section 19-4611.

(2) The municipality may charge and collect a filing fee for a rate filing. Such fee shall not exceed: (a) For a city of the primary class, two thousand dollars; (b) for a city of the first class, one thousand dollars; (c) for a city of the second class, three hundred dollars; and (d) for a village, seventy-five dollars.

The utility shall be given at least seven days' prior written notice of any meeting to consider rejection of the utility's rate filing. Rejection shall be made by resolution of the municipality and shall state the reasons upon which the rejection is based. In the event of any such rejection, a copy of the written resolution shall be delivered to the utility within seven days after final action by the municipality. After receipt of the resolution, the utility shall have fifteen days to remedy the deficiencies stated in such resolution and the time periods under section 19-4607 shall not be suspended during such fifteen-day period. If the municipality has not received the information to cure the deficiencies within the fifteen-day period or within such additional period of time as may be agreed to by the utility and the municipality, the filing shall be deemed to be rejected and the utility shall be required to initiate a new rate filing.

(4) The utility may appeal from the decision of the municipality rejecting a rate filing. The appeal shall be to the district court.

(5) If a rate filing is rejected and the rejection is appealed, the utility may place the interim rates into effect pursuant to the time periods specified in section 19-4607, subject to refund, pending district court determination. If the utility appeals the rejection of the filing and if the court rules that the rejection was unreasonable, the times specified in section 19-4607 shall run from the date of filing.

Sec. 4. Section 19-4615, Reissue Revised Statutes of Nebraska, is amended to read:

19-4615. (1) Notice of filings for any rate increase under the Municipal Natural Gas Regulation Act shall be given within thirty days of filing by publication by placing a notice to the public of the proposed change in a newspaper having general circulation in the municipality, except that a utility may provide notice to the public by mailing such notice by United States mail, postage prepaid, to the billing address of each directly affected customer or by including the notice in such customer's bill in a conspicuous form. An affidavit signed by an official of a utility and describing the method of publication of the notice shall be filed with the office of the clerk of the municipality. The notice shall contain:

The notice shall contain a brief statement of the purpose of the hearing, the date, time, and place of the hearing or nearest videoconference site, and shall inform the customer of his or her right to attend the hearing and to appear, participate, and present testimony.".

LEGISLATIVE BILL 466. Placed on General File as amended.
AM0279

1. Insert the following new section:

"Section 1. The Legislature recognizes that a revitalized railroad industry is essential to the well-being of the citizens of Nebraska and to the national economy, but such revitalization is accompanied by increases in rail traffic across the state. Such increased traffic brings with it the possibility of additional hazards to Nebraska motorists, frustrations caused by lengthy delays at highway-rail crossings, increases in emergency response times for police, fire, and rescue personnel, as well as disruptions in service to rail customers caused by operational delays necessary to keep roads and highways unobstructed.

The Legislature further recognizes that crafting a meaningful solution to such a complex problem will require a review of our current state and local transportation network and the laws and agencies that impact transportation and an assessment of possible modifications to rail and highway traffic patterns and to state and local laws that could enhance safety by expediting traffic flows for motorists and railroad carriers. Such a review and assessment will require the cooperation and input of state and local transportation officials, private and commercial highway users, the railroad industry, and the public at large.".

(b) The director may grant such a waiver if the director finds that application of such subsection with respect to the trust would:

(i) Have a substantial adverse effect on the participants and beneficiaries of such trust; and

(ii) Require significant modifications to one or more collective bargaining arrangements under which the trust is established or maintained.

(c) A waiver granted under this section shall not apply to an individual if the person participates in such a trust as an associate member of an employee organization.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINIONS

Opinion No. 95014

DATE:	February 22, 1995
SUBJECT:	Application of the Nebraska Public Meetings Statutes to the Citizen Review Board Created to Advise the Mayor of the City of Omaha
REQUESTED BY:	Senator Ron Withem Nebraska State Legislature
WRITTEN BY:	Don Stenberg, Attorney General Dale A. Comer, Assistant Attorney General

Prior to the 1995 Legislative Session, you requested our opinion as to whether the Nebraska Public Meetings Statutes, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 84-1408 through 84-1414 (1994), apply to the "Mayor's Citizen Review Board." Presumably, your opinion request grew out of an intent to take appropriate legislative action based upon the conclusions expressed in our opinion. In any event, we requested additional information from you as to the nature of the Mayor's Citizen Review Board at issue, and you recently provided that additional information to us. Based upon your information, we do not believe that the Board in question is subject to the Public Meetings Statutes, for the reasons set forth below.

From the materials enclosed with your most recent correspondence, it appears that the Mayor's Citizen Review Board (the "Board") was created in July, 1993, by an Executive Order of the then-Mayor of the City of Omaha, P. J. Morgan. The Board is comprised of nine members, including three representatives from the Omaha Police and Fire Departments, and six citizens. Certain proportions of the citizen members of the Board must be from protected classes based upon race, national origin, or sex. Under the provisions of the Mayor's Executive Order, all of the members of the Board are appointed by the Mayor of Omaha for a set term.

The Board elects its own chairperson and other officers, and it must meet at least monthly. The Board's duties include the review of complaints from citizens or civilian employees of the City of Omaha alleging one or more of the following:

1. Police Harassment.
2. Excessive use of force.
3. Use of language likely to demean the inherent dignity of any person to whom it was directed and/or to trigger disrespect for law enforcement officers.
4. A violation of the Standard Operating Procedures or rules or regulations codified by the Nebraska Commission of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

The Board's review of a particular citizen or employee complaint occurs after completion of an investigation of that same matter by the Office of Professional Standards of the City of Omaha, and after a decision has been made by that Office as a consequence of its initial investigation. The Board is simply empowered to make a recommendation to the Mayor of the City of Omaha regarding a proper disposition of a citizen's complaint before it. The Executive Order creating the Board also provides that its proceedings shall not be open to the public or to the media due to the provisions of collective bargaining agreements in force and due to Section 23-25 of the Omaha Municipal Code.

From your recent correspondence, we also understand that there is no other city ordinance or City Council action in Omaha addressing the Board, nor we have been able to find any state statutes which address city boards in this area. You have also indicated that the Board "operates solely as a function of the Mayor's authority to supervise the administrative activities of the City of Omaha."

The Nebraska Public Meetings Statutes generally provide that the formation of public policy in Nebraska is public business and may not be conducted in secret. In accordance with that premise, the Public Meetings Statutes require that meetings of governmental bodies be open to the public after adequate notice, that minutes of public meetings be prepared, that votes on issues be taken in public, and so forth. However, a threshold question in any analysis under the Public Meetings Statutes involves a determination as to whether the entity involved is a "public body" subject to those statutes. Section 84-1409 defines a public body subject to the Public Meetings Statutes to include the following entities:

(a) governing bodies of all political subdivisions of the State of Nebraska,

(b) governing bodies of all agencies, now or hereafter created by the Constitution of Nebraska, statute, or otherwise pursuant to law, of the executive department of the State of Nebraska,

(c) all independent boards, commissions, bureaus, committees, councils, subunits, or any other bodies, now or hereafter created by the Constitution of Nebraska, statute, or otherwise pursuant to law,

(d) the Certificate of Need Review Committee,

(e) all study or advisory committees of the executive department of the State of Nebraska, whether having continuing existence or appointed as special committees with limited existence,

(f) advisory committees of the bodies referred to in subdivisions (a), (b), and (c) of this subdivision, and

(g) instrumentalities exercising essentially public functions.

Consequently, the Mayor's Citizen Review Board must fit within the entities defined in § 84-1409, or it is not subject to the Public Meetings Statutes.

The governing body of the City of Omaha, for purposes of the Public Meeting Statutes, is obviously the Omaha City Council. Therefore, the Board at issue here, which reports to the Mayor rather than to the City Council and which contains no members of the Omaha City Council, is clearly neither the "governing body" of the political subdivision known as the City of Omaha nor an advisory committee to that governing body. Nor do we believe that the Board is an independent board or commission, since it only has authority to recommend a certain course of action to the Mayor. The Board is also obviously not the Certificate of Need Review Committee or a study or advisory committee of the executive department of State of Nebraska. Therefore, the Board in this case does not fall under the bulk of the definitions for "public body" set out in § 84-1409.

In fact, it appears that the only definition under § 84-1409 which might apply to the Board in question is the definition found in subsection (g) pertaining to instrumentalities exercising essentially public functions. However, the legislative history of that language, which was added to the Public Meetings Statutes in 1989, indicates that it was specifically intended to reach the Nebraska Investment Finance Authority and other entities which have been granted the power and authority to issue bonds and to borrow and expend public money. Floor Debate on LB 311, 91st Nebraska Legislature, First Session, May 9, 1989, at 6039, 6040. That description obviously does not fit the Board at issue here. As a result, we do not believe that the Mayor's Citizen Advisory Board fits under any of the categories of public body listed in § 84-1409.

We would also point out that the legislative history of LB 325 from 1975, the original version of § 84-1409, indicates that it was not the intent of the Legislature at that time to subject the management or administrative functions of public bodies to public meetings requirements. Floor Debate on LB 325, 84th Nebraska Legislature, First Session, May 14, 1975, at 4604, 4605. Rather, public meetings requirements were to apply to policy making bodies, exercising legislative or quasi-legislative functions. Floor Debate on LB 325, 84th Nebraska Legislature, First Session, May 14, 1975, at 4616, 4617. As Senator Anderson, the introducer of LB 325, stated:

> . . . in the definition of a public body that is covered by the open meetings act, there was some concern expressed at the hearing that the way the language is set it could cover management teams, it could cover a mayor meeting with the department heads or something like this. That was not the intent of the act. I indicated that at the hearing. The committee amendment was development (sic) to make sure that management teams could not be included in the definition of public body under the act.

Floor Debate on LB 325, 84th Nebraska Legislature, First Session, May 14, 1975, at 4605 (emphasis added).

It seems to us that the Board in question in this case is really a type of management body, formed to aid the Mayor of Omaha in his administrative duties in connection with the Omaha Police and Fire Departments. In that regard, this situation is not unlike the situation discussed in our Op. Att'y Gen. No. 92020 (February 12, 1992). In that opinion, we concluded that various academic planning committees of the University of Nebraska, created to aid the University Chancellor in making budget reduction recommendations to the Board of Regents, were part of the management structure of the University as opposed to legislative or quasi-legislative bodies. On that basis, we determined that such committees were not subject to the Public Meetings Statutes. In a similar fashion, it seems to us that the Board at issue in this case is part of the management structure of the Omaha Mayor's office as opposed to being a legislative or quasi-legislative body. Therefore, we do not believe that the Board is subject to the Public Meetings Statutes as they are currently drafted. If you wish a contrary result, you may want to consider clarifying legislation.

Sincerely yours,

Opinion No. 95015

DATE: February 24, 1995

SUBJECT: Constitutionality of Legislative Authority Under Article VIII, § 12 of the Nebraska Constitution to Declare Farm Land and Vacant Land as Blighted and Substandard as Proposed in LB 830

REQUESTED BY: Senator Don Wesely
Nebraska State Legislature

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Timothy J. Texel, Assistant Attorney General

You have requested the opinion of this office regarding whether LB 830, as currently proposed, would be constitutional based on the language found in Article VIII, § 12 of the Nebraska State Constitution. More specifically, you asked the question whether the Legislature is in a position to be able to declare farm land and vacant land as blighted and substandard.

Under LB 830, if property meets the definition of blighted and substandard set out in the bill, a process is created where the property may be acquired by a city for redevelopment. A central feature in a discussion regarding whether the Legislature can declare farm or vacant land as blighted and substandard is the actual definition given to the term "blighted and substandard." Section 3(6) of LB 830 sets out the Legislature's definition of "blighted and substandard." The definition, as set out in the bill's final reading form states:

> Blighted and substandard area means an area either within a city or cities or up to ten miles outside of the area of operation of a city or cities of the metropolitan or primary class, up to six miles outside of the area of operation of a city or cities of the first class, and up to three miles outside of the area of operation of a city or cities of the second class or village or villages, or any combination thereof, in which by reason of (a) the existence of significant areas of unimproved or insufficiently developed land, (b) the lack of a significant number of new and growing business enterprises, (c) the dilapidation, deterioration, age, or obsolescence of buildings and improvements, (e) the lack of a state, regional, or local redevelopment plan or program, (f) the existence of significant conditions which prevent or do not promote economic growth within such area, (g) the lack of medical and health care facilities, (h) the lack of utilities and other government services infrastructure, or (i) any combination of such factors, there exists (i) insufficient safe, sanitary, and available housing for low-income and moderate-income families and persons, including, but not limited to, persons displaced by clearing of slums or blighted areas or by other public programs, (ii) job growth at less than the United States or midwest average job growth rates, (iii) average wages at less than the United States or midwest average wage levels, (iv) a net emigration of population, (v) population growth that is less than that of the United States or the midwest, (vi) the failure to utilize substantial land areas at their highest and best uses in comparison to other areas within such city or cities, (vii) an abundance of property that is not on the tax rolls at levels at least equal to industrial and residential valuation levels, or (viii) any combination of such results.

LB 830, Section 3(6), 94th Legislature, 1st Session, 1995.

Section 6 of LB 830 declares that it shall be construed in accordance with authority granted by Article VIII, § 12 of the Nebraska Constitution. Article VIII, § 12, in pertinent part, states:

> For the purpose of rehabilitating, acquiring, or redeveloping substandard and blighted property in a redevelopment project as determined by law, any city or village of the state may, notwithstanding any other provision in the Constitution, and without regard to charter limitations and restrictions, incur indebtedness, whether by bond, loans, notes advance of money, or otherwise.

The Nebraska Supreme Court has addressed the constitutionality of the Legislature's ability to define terms in several cases. In MAPCO Ammonia Pipeline v. State Bd. of Equal., 238 Neb. 565, 471 N.W.2d 734 (1991), several natural gas companies challenged the constitutionality of a bill that excepted certain irrigation equipment from being defined as real property, thus making the equipment fall under the category of personal property. At issue was the definition of the term "fixture."

At the outset of its discussion, the Court stated, "In every constitutional challenge it is presumed that all acts of the Legislature are constitutional, and all reasonable doubts are resolved in favor of constitutionality." Id. at 571, 471 N.W.2d at 739. This statement appears to be a well established point of law. It has been followed in numerous Nebraska Supreme Court decisions. See Distinctive Printing & Packaging Co. v. Cox, 232 Neb. 846, 442 N.W.2d 566 (1989); Landon v. Pettijohn, 231 Neb. 837, 438 N.W.2d 757 (1989); Otto v. Hahn, 209 Neb. 114, 306 N.W.2d 587 (1981); American Fed'n of State, County, and Mun. Employees v. Dept. of Pub. Insts., 195 Neb. 253, 237 N.W.2d 841 (1976); and Stanton v. Mattson, 175 Neb. 767, 123 N.W.2d 844 (1963).

Despite the deference given to legislative actions, the bill under consideration in MAPCO was found to be unconstitutional. The Court pointed out that the constitutional provision involved allowed the Legislature to classify personal property in such a manner as it saw fit. The Court pointed out that in the amended statute, however, the Legislature did not try to classify, but rather arbitrarily declared personal property to be "fixtures."

In State ex rel. Meyer v. Peters, 191 Neb. 330, 215 N.W.2d 520 (1974), the Nebraska Supreme Court faced a situation similar to that in MAPCO. In Peters, the Court addressed the constitutional validity of a legislative bill. The bill changed the property tax laws by altering the definition of what constituted "household goods." Article VIII, § 2 of the Nebraska Constitution states: "Household goods and personal effects, as defined by law, may be exempted from taxation in whole or in part, as may be provided by general law . . . ."[1] The statute which exempted household goods from property taxes was amended by the bill to include "major appliances either attached or detached to real property" in its definition of household goods. The Court held the amended statutory definition to be unconstitutional.

The constitutional provision on which the bill in Peters relied for authority stated the term in question, followed by the phrase "as defined by law," just as is the case with the term "substandard and blighted" in Article VIII, § 12 of the Nebraska Constitution. The Peters

Court questioned whether the constitutional phrase "as defined by law" meant to give definitional authority to the Legislature, or rather that the framers of the amendment intended to adopt the common law definition of "household goods."

Since the constitutional provision itself failed to set a definition, the Court examined what the term "household goods" typically was understood to mean. The Court discussed such factors as whether the voters who adopted the constitutional amendment adding the phrase "as defined by law" envisioned they were authorizing an exemption for real estate. The Court found they had not. The Court determined that "{t}he term 'household goods' would not normally encompass fixtures." Id. at 333, 215 N.W.2d at 524. The Court also stated:

> In any event, any power to define household goods must be limited for the term 'household goods' to have any meaning whatever. It is obvious that the Legislature could not be allowed to define all property in the state as household goods and personal effects. To permit it to do so would allow it to negate other parts of the Constitution.

Peters at 335, 215 N.W.2d at 525.

The Court also found that "{a}ny definitional powers given to the Legislature are prefixed and limited." Id. at 334, 215 N.W.2d at 524. Since there is a limit to a legislature's definitional powers, the Court stated it is reasonable to use the common law's concepts regarding a term as a guide. Unfortunately, in the context of your question, it is difficult to assign a typical or common law meaning to the term "blighted." The term is usually defined in the statute with which it is associated and does not lend itself well to a "typical" or common law definition as a more familiar phrase such as "household goods" or "fixtures" does. Research on the subject revealed no Nebraska cases offering a definition of the term blighted that was not based on the statutory definition involved. In LB 830, the Legislature makes evident its intention that it is defining the term "blighted and substandard" pursuant to the grant of power expressed for that purpose in Article VIII, § 12. Section 4(8) of LB 830 declares that if the state board approves a city's application to have an area designated blighted and substandard, "then, for purposes of Article VIII, Section 12, of the Constitution of Nebraska, as applied in the act, the designated blighted and substandard area is considered as determined by law to be a designated blighted and substandard area and the property within such area is considered to be determined by law to be substandard and blighted property." If reasonable persons could disagree on the issue, the doctrine that reasonable doubts should be resolved in favor of the constitutionality of legislative acts would appear to support the bill's constitutionality.

The Nebraska Supreme Court also addressed the Legislature's power to define a term by statutory declaration in Moeller, McPherrin & Judd v. Smith, 127 Neb. 424, 255 N.W. 551 (1934). In that case, a partnership challenged the constitutionality of an amendment to a tax law which changed the definition of tangible property to include property which has always been considered intangible. The amendment defined such property as stocks, judgments, and demands for labor to be tangible property.

In holding the statutory amendment unconstitutional, the Court examined and gave weight to the term's commonly accepted meaning, just as in the Peters decision. The Court cited to the definition in Webster's Dictionary, noting that the Legislature's newly created definition directly contravened it.

The Court was particularly concerned that the Legislature had essentially ignored a constitutional definition and redefined the term in a way directly contrary to it. The Court stated, "In our opinion, there is a limit to the legislature's power to nullify and circumvent constitutional provisions by putting an arbitrary, but improper and unfounded, definition upon a certain word." Id. at 433, 255 N.W. at 555-556.

In a constitutional analysis of legislative acts and bills, the Nebraska Supreme Court has made it clear that the process must begin with the premise that the Legislature's actions are presumed constitutional. That deference is not without limits, however. When defining terms, the Court will look to what that term or phrase is commonly viewed to mean. If there is a generally accepted meaning, and the statutory definition unreasonably conflicts with it, the courts have demonstrated that the statute or bill may be held unconstitutional. If the term's exact definition is somewhat unclear, then reasonable doubts will be resolved in favor of constitutionality. According to the Peters decision, though, a term's definition cannot be so broad that it fails to exclude anything from the category it was meant to define. It appears that the term "blighted and substandard" does not have a commonly accepted definition at common law. Article VIII, § 12 does not provide a set definition for the term "substandard and blighted," and apparently authorizes the Legislature to define the term through legislation. As the legislative definition provided in LB 830 does not appear to contravene any constitutional or commonly held definition of what constitutes substandard and blighted property, it would appear likely the Legislature is in a position to define (and declare) farm land and vacant land as blighted and substandard.

[1] The constitutional provision in Peters had previously provided household goods of the value of $200.00 per family were exempt from taxation. The dollar amount was removed and the phrase "as defined by law" was added in an amendment.

Sincerely,
DON STENBERG

Opinion No. 95016

DATE: February 22, 1995

SUBJECT: Authority to Declare Property Blighted or Substandard Under the Nebraska Community Development Law

REQUESTED BY: Senator Stan Schellpeper
Nebraska State Legislature

WRITTEN BY: Don Stenberg, Attorney General
Timothy J. Texel, Assistant Attorney General

You have requested the opinion of this office regarding several issues involving the power of municipalities and community redevelopment authorities to declare an area blighted or substandard for purposes of a redevelopment project. Specifically, you posed the following questions:

1. Do municipalities or community redevelopment authorities have the authority to use eminent domain for redevelopment purposes to acquire property occupied by a business or farm?
2. Under current law, may property which is physically occupied by a business entity or physically occupied by a farm for use in agricultural production be declared blighted over the property owner's objection?
3. May property be declared blighted without first holding a public hearing?

The Nebraska Community Development Law (Neb Rev. Stat. §§ 18-2101 to 18-2144 (1991)), which you cited to in your letter, is the primary law controlling the area in question. The circumstances necessary for an area to be considered "substandard" or "blighted" are set out in Neb. Rev. Stat. § 18-2103(10) and (11) (Cum. Supp. 1994), respectively. Under the Nebraska Community Development Law, the governing body of a city has the authority to declare an area to be substandard or blighted.

It appears that under current law, municipalities or community redevelopment authorities[1] do have the right to exercise eminent domain proceedings to acquire property occupied by businesses or farms for redevelopment purposes.

The Nebraska Community Development Law specifically grants cities and community redevelopment authorities the right to exercise eminent domain powers. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 18-2107(4) (Cum. Supp. 1994) allows a community redevelopment authority to acquire any real or personal property, along with any improvements thereon, by eminent domain. In addition, Neb. Rev. Stat. § 18-2122 (1991) states:

> An authority shall have the right to acquire by the exercise of the power of eminent domain any real property which it may deem necessary for a redevelopment project for its purposes under the provisions of sections 18-2101 to 18-2144 after the adoption by it of a resolution declaring that the acquisition of the real property described therein is necessary for such purposes. The procedure to condemn property shall be exercised in the manner set forth in sections 76-704 to 76-724.
> When an authority has found and determined by resolution that certain real property described therein is necessary for a redevelopment project or for its purposes under the provisions of sections 18-2101 to 18-2144, the resolution shall be conclusive evidence that the acquisition of such real property is necessary for the purposes described therein.

Under current law, however, a community redevelopment authority must meet certain procedural requirements before it may exercise eminent domain powers. Examples of such requirements are: that the city has promulgated a general development plan for the city, the city has declared the area under consideration to be substandard or blighted, and the city has approved the specific redevelopment plan recommended by the community redevelopment authority.

The Nebraska Supreme Court has upheld the use of eminent domain when used pursuant to the Community Development Law. In Monarch Chemical Works, Inc. v. City of Omaha, 203 Neb. 33, 277 N.W.2d 423 (1979), the City of Omaha attempted to obtain land owned by Monarch Chemical Works by eminent domain, pursuant to the Nebraska Community Development Law. The city had passed a redevelopment plan which called for acquisition of property in east Omaha for redevelopment into industrial sites. The chemical company brought an injunction action to prevent the taking, claiming Omaha was taking land for manufacturing purposes, prohibited by Article XIII, § 2 of the Nebraska Constitution.

The Court found that clearly a city has the power of eminent domain to obtain real estate to be used for a public use, and the city could sell property it later found it did not need. The Court cited to Neb. Rev. Stat. § 14-374 (1991) as the authority which provided a city with such powers. Regarding the chemical company's claim that Article XIII, § 2 of the Nebraska Constitution, prohibited the city's action, the Court stated that the Community Development Law depended on a very different public purpose than that expressed in Article XIII, § 2. It found that a city was not prohibited from exercising its eminent domain powers to acquire and develop sites for manufacturing and industrial sites.

The Court also addressed the viability of the Nebraska Community Development Law itself. It held:

> The taking of substandard or blighted areas by a city for redevelopment and resale in accordance with an approved redevelopment plan which is in conformity with a general plan for the municipality as a whole, all as provided for in the Nebraska

> Community Development Law, § 18-2101 et seq., R. R. S. 1943, is a proper public use for a municipality.

Monarch at 41, 277 N.W.2d at 427.

The Court went on to note that whether the property was obtained voluntarily or by eminent domain, the acquisition must be provided for and in accordance with the city's redevelopment plan.

Assuming that an area which is physically occupied by a business or farm meets the statutory definition of substandard or blighted, as long as the municipality adheres to all procedural requirements there do not appear to be any obstacles preventing a municipality or community redevelopment authority from exercising its eminent domain powers to acquire the property. The fact that a business or farm physically occupies the property would not seem to affect the determination.[2]

Regarding the issue of whether business or farm property may be declared substandard or blighted over the property owner's objection, the evidence indicates that property owners have very limited standing to contest the determination that their property is blighted or the exercise of eminent domain over their property. Property owners can only object regarding procedural irregularities, that the taking is actually not for a public use, and to contest the amount of compensation. If a city strictly complies with all procedural requirements, and if the property meets the definition of substandard or blighted, the evidence indicates a property owner has no right to prevent property from being declared blighted or the exercise of eminent domain merely because he or she objects to it.

In Schulz v. Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District, 138 Neb. 529, 293 N.W. 409 (1940), the case involved the taking of farm and ranch land to create a dam reservoir near Ogallala, Nebraska. In its decision, the Court stated, "When it becomes necessary to take property for a public improvement, and all the strict requirements of the law have been met, the only question before the court is: What is the loss to the owner?" Id. 536, 293 N.W. at 413.

In May v. City of Kearney, 145 Neb. 475, 17 N.W.2d 448 (1945), Mr. May (a city resident) and a public power district sued to prevent the city from acquiring the public power district's electric light and power plant. The Nebraska Supreme Court, in addressing the issue of how the due process clause applied to the exercise of eminent domain, adopted language set out in People v. Adirondack Ry. Co., 160 N.Y. 225, 54 N.E. 689, and found that an individual has a right to his or her day in court regarding the issue of compensation, but does not have the right to challenge the state's appropriation of the property unless a statute requires it. May at 502, 17 N.W.2d at 463. The Court went on to hold that if property is taken irregularly, or if it can be shown the taking is in fact not for a public purpose, the owner can prevent the taking through injunction, ejectment, or any other available remedy. This same language was cited by the Court in the Monarch case.

As long as the requirements set out in Neb. Rev. Stat. § 18-2103(11) (Cum. Supp. 1994) are met, it does not appear that property owners have any right to prevent their property being declared blighted or the condemnation of the land through eminent domain proceedings.

The issue of whether property may be declared blighted without first holding a public hearing is closely related to the previous question. Just as with property owners' right to object to their land being declared blighted, the only requirements regarding public hearings prior to property being declared blighted is that which is statutorily provided.

Although the Nebraska Community Development Law contains public hearing provisions, it does not require hearings prior to property being declared substandard or blighted. The purpose for hearings which are required by the Community Development Law is to allow all interested parties an opportunity to express their views regarding the redevelopment plan recommended by the community redevelopment authority to the governing body of the city. See Neb. Rev. Stat. § 18-2115 (1991). The community redevelopment authority's plan details how a blighted area should be redeveloped.

The Nebraska Community Development Law also grants community redevelopment authorities the power to conduct hearings on any matter material for its information. Neb. Rev. Stat. § 18-2107(7) (Cum. Supp. 1994). The statute allows the hearings to be either public or private. The hearings provided for in this statute appear to be discretionary, however. The purpose is to allow the community redevelopment authority to gather evidence and make sure it is fully informed on any given topic. The statute does not contain language mandating such hearings be held, or if they are held, when they will be convened. The hearings contemplated by the statute appear to be information-gathering meetings for the convenience of the authority's members, not as a procedural requirement.

The Nebraska Supreme Court has upheld statutes which provided for no or very limited hearings. In May v. City of Kearney, 145 Neb. 475, 17 N.W.2d 448 (1945) (previously cited), the statute under which the city acted did not provide for notice and hearings regarding the legality of the proceeding. Mr. May and the public power district alleged that the city's condemnation action violated due process.

The Court disagreed that a statute must provide for notice and hearing. The Court stated, "{A} statute providing due process on the matter of just compensation and which is silent on the question of affording a hearing on the right to take meets all the requirements of due process under the state and federal Constitutions." Id. at 505, 17 N.W.2d at 464.

The Court held that the fact a statute did not provide for notice and hearing concerning the state's right to take property did not violate due process. In fact, the Court in May went on to state that a non-statutory mandate requiring notice and hearing "would constitute an unwarranted limitation on the sovereign right of the state . . . to take private property for a public use." Id. at 506, 17 N.W.2d at 465. There is other case law supporting the proposition that constitutional due process does not guarantee property owners the right to a hearing, so long as the owner is afforded the opportunity to remedy the situation in court. See also Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co. v. State of Nebraska, 47 Neb. 549, 66 N.W. 624 (1896), aff'd 170 U.S. 57, 18 S. Ct. 513 (1898).

Although the available case law deals primarily with a property owner's rights regarding condemnation in eminent domain proceedings, it is clear that his or her due process rights are limited to those which are statutorily provided. Having property declared blighted, in the context of your question involving the Nebraska Community Development Law, is one of the first steps a city would take in acquiring property for a public purpose.

In summary, property owners are quite limited in the remedies available to them when a municipality declares their property as substandard or blighted pursuant to the Nebraska Community Development Law. So long as a city and its community redevelopment authority strictly follow statutory procedural requirements, the city has the right to exercise eminent domain, notwithstanding a property owner's objection. The fact that a business or farm physically occupies the property would go to the amount of compensation, not the right of the city to acquire the property. To prevent the taking, the property owner would have to find a procedural irregularity, either in a statute or in the city's redevelopment plan, or be able to articulate why the taking is in fact not for a public purpose. Case law indicates public hearings are not required before property can be declared blighted, absent a statutory mandate. It is only necessary that the property meet the statutory definition of substandard or blighted property, and that the property owner can address any grievances in court.

[1] Community redevelopment authorities are basically entities created by a city to prepare and carry out redevelopment plans for areas which have been declared substandard or blighted.

[2] The presence of a business or farm would only affect the amount of compensation due the property owner, not the city's right to acquire the property.

Sincerely,
DON STENBERG

66-1330. Sections 66-1330 to 66-1348 and sections 2 to 5 of this act shall be known and may be cited as the Ethanol Development Act.

Sec. 2. An excise tax is levied upon all corn and grain sorghum to be utilized as feed, as food, or for industrial processing in the State of Nebraska. Except as otherwise provided in this section, the tax is three-fourths cent per bushel for corn and three-fourths cent per hundredweight for grain sorghum. The excise tax shall be imposed on all sales occurring on or after July 1, 1995, and before January 1, 2001. The tax shall be in addition to any fee imposed pursuant to sections 2-3623, 2-3627, and 2-4012. The excise tax shall be levied and imposed on the grower at the time of sale or delivery and shall be collected by the first purchaser. The tax shall be collected, administered, and enforced together with and in the same manner as the fees imposed pursuant to sections 2-3623, 2-3627, and 2-4012. The tax shall be collected, administered, and enforced by the Department of Agriculture. No corn or grain sorghum shall be subject to the tax more than once. In the case of a pledge or mortgage of corn or grain sorghum as security for a loan under the federal price support program, the excise tax shall be deducted from the proceeds of such loan at the time the loan is made. The excise tax shall be deducted whether the corn or grain sorghum is stored in this or any other state. The excise tax shall not apply to the sale of corn or grain sorghum to the federal government for ultimate use or consumption by the people of the United States when the State of Nebraska is prohibited from imposing such tax by the Constitution of the United States and laws enacted pursuant thereto.

Sec. 3. (1) The grain recipient, at the time of transfer or settlement, shall retain the excise tax as provided in section 2 of this act and shall maintain the necessary records of the excise tax for each transfer of corn or grain sorghum. Records maintained by the grain recipient shall provide the following: (a) Name and address of the supplier; (b) the date of the transfer; (c) the number of bushels of corn and hundredweight of grain sorghum transferred; and (d) the amount of excise tax retained on each transfer. The records shall be open for inspection and audit by authorized representatives of the Department of Agriculture during normal business hours observed by the purchaser.

(2) The grain recipient shall render and have on file with the department by the last day of each January, April, July, and October on forms prescribed by the department a statement of the number of bushels of corn and hundredweight of grain sorghum transferred in Nebraska. At the time the statement is filed, the grain recipient shall pay and remit to the department the excise tax.

(3) The department shall remit the excise tax collected to the State Treasurer for credit to the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund within thirty days after the end of each quarter.

(4) For each fiscal year beginning with fiscal year 1995-96 through fiscal year 2000-01, the department shall calculate its costs in collecting and enforcing the excise tax imposed by section 2 of this act and shall report such costs to the Department of Administrative Services within thirty days after the end of the fiscal year. Sufficient funds to cover such costs shall be appropriated from the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund to the Department of Agriculture each fiscal year.

Sec. 4. The State Treasurer shall transfer from the General Fund to the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund, before the end of each of the following fiscal years, the following amounts:

(c) For fiscal year 1999-2000, $9,000,000; and

(d) For fiscal year 2000-01, $3,000,000.

Sec. 5. Any person violating any of the provisions of section 2 or 3 of this act shall be guilty of a Class III misdemeanor.

Sec. 6. Section 66-1345, Revised Statutes Supplement, 1994, is amended to read:

66-1345. (1) There is hereby created the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund which shall be used by the board to pay the credits created in section 66-1344 to the extent provided in this section. Any money in the fund available for investment shall be invested by the state investment officer pursuant to the Nebraska Capital Expansion Act and the Nebraska State Funds Investment Act. The State Treasurer shall transfer to the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund such money as shall be (a) appropriated to the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund by the Legislature, (b) given as gifts, bequests, grants, or other contributions to the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund from public or private sources, (c) made available due to failure to fulfill conditional requirements pursuant to investment agreements entered into prior to April 30, 1992, (d) received as return on investment of the Ethanol Authority and Development Cash Fund, ~~and~~ (e) credited to the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund from the fertilizer fee pursuant to section 77-4401, (f) credited to the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund from the excise taxes imposed by section 2 of this act, and (g) credited to the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund pursuant to section 4 of this act.

(2) The Department of Revenue shall, at the end of each calendar quarter, notify the State Treasurer of the amount of motor fuel tax that was not collected in the preceding calendar quarter due to the credits provided in section 66-1344. The State Treasurer shall transfer from the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund to the Highway Trust Fund an amount equal to such credits less the following amounts:

(a) For 1993, 1994, and 1995, the amount generated during the calendar quarter by a one-cent tax on motor fuel pursuant to sections 66-489 and 66-668;

(b) For 1996, the amount generated during the calendar quarter by a three-quarters-cent tax on motor fuel pursuant to such sections;

(c) For 1997, the amount generated during the calendar quarter by a one-half-cent tax on motor fuel pursuant to such sections; and

(d) For 1998, 1999, and 2000, no reduction.

The amounts shall be transferred through December 31, 2000. For 1993 through 1997, if the amount generated pursuant to subdivisions (a), (b), and (c) of this subsection and the amount transferred pursuant to subsection (1) of this section are not sufficient to fund the credits provided in section 66-1344, then the credits shall be funded through the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund but shall not be funded through either the Highway Cash Fund or the Highway Trust Fund. For 1998, 1999, and 2000, the credits provided in such section shall be funded through the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund but shall not be funded through either the Highway Cash Fund or the Highway Trust Fund.

(3) The State Treasurer shall transfer from the Ethanol Production and Incentive Cash Fund the amounts appropriated under subsection (4) of section 3 of this act for each fiscal year as provided in such subsection.

(4) On February 15, 2001, the State Treasurer shall transfer any unexpended and unobligated funds from the Ethanol Production Incentive Cash Fund to the Highway Trust Fund.

LEGISLATIVE BILL 671. Placed on General File as amended.
Standing Committee amendment to LB 671:
AM0640

1. Strike the original sections and insert the following new sections:

"Section 1. Any county agricultural society operating or organized under Chapter 2, article 2, which has become inoperative because of neglect in the discharge of its duties devolved upon it by law, or for any other reason may, at any time procure an extension, restoration, renewal, or revival of its corporate existence, together with all the rights, franchises, privileges, and immunities and subject to all of its duties, debts, and liabilities which had been secured or imposed by its original articles of incorporation and its amendments, by filing with the Secretary of State a certificate of its last acting president and secretary or treasurer or other officers to be elected as provided in sections 5 and 6 of this act.

Sec. 2. The certificate filed pursuant to section 1 of this act shall set forth (1) the name of the county agricultural society, which name shall be the existing name of the society or the name it bore when its corporate existence expired, except as otherwise provided in sections 1 to 7 of this act, (2) the street address of the initial registered office and the name and street address of the initial registered agent, which street address shall be identical, (3) whether the renewal, restoration, or revival is to be perpetual and if not the time for which the renewal, restoration, or revival is to continue, (4) that the society desiring to be renewed or revived and so renewing or reviving its corporate existence was duly organized under the laws of the State of Nebraska, and (5) the date when the society became inoperative and that this certificate for renewal or revival is filed by authority of those who were directors or managers of the association at the time its corporate existence expired or who were elected directors or officers of the society as provided in sections 5 and 6 of this act. A copy of the certificate, certified by the Secretary of State, shall be recorded in the office of the clerk in and for the county in which the original articles of incorporation of the society are recorded. Upon filing and recording the original of the certificate of revival in the office of the Secretary of State the society shall be renewed and revived with the same force and effect as if its corporate existence had not become inoperative.

Sec. 3. The reinstatement shall validate all contracts, acts, matters, and things made done and performed within the scope of its articles of incorporation, its officers, and its agents during the time when the corporate existence was inoperative with the same force and effect and to all intents and purposes as if the corporate existence had at all times remained in full force and effect. All real and personal property, rights, and credits which were of the county agricultural society at the time its corporate existence became inoperative and which were not disposed of prior to the time of the revival or renewal shall be vested in the society, after the revival and renewal, as fully and completely as they were held by the society at and before the time its corporate existence became inoperative. The corporation, after such renewal and revival, shall be as exclusively liable for all contracts, acts, matters, and things made, done, or performed in its name and on its behalf by its officers and agents prior to the reinstatement as if its corporate existence had at all times remained in full force and effect.

Sec. 4. If, since the corporate existence became inoperative, any other county agricultural society organized under the laws of the State of Nebraska adopted the same name as the society sought to be renewed or revived or shall have adopted a name so nearly similar to it as not to distinguish it from the society renewed or revived under the provisions of sections 1 to 7 of this act, then, in such case, the renewed or revived society shall not be renewed under the same name which it bore when its corporate existence became inoperative, but shall adopt and be renewed under a new name which, under existing law, could be adopted by a society formed and organized under the provisions of Chapter 2, article 2, and in such case the certificate to be filed under section 8 of this act shall set forth the name borne by such society at the time its existence became inoperative and the new name under which the society is to be renewed or revived.

Sec. 5. If the last president and secretary or treasurer, or the officers performing the functions of the offices, or any of them, of the county agricultural society renewing or reviving its corporate existence are dead at the time of the renewal or refuse or neglect to act pursuant to section 1 of this act, the directors of the society or the successors of them, if not less than two, may elect a successor to the officer or officers who are dead or who refuse or neglect to act pursuant to section 1 of this act. In any case where there are less than two directors of the society living or if any of them refuse or neglect to act for the purpose of renewing or reviving the corporate existence, the members of the society may elect as many directors as necessary, together with the surviving director who is ready and willing to act, to constitute a board of three directors, and the board may elect successors to the deceased or the refusing or neglectful officers.

Sec. 6. A meeting of the directors of the county agricultural society or their successors or of the board as elected wholly or partly by the members as provided in sections 1 to 7 of this act, may be called by the president or any director upon ten days' written notice delivered personally or mailed to the last-known post office address of every other director. A meeting of the members for the purpose of electing directors may be called by the president or by any member upon ten days' written notice delivered or mailed to the last-known post office address of every other member. The president and secretary or treasurer, or the officers performing the functions of the president and secretary or treasurer elected, may take all steps and do all things necessary and proper to be done for the renewal or revival of the existence of the society with the same validity as if performed and done by the last president and secretary or treasurer, or the officers performing the functions of such offices of the society.

Sec. 7. After a renewal or revival of the existence of the county agricultural society is effected, the then president shall immediately call a meeting of the members of the society who are entitled to vote upon such notice as is required by the articles of incorporation for a regular meeting thereof, and at such meeting the members shall elect a full board of directors, which board shall then elect such officers as are provided by law, by the articles of incorporation, or the bylaws to conduct and carry on the business and affairs of the society.

Sec. 8. The certificate for the renewal and continuance of the existence of a county agricultural society shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, who shall furnish a certified copy of the certificate under his or her hand and seal of office. The certified copy shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal office of the society is located in this state in a book kept for the purpose. The certificate or a certified copy of the certificate duly certified under the hand of the Secretary of State and his or her seal of office, accompanied with the certificate of the clerk of the county where it is recorded under the clerk's hand and seal of his or her office, stating that it had been recorded, the record of the same in the office of the clerk, or a copy of such record duly certified by the clerk, or the record of such certified copy, recorded in the county clerk's office, is evidence in all courts of law and equity of this state.

Sec. 9. A county agricultural society renewing, extending, and continuing its corporate existence shall, upon complying with sections 1 to 8 of this act, be a corporation and continue its existence for the time stated in its certificate of renewal and shall, in addition to the rights, privileges, and immunities conferred by its original articles of incorporation, possess and enjoy all of the benefits of the laws of this state which are applicable to the nature of its business and shall be subject to the restrictions and liabilities imposed on such societies by the laws of this state.

Sec. 10. Since an emergency exists, this act takes effect when passed and approved according to law.".

Nonresidents holding a valid nonresident fish dealer's permit may possess, buy, sell, transport, and ship live bait minnows, live fish, all frogs, and crayfish legally obtained from outside this state or from a licensed aquaculture facility in accordance with rules and regulations adopted and promulgated by the commission. The fee for a nonresident fish dealer's permit shall be not less than fifty dollars and not more than sixty-five dollars, as established by the commission pursuant to section 81-814.02.

Sec. 2. Section 37-703, Revised Statutes Supplement, 1994, is amended to read:

37-703. Permits for game farming, fur farming, and aquaculture facilities may be issued by the commission upon written application by any qualified person. Such application shall state (1) the name, residence, and place of business of the applicant, (2) the exact description of the land upon which such game farm, fur farm, or aquaculture facility is to be located, together with the nature of the applicant's title to the land, whether in fee or under lease, and (3) the kind and approximate number of game animals, game birds, fur-bearing animals, except mutation foxes or minks, or aquatic organisms authorized to be kept or reared on such farm or in such facility. Permits under this section shall not be required for possession or production of domesticated cervine animals as defined in section 54-701.03. Such permits shall expire on December 31.

Sec. 3. Section 37-705, Revised Statutes Supplement, 1994, is amended to read:

37-705. Upon payment of the permit fees required by the Game Law, game animals, not to include domesticated cervine animals as defined in section 54-701.03, and game birds, fur-bearing animals, and aquatic organisms, lawfully held in possession in any other state or country, may be imported into this state by any legal holder of a breeder's permit described in section 37-703 except as provided in sections 37-535 to 37-538 and 37-719. Such permit shall not confer upon the holder the right (1) to take wild game animals, fur-bearing animals, game birds, or aquatic organisms from the natural resources of Nebraska or (2) to purchase such animals, birds, or aquatic organisms from anyone in Nebraska except the commission or persons holding legal permits for the propagation and disposal of the same.

The tag shall be composed of two parts, and, when detached, one part thereof, containing the name and address of both shipper and purchaser and the kind, number, and weight of the game shipped or removed, shall be attached to the bird or animal. The other part of the tag, containing the same information and such additional information as the commission may require, shall immediately be returned to the commission. The tag attached to a bird or animal shall so remain until the carcass of any bird is sold or the carcass of any animal is cut up for retail consumption, at which time the tag shall be removed by the person receiving or finally disposing of the bird or animal and shall at once be forwarded to the commission.

~~(5)~~ (4) It shall be unlawful for any person to willfully use any tag of the kind provided for in this section for carrying, removing, or shipping game taken or killed outside of the premises used for propagating the same, under authority of a permit, or for the purpose of a second shipment of game from any such premises.

Each sale of aquatic organisms raised under a permit issued under sections 37-702 to 37-712 shall be recorded on duplicate invoices, one copy to be given to the purchaser, the other to be retained by the seller for at least two years.
